Former Mine Deputy Says He Saw Sheriff's Aide in Murder Car

Frank White Is Linked With Death of Union Organizer's Son.

Audience Stunned By Identification

Operators' Terror Reign Renewed, 6 Harlan Men Testify.

By Sidney Olson.

Hiding behind a rock by a mountain road in Harlan County on "the night of February 9," former Deputy Sheriff Kelley Fox saw in the glare of headlights Frank White, one of the chief deputies of Harlan, in the car from which came the fusillade of high-powered bullets that murdered a union organizer's son.

So Fox testified yesterday as a jammed hearing room of the Senate Civil Liberties Committee hushed with the sensation. It was the first eyewitness testimony on the crime, and young Fox, in fear of his life, had withheld it till now.

Bennett Musick, 19-year-old son of Marshall Musick, union organizer six days a week and preacher in the Baptist Church Sundays, shot in the neck, fell dead at his mother's feet that night in February. No one has been indicted or tried for the crime in Harlan County.

Reign of Terror Described.

While pretty Mrs. Martha Howard, Harlan department store saleswoman (incorrectly identified previously as a waitress), had testified White, George Lee and other deputies had left a Harlan lunchroom that night, armed and intoxicated, with the words, "We're going to see old man Musick," the testimony of young Fox was the first definite identification of some one on the scene.

Earlier, a half-dozen mountain men from the mines of Harlan, some in new blue overalls and some in "store-bought" clothes, shambled bashfully to the witness stand to tell how mine operators have renewed the long, bitter and bloody war on unionization in the last week.

Wholesale dismissals of old and trusted employes, eviction of miners from company homes, shutdown of some mines and threats "to nail up the entries" of others have characterized the struggle, they said.

Mine operators such as Pearl Bassham and R. E. Lawson, who learned "with surprise" of the Wagner labor relations act when they came to Washington several weeks ago, and who since have returned at times to Harlan, have led in renewing the fight against unionization, the miners said.

Self-conscious as they picked their way to the stand, taking care not to set their boots down on the dainty pumps of the scores of feminine thrill-seekers who attend the hearings, the miners nvertheless spoke with spirit and pride, unmindful of the chill glances of the bald-headed Bassham and the bull-necked sheriff, Theodore R. Middleton, sitting stiffly in the audience.

But Fox's story brought stillness to the jammed room.

Revealed by Headlights.

On the stand, 29-year-old Kelley Fox, trig in a light gray suit, and fondling a new spring Panama, told the committee:

"I was about 100 feet or so from the highway, where Musick's house was, on the night of February 9, near a foot bridge where there's six big rocks, where I hid out.

"Three cars pulled up by the house, and they started shootin' out of the right-hand windows. They just shot as they driv.

"Then they swung around back, and when the headlight from one of the other cars hit this first one, the light showed Frank White right in the car."

The spectators gasped. La Follette asked grimly:

"Why didn't you report this to the authorities?"

Young Fox smiled slowly, and drawled:

"Because I didn't want the authorities to kill me."

"Would your life have been endangered?"

"Yes, sir; it sure would!"

"Why were you afraid of Frank White?"

"Well, I had a little experience

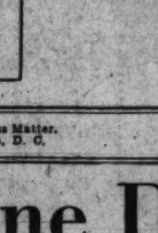
Justice Is Not Meant for the Rich Alone; Pauper Father, Son Have Their Day.

By Franklyn Waltman

Those who have been led to believe that the Supreme Court is a rich man's tribunal might have attained a better understanding of the solicitude and care with which the nine black-robed jurists examine complaints of injustice made by the poor and humble had they witnessed an incident which took place before the bar of that tribunal yesterday.



WALTMAN

When the court finished handing down written opinions and orders of the day, there arose and advanced to the bar of that tribunal a tall, dignified barrister, attired in formal cutaway and striped trousers. He was Spencer Gordon, one of the ablest and most distinguished members of the Washington bar—a partner of one of the foremost law firms here.

As Mr. Gordon bowed to the court, he was eyed by two lawyers who had traveled 3,000 miles from the State of Washington to challenge his contentions. The nine justices concentrated their attention on the lawyer standing before them. Spectators in the awe-inspiring chamber might well have imagined that here was a cause involving large sums and that Mr. Gordon came to represent some client of wealth or affluence.

Mr. Gordon's clients—a father and son—however, are not wealthy or affluent. Nor did this case involve a large sum of money. His clients were under sentence to the Washington State Penitentiary, without means or influence. Mr. Gordon will not receive one cent as a fee for his services in this case and the briefs to which he referred in his argument were printed at the expense of the Supreme Court.

On May 3, 1935—exactly two years ago—Elbert B. Lindsey and his son, E. R. Lindsey, were charged in Spokane County, Wash., with grand larceny. It was alleged that on April 15 of that year they obtained $40 by means of a fraudulent check. They were tried and found guilty on September 14, 1935. On November 1 they were sentenced to the penitentiary to a term "of not more than 15 years."

On June 12, 1935, between the date of the commission of the alleged crime and the date of the Lindsey trial and sentencing, there became effective in the State of Washington a new law which made changes in the method of imposing sentences on persons convicted of felonies. The two men were sentenced under the provisions of this new law.

The elder Lindsey had been a court shorthand reporter and subsequently was admitted to the bar of Washington State. He felt that he and his son had not been given a fair trial and that, particularly, the new law had the effect of increasing their punishment. Acting as attorney for himself and his son he appealed to the Supreme Court of Washington, claiming the new law as applied to him and his son was an ex post facto law, thus violating their constitutional rights.

Section 10 of Article I of the United States Constitution provides that "no State shall pass any ex post facto law." The Washington State Supreme Court, however, held that the new law was not an ex post facto law and it affirmed the conviction and sentencing of the Lindseys.

Plea to Halt U.S. Spending Is Renewed

Fund for Flood Control and Army Housing Is Delayed.

Excerpts from Senator Byrnes' address—Page 9.

By Robert C. Albright.

A terse warning against renewal of emergency spending last night followed Administration sidetracking of nearly $1,000,000,000 in flood control and Army housing programs.

The warning came from Senator James F. Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, close friend of the President, but now urging slashes under the White House budget.

Pointing to the $34,941,507,897 public debt, Byrnes asked "what will we use for money" when the next depression comes? In a radio speech he said "the emergency has passed, and it is time for us to put our house in order."

A few hours earlier, President Roosevelt himself acted to delay consideration of $800,000,000 in flood control and power authorizations for the Ohio and lower Mississippi Valley.

President Asks Delay.

In a letter to Chairman William M. Whittington, of the House Flood Control Committee, the President asked that the program be laid aside for the session. Whittington said he would comply with the request, but seek a conference with Mr. Roosevelt on his return.

In a coincident move, the Budget Bureau disapproved a $162,000,000 Army housing program, despite War Department recommendations and the backing of Chairman Lister B. Hill, of the House Military Affairs Committee.

Meantime, Congressional leaders, uncertain as to the President's precise economy objectives, and in conflict among themselves over the method of making cuts, avoided specific budget panaceas pending a future White House conference.

Other sharply contrasting developments, aligning a keen drive for economy against bloc movements to increase expenditures, were:

A House Appropriations sub-committee heard Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes favor extension of PWA until June 30, 1939. Ickes asked no new appropriations but sought the right to use an unobligated $145,000,000 in the PWA revolving fund for continued grants to municipalities.

Representative Alfred F. Beiter, of New York, head of the House PWA bloc, appeared before the committee to oppose Presidential restrictions limiting PWA grants to the cost of relief labor on projects, plus 15 per cent. Beiter will urge earmarking of $300,000,000 of relief funds for additional PWA grants, when hearings on relief estimates open tomorrow.

School Fund Sought.

The House Rules Committee approved privileged consideration of the President's CCC bill, cutting the Civilian Conservation Corps from 350,000 to 300,000, and providing $350,000,000 to pay for it. An effort to increase enrollees to 350,000 will be made on the floor.

Despite President Roosevelt's opposition to a general unemployment census, a Senate Commerce subcommittee voted to hold hearings on a bill for a national unemployment survey.

Seeking funds to eliminate conditions which are "hazardous to the lives of students, "Senator Schwellenbach (Democrat), Washington, supplied the Senate with a list of 1,178 school projects pending before the Public Works Administration.

A $5,000,000,000 farm program, providing homesteads free of debt for actual farm families, was proposed in the House by Representative Hugh Peterson (Democrat), of Georgia. Pointing to the $10,000,000,000 already spent for farm relief, Peterson said in the long run his program would save money.

The Peterson "homestead" plan was only one of a number of independent proposals in Congress out of harmony with the new economy pitch. So-called liberal blocs are organizing in the House to seek from $2,000,000,000 to $3,000,000,000 for relief. Counter efforts are being made in both House and Senate to cut the $1,500,000,000 relief estimates to $1,000,000,000.

Chief advocate of the $500,000,000 relief slash is Senator Byrnes. He took the radio last night to urge that States and political subdivisions match Federal relief grants dollar for dollar, if they are able to produce or borrow the money. He again urged as a further step that appropriations be slashed 10 per cent, with the exception of fixed charges and salary items.

Even under the President's revised budget estimates, if ahered to,

Basque Head's Wife, Family Flee by Plane

Rebels Mass for Final Bilbao Drive; Civilian Evacuation Dubious.

Defenders Claim Gains; 63 Madrid Planes Bomb Insurgent Forces.

The European Situation.

The wife and children of the Basque President were among the first refugees to reach France as evacuation of noncombatants from Bilbao was speeded. Fall of the city to rebel forces was believed imminent.

Further strengthening of the ties between Italy and Germany was seen as German Foreign Minister Von Neurath conferred with Premier Mussolini. Groundwork was laid for the anticipated meeting of Mussolini and Hitler.

Leader's Family Flees.

By the Associated Press.

St. Jean De Luz, France, May 3.—The wife and children of the Basque President, Juan Antonio Aguirre, arrived by plane today at Biarritz, France, from Bilbao, besieged capital of their country, from which French and British warships began evacuation of their own nationals.

The flight of the President's family was regarded as indicating the grave view taken by Basque leaders of the fate of their chief city. Senora Aguirre and her children joined families of other Basque leaders in France.

To St. Jean de Luz the British destroyer Faulknor brought the first refugee contingent, arriving from Bilbao with 12 passengers, including the British Consul and Vice Consul. A little later came the French dispatch ship Somme, carrying 72 French and Belgian refugees.

Except for the departure of the President's family, evacuation of Spaniards from Bilboa, on which the insurgent armies are pressing, had not begun today, as far as could be determined here.

In view of the increasing military pressure on the Basque capital, diplomats here expressed doubt any large scale evacuation of Bilbao noncombatants could be carried out.

British Ships May Act.

The war zone around Bilbao is becoming increasingly dangerous, they pointed out. Gen. Franco's insurgent planes daily are bombarding Bilbao's ports along the Nervion River. In spite of official statements in London and Paris that evacuation plans will be carried out as announced, in spite of Gen. Franco's refusal to accept them, it was believed any mass rescue of Bilbao's women, children and aged has become impossible.

A few thousand women and children, however, will be brought to France. Three requisitioned French steamers are leaving Bordeaux for Bilbao Tuesday night, but they can carry only 2,000.

What part the British freighters which ran the insurgent blockade with food cargoes for Bilbao and are still there will play was uncertain. It was planned they should carry iron ore cargoes when they left, but that plan has been abandoned in the belief the ore cannot be loaded before the city falls.

The Faulknor's trip to Bilbao today was her second in three days. Insurgent airplanes dropped bombs near her when she slipped into port there Saturday to discuss evacuation with the British consul.

The Basque government reported today its troops killed 3,000 "Italian" trops in repulsing a new attack west of Bermeo, on the Bay of Biscay northeast of Bilbao. They declared "motorized Italian detachments" were cut off from their base in Bermeo and slaughtered by Basques.

Another Basque report said scores of Italians trapped at Bermeo, important fishing port, leaped into the sea in an attempt to escape by swimming 2 miles across the Guernica inlet.

Planning Final Drive.

Insurgent dispatches, however, announced Gen. Emilio Mola's troops had occupied heights commanding the highway from Durango into Bilbao, had advanced into the hills in pursuit of bands of defenders and were preparing for a final dash into Bilbao.

(In London, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons British warships had been instructed to "afford all possible protection on the high seas to any ships leaving Bilboa with noncombatant refugees."

(Franco suggested that the refugees seek haven between Bilbao and Santander in a safety zone he agreed to observe, but refused to agree to their evacuation to another country.)

Possibility of government naval activity in the Basque sector was seen in diplomatic reports that the

Mrs. Simpson Guarded While She Prepares to Greet Windsor Today

French Chateau Turned Into Fairy Castle as Police Watch.

Duke Quits Exile With 17 Suitcases

'Hurry Up,' She Tells Him as Divorce Becomes Absolute.

By the Associated Press.

Monts, France, May 3.—Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson, now free to marry the Duke of Windsor, tonight turned the Chateau de Cande into a fairy castle to welcome the man who gave up his throne for her love.

Truckloads of flowers were sent from Tours and arranged under her direction in the chateau's scores of rooms as the Duke sped by train from Austria for the reunion.

The dark-eyed American-born woman was strolling quietly through the chateau's gardens when she received the word her divorce from Ernest Aldrich Simpson had been made absolute in London.

But the decision of the Duke to speed to her side for their first meeting since before he stepped down from the British throne galvanized the chateau into action.

Mrs. Simpson's spokesman, Herman L. Rogers, indicated that the former King might arrive at the chateau between 1 p. m. and 3 p. m. tomorrow.

Police Patrol Grounds.

The chateau's myriad lights gleamed forth in the darkness tonight as elaborate preparations were hurried for his arrival.

Armed gendarmes under the personal supervision of the chief of police of Tours guarded the grounds at posts within the railings.

Their pistols glinted from clumps of trees in the beams of the headlights of passing cars.

Inside the castle were half a dozen British and French detectives to protect the small house party awaiting the former monarch.

Besides Mrs. Simpson, the party included Mrs. Charles E. Bedaux, the hostess, and Mr. and Mrs. Rogers. Bedaux, owner of the chateau, was expected to arrive tomorrow.

Villagers spoke in awed tones as the preparations were rushed to completion.

Some of Monts' inhabitants already speak of Mrs. Simpson as "Miss Warfield," but Rogers said she had not decided whether to assume her maiden name for the period before her marriage to the Duke. She wishes to continue to be called Mrs. Simpson for the time being, he said.

The village telephone operator, refusing to put through calls to the castle, said outgoing long-distance lines were occupied an hour and one-half with calls from it.

Duke Is All Smiles.

Salzburg, Austria, May 3 (AP).—The Duke of Windsor, all smiles and happier than at any time since he game up the throne of the British Empire, sped tonight aboard an express train to the arms of "the woman I love."

A few hundred miles away, in the Chateau de Cande at Monts, France, awaited Wallis Warfield Simpson, happy, too, for a British divorce court had removed the last legal barrier to their marriage.

Each hour brought Windsor closer to the dark-eyed, American-born woman. Tomorrow another chapter will be written in the world-stirring romance, for the duke will see her for the first time since he stepped down from the throne last December 10.

The Duke ended 22 weeks of exile in Austria, restless and impatient to go to her side.

They talked by telephone within a few minutes after the British tribunal said she was free.

She told him to "hurry up!" He did.

Loaded down with Edelweiss, suitcases and smiles, he boarded his private car on the Arlburg express at 4:45 p. m., (10:45 a. m., Eastern Standard Time.)

In his arms he carried two packages for Mrs. Simpson, one crammed with Edelweiss, the mountain flower; in the other, a dirndl, the Austrian name for the colorful costume worn by the peasant women.

Seventeen suitcases were scattered about the Duke's car.

Twenty-two weeks ago he came here in voluntary exile, haggard and worried. The change in his mien, once he reached Salzburg today, was immediately apparent.

Leaving an automobile, he fairly sprinted along the sunny station platform, radiating happiness. He wore no hat and he had, perhaps,

'Gone With the Wind' Receives 1936 Pulitzer Novel Award

'You Can't Take It With You' Wins in Drama; St. Louis Post-Dispatch Honored for Exposure of Registration Frauds.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 3.—The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Margaret Mitchell's "Gone With the Wind," and the Broadway farcical comedy "You Can't Take It With You," received Pulitzer awards tonight for excellence in American journalism and letters.

The committee, ignoring dramatic stories of the Spanish war, one of the most bitter campaigns in American political history, and the rumbling of disturbed international politics, split the annual prize for distinguished examples of newspaper reporting among five science editors.

Announcing the awards at the annual dinner of Columbia University's school of journalism tonight, the committee said "the disinterested and meritorious public service" for which the Post-Dispatch was honored was the exposure of wholesale registration frauds in St. Louis.

The award for the best historical work went to Van Wycks Brooks for his "Flowering of New England," and the prize for the distinguished American biography "teaching patriotic and unselfish services to the people," to Allan Nevins for "Hamilton Fish, the Inner History of the Grant Administration."

The winning novel—general choice of most book critics since it became an outstanding best seller—is Miss Mitchell's description of

Hatch Proposal For One Judge Yearly Gaining

Leaders of Both Sides on Capitol Hill Swinging to Amendment.

The favor of leaders of both sides in the Capitol Hill battle over the President's court reorganization bill swung tentatively yesterday to the narrowest of all the compromise proposals—the Hatch amendment allowing the appointment of but one additional justice to the Supreme Court a year, with the court to revert to a membership of nine as soon as vacancies permit.

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, made a blunt statement of the opposition's view saying:

"The Administration leaders know now they're licked on six judges. They know they're licked on four.

"But what is more, there are enough Senators here who will talk indefinitely, in order never to allow a two-justice compromise to come to a vote."

"Sentiment is crystallizing rapidly throughout the country against the President's proposals. I spoke in Rochester, N. Y.; in St. Louis and Topeka, and there were great crowds of all kinds of people at every meeting."

The Administration's strategists, meanwhile, openly admitted that the expected unfavorable report of the Judiciary Committee would leave them "in a weak position." Senator M. M. Logan (Democrat), Kentucky, a compromise-seeker, told reporters this while admitting that he sought to have the committee report out favorably a compromise of some sort.

Thus, observers agreed, if a bill were brought to the floor which proposed the addition of two justices to the Supreme Court, a simple amendment could be offered, asking the original six. But if the bill

Screen Actors' Guild Defers Action on Strike

Production in Hollywood Goes on; Picket Lines Are Strengthened.

Read "The Hollywood Strike," an editorial, Page 8.

By the Associated Press.

Hollywood, Calif., May 3.—The strike of film industry craftsmen and laborers spread today, but movie-making went on and the full effect on production activities could not be determined definitely.

A statement on behalf of studio executives from their labor conciliator, Pat Casey, said "all regular activities are being continued as usual."

The number of pickets at nine major studios, however, increased to an average of about 1,000 on duty simultaneously, as the strike spread to 11 unions of the Federated Motion Picture Crafts under a call issued yesterday.

Publicity committeemen of F. M. P. C. headquarters declared about 6,000 workers are on strike. They said the pickets will number up to 5,000, counting 3 to 6 hour shifts, working 24 hours a day.

Actors passed through picket lines into the studios, awaiting final decision of the powerful Screen Actors' Guild as to whether its 3,600 members will join the strike, either by formal walkout or by declining to go through the picket lines.

This decision was deferred until next Sunday at a meeting of some 2,000 members of the guild last night. Guild directors will confer Wednesday with prodcuers on guild demands made in behalf of free-lance, small-part, bit and extra players.

Robert Montgomery, president of the guild, conducted last night's meeting—one of the largest concentrations of leading movie talent ever

Corporation Tax Would Net $6,000,000 Yearly, Hazen Claims.

By James D. Secrest.

A 1 per cent gross receipts tax on all corporations and a license levy on all persons doing business for profit in Washington will be recommended by the Commissioners today when the House sub-committee on District taxation resumes hearings.

The corporation tax, proposed as a substitute for the Collins bill, will raise approximately $6,000,000 a year, according to Melvin C. Hazen, president of the board. This revenue will be offset, however, by the waiving of the personal property tax, which now takes $1,900,000 from the corporations.

A new inheritance tax plan also will be submitted by the Commissioners, bringing their tax measures to five proposals and the estimated additional revenue to nearly $8,000,000.

Should the entire program be adopted by the House sub-committee it would balance the District's budget after some $2,000,000 is added to the present deficit by a threatened "economy" cut in the Federal lump sum payment, a $1,000,000 increase in the per diem workers' appropriation, and $477,000 in deficiency and supplemental items.

With the submission of the broad

Abattoir Fight To Open Today On Capitol Hill

Senate Committee Begins Consideration of Bill on Nuisances.

The fight to halt construction of a slaughter house on the east side of the Anacostia River will shift this afternoon to Capitol Hill, where the Senate District Committee will consider a bill to control "nuisance industries" in the National Capital.

Senator William H. King (Democrat), of Utah, chairman of the Senate District Committee, is author of the bill. He told The Post last night that he was prepared to "push" it. But first, he said, he thought there should be a hearing at which both sides in the slaughter house battle could testify. And if his colleagues are agreeable at the meeting at 3 o'clock this afternoon King plans to appoint a sub-committee to conduct such a hearing.

Legislation would appear to be the last hope of those who are trying to stop Adolph Gobel, Inc., of New York and Chicago, from erecting four three-story buildings in the 3700 block of Benning road northeast, where 5,000 hogs, cattle and sheep will be killed and processed each week.

The District government, after holding up the abattoir for more than six months, capitulated last week. On the recommendation of the corporation counsel, a permit

Reformers Jealous, N. Y. Strip-Artiste Says On Trip Here to Protest Burlesque Drive

Virginia Jones, platinum blonde strip-tease artiste from New York, played to an empty house when she called on Wilbur LaRoe, jr., spearhead of the local church drive against the ladies of her profession, to protest to him yestreday.

While Miss Jones was in Washington, LaRoe was in New York. The young lady, her eyes flashing through heavy mascara, was highly indignant at aspersions she said had been cast upon her profession in New York, where 14 burlesque theaters were closed by the law Saturday.

"They say burlesque girls are guilty of wrongdoing after working hours," she declared. "Well, let me tell these reformers something. If the girls were bad, they wouldn't be slaving four shows a day and rehearsing all morning for any measly $23.50 a week. That in itself is the best proof of their virtue. If the girls were rotten they wouldn't have to work so hard, believe me!"

Miss Jones said she wanted to impart that message to LaRoe, and "set his mind straight about a lot of misunderstandings. I only decided to call on Mr. LaRoe because I really, honestly feel I'm right," she added.

Westbrook Pegler again tackles the burlesque house problem in his column on Page 9.

"Another thing," she went on. "The reformers here and in other cities, all following the leadership of New York, are putting literally thousands of people out of work. Actually, they are forcing many burlesque girls out onto the streets where through hunger and want their morals will certainly not be improved. I know a dozen who were caught without a penny to their names. The churchmen are forcing them into the very thing they are decrying.

"Chorus girls, candy butchers,

215 Chinese Lepers Shot After Foiling Death by Drowning

Shanghai, May 3 (U.P.).—Authorities shot 215 lepers whom they lured onto boats by promising to take them to a new colony, Chinese reports from Canton said today.

An attempt was made to drown the lepers by sinking two boats, but they overpowered the crews. Authorities then ordered the lepers shot, specifying only one bullet could be used on each one. The result was that many of the lepers were tossed, wounded, into lime-filled graves.

The order to execute the lepers was rescinded after a protest was received from Nanking, but it came too late to save their lives.

The executions took place at Tafuling, half way up White Cloud Mountain. Villagers reported the soldiers became tired and shot "with unsteady hands" toward the end of the four-hour execution period.

New Ohio Flood Makes Thousands Flee in Missouri

Charleston, Mo., May 3 (AP).—A predicted 47 to 48 foot river stage on the Ohio at Cario, Ill., late this week brought an order today for an emergency evacuation of the southern part of a 101,000-acre flood prevention spillway in Missouri.

The Mississippi County Flood Committee issued the order and said a 42-foot stage at Cario—where the Ohio empties into the Mississippi—would send water through an opening of the spillway levee which has not been repaired since the flood of last winter.

Col. Ernest Graves, of the Mississippi River Commission at Washington, said the evacuation order was precautionary.

Women See Hour Less Sleep, Men More Golf in Time Bill

Washingtonians, particularly women, would rather have an extra hour of sleep in the morning than an extra hour of play in the afternoon. The women feel that only the men could play.

At least, that is the sentiment of those who have been bombarding Chairman Mary T. Norton, of the House District Committee, with letters since the Sacks bill was introduced to move up the clock an hour during the summer months.

Husbands and wives divided on the question of daylight-saving at a meeting last night of the Forest Hills Citizens Association, and the result was a tie vote on a resolution to condemn the Sacks bill.

With three exceptions, the vote was strictly along sex lines. Two men voted with the women, and one woman voted with the men.

Mrs. Leslie B. Wright, secretary of the association, who introduced the resolution, said the Sacks bill would place a hardship on women.

"Yes," she said, "daylight saving might give the men an extra hour to play golf. But it would just mean an extra hour of work for women. You can't change a baby's hours of feeding that easy. It would simply mean that women would have to get up an hour earlier and probably go to bed at the same old time."

Letters protesting vigorously against the Sacks bill to place Washington on a daylight-saving time basis were received by Mrs. Norton as the committee prepared to consider the measure at its weekly meeting tomorrow.

One who signed herself as "A Very Tired Mother" made an appeal for rejection of the bill on behalf of the "poor, tired mothers who lose more than half the night's sleep with tired, crying children."

Washington's famed summer heat was brought into the controversy by Margaret J. Merrillat, of the Valley Vista Apartments.

"Washington is farther South and therefore hotter than other cities having daylight-saving time," she wrote.

She pointed out that Washingtonians have to wait until their

Court Upholds Soviet Pact, Tax On Coconut Oil

Refuses to Hear Appeal Involving New Test of Gold Clause.

By the United Press.

The Supreme Court yesterday upheld two external policies of the Roosevelt Administration—the Litvinov agreement with Soviet Russia and the Philippine coconut oil tax—but failed to decide validity of social security unemployment insurance taxes.

Both decisions were unanimous except that Justices Harlan Fiske Stone, Louis D. Brandeis and Benjamin Cardozo dissented on the method in which their colleagues reached their conclusion in the Soviet case. They maintained the court's record of no decisions against the New Deal this term.

The tribunal's decisions included:

1. A ruling upholding the Litvinov agreement, made at the time of the Soviet recognition, under which the Soviet government transferred to the United States the right to claim funds due it in this country as a successor of the Czarist regime.

Under this agreement the Government sued the former banking house of August Belmont to collect a $25,438 deposit it held in the name of the Petrograd Metal Works at the time Russian industry was nationalized. New York State courts and the Second Circuit Court of Appeals held that such a suit could not be filed because nationalization of industry was against the public of New York State and the Nation.

The Supreme Court, however, held that in foreign affairs the National Government was supreme.

2. An opinion upholding the 3-cents a pound tax on the first domestic processing of Philippine coconut oil. Overruling the challenges of two soap manufacturers, Cincinnati Soap Co., of Dayton, Ohio, and Haskins Bros. & Co., Omaha, the court held that more than $40,000,000 collected under the tax now may be paid to the Philippine government.

3. Refusal to hear an appeal involving a new case connected with the gold devaluation policy. The action upheld the contention of the Prudential Insurance Co. that in bidding on foreclosed California property it was entitled to pay $350,000 in "lawful money" instead of in gold coin.

Roosevelt Lands 90-Pound Tarpon; Another Escapes

Corpus Christi, May 3 (AP).—President Roosevelt landed a tarpon at Port Aransas at 6:20 p. m. today, his first in coastal waters here.

He hooked the silver king at 6 o'clock, played him 20 minutes and brought him to gaff. The tarpon weighed about 90 pounds.

Earlier in the day the President got a strike and brought the tarpon to the boat, but Barney Farley, veteran fishing guide, missed the gaff.

On the whole the town elections in Montgomery County failed to disturb the calm of the fine spring day. Only in Takoma Park and Garrett Park were there any real contests. In other towns candidates were unopposed.

The winners of posts as town councilmen for two years at Garrett Park were W. S. Macgill and W. G. MacNulty, who defeated W. H. Chisholm, J. L. Thomas and N. MacMullen.

Arlington Man Is Freed In Filling Station Death

Charges of manslaughter against Curtis Coons, of Colonial Village, Arlington County, in connection with the death of Otis Hildebrand, March 5, were nolle prossed yesterday by Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas. Coon has been out on $1,000 bond. Douglas stated that his action was at the request of the wife, mother and sister of the deceased.

According to police, Hildebrand died from a fractured skull resulting from a fall during a scuffle at a gasoline station near the Highway Bridge the night of March 5. The group, numbering six ushers at a Washington theater, had stopped at the gasoline station in Virginia.

Justice Is Not Meant for the Rich Alone; Pauper Father, Son Have Their Day.

without money, the Lindseys did not give up their fight. The father drafted a petition to the United States Supreme Court setting forth reasons and arguments why the application of the new law to him and his son had the effect of an ex post facto law. He wrote out this petition, which also made other allegations of an unfair trial, on a typewriter, and in that form sent it across the continent to the Supreme Court, along with an affidavit in forma pauperis—that is, that he and his son were paupers and unable to pay the cost of the proceedings.

Even though the rules of the Supreme Court require that petitions presented to it shall be printed, the court received the typewritten petition from the Lindseys. President Roosevelt, in his message to Congress proposing a reorganization of the Supreme Court intimated that the high tribunal was so burdened with work it could not give careful consideration to all petitions.

"Can it be said," the President asked, "that full justice is achieved when a court is forced by the sheer necessity of keeping up with its business to decline, without even an explanation, to hear 87 per cent of the cases presented to it by private litigants?"

The court apparently gave careful consideration to the Lindsey petition, and on February 1, four days before Mr. Roosevelt propounded that question, formally granted permission to the Lindseys to proceed in forma pauperis—in other words, the court would pay the expense of the printing and having the record from the lower courts brought before it.

But the interest of the Supreme Court did not stop there. The justices decided that the Lindseys should be represented before the court by able counsel and Mr. Gordon was requested by Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes to undertake that task. The court also narrowed the issue under review solely to that of whether the law under which the Lindseys were sentenced had the effect of an ex post facto law. Arfect of an ex post facto law.

Mr. Gordon prepared an extensive brief discussing this issue. He reinforced the contentions he made there with oral arguments before the court yesterday, being opposed by Ralph E. Foley and C. C. Quackenbush, representing the State of Washington. Whatever the outcome when the court hands down its decision within the next month, the important fact is that the Lindseys have had their day in court.

* * * *

Although unusual, the Lindsey case does not break precedence. On many occasions in the past the Supreme Court has permitted penniless persons who demonstrated they had a meritorious complaint against the processes of justice to proceed before the court in forma pauperis and the tribunal in some cases has supplied them with better counsel than many persons of means can afford to employ. Only recently such outstanding Washington lawyers as Dean Acheson, Seth Richardson and John S. Flannery, to name but three, have appeared in the role taken yesterday by Mr. Gordon—and without fees.

Thus the portals of the temple of justice are kept open for the humblest in the land, giving living truth to the inscription in the marble of this temple—"Equal Justice Under Law."

Violence Flares Over Greenbelt Labor Hearing

Labor unrest at Greenbelt, Md., threatened to flare up in violence yesterday at a hearing on complaints by nonunion workers that they had been discriminated against in recent lay-offs at the Resettlement's low-cost housing project.

Despite published reports that all complaints were to be heard, officials refused admittance to all but the painters.

Muttering threats and waving their arms menacingly, almost 50 other discharged tradesmen surged about Dr. Mercer G. Evans, Resettlement's labor relations director, demanding explanations for the widespread dismissals.

Edward Fugitt, secretary to Representative Stephen W. Gambrill (Democrat), of Maryland, was surprised when told that only the painters would be heard. He said he had understood the meeting was to have been for the purpose of hearing all charges.

A near-fight developed between Elmer L. Barr, Hyattsville, Md., a discharged painter, and Charles W. Gaines, superintendent of the painters.

Barr jumped on the running board of Gaines' automobile as he was leaving the hearing. The two men exchanged words and Gaines left his car and, according to Barr, took a heavy blackjack from his pocket as the latter drew near.

Movies Started Cullinan Love, Woman Says

By the United Press.

Detroit, May 3.—Laura Strittmatter, 37-year-old brunette with a Cupid's bow mouth, told a jury today how her romance ending in a $100,000 "heart balm" suit started "at the movies on Saturday afternoons."

Mrs. Hallie M. Cullinan, thin-lipped and slender, accuses Miss Strittmatter of stealing and marrying her husband, Charles H. Cullinan, of Washington, D. C., while he still was married to her.

"He took me to the movies now and then on Saturday afternoons," Miss Stittmatter said after explaining how she met Cullinan when he was manager of the Home Owners Loan Corporation department, where she worked as a secretary.

"Then I went up to his apartment a few times—I went up there for dinner."

"He called me every night just to talk to me and insisted on seeing me."

"Mr. Cullinan told my sister," the secretary said, "that he was going to marry me." A Catholic priest and friend of the Strittmatter family was asked to perform the service.

"But I said," Miss Strittmatter related, "you're married; a Catholic priest can't marry us." But he said he'd get all the papers to prove that his divorce from Mrs. Cullinan was all in order."

General Motors Elevates Sloan, Widens Powers

Is Named Board Chairman; Management Divided Into 2 Groups.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 3.—Directors of the General Motors Corporation today adopted a new plan for executive control of the vast organization, giving highest administrative power to Alfred P. Sloan, jr., named chairman to replace Lammot du Pont, who declined re-election.

William S. Knudsen, prominent in the negotiations leading up to settlement of the recent General Motors strike, was elevated from the executive vice presidency to the presidency, highest administrative office until today's revision of control.

A dividend of $1 a share was declared, payable June 12 to stock of record May 15. In the preceding quarter 25 cents was paid.

Policy Committee Named.

The new plan of organization for the executive personnel was designed to broaden distribution of work. A policy committee was established to handle questions of broad corporation policy involving financial operations.

In addition, an administration committee was established to have complete charge of the administration of the business and in collaboration with the policy committee to develop forward operating policies.

Other officers elected included: Donaldson Brown, vice chairman; Marvin E. Coyle, general manager of Chevrolet Motor division, and Floyd O. Tanner, vice presidents, the latter to deal with labor relationships as a member of the general staff.

Mr. Sloan becomes chairman of both the policy and the administration committees. Directors named to the policy committee were Donaldson Brown, Albert Bradley, Walter S. Carpenter, jr., Lammot du Pont, William S. Knudsen, Alfred P. Sloan, jr., John Thomas Smith, George Whitney, O. E. Wilson. On the administration committee will be Albert Bradley, Lawrence P. Fisher, R. H. Grant, O. E. Hunt, William S. Knudsen, James E. Mooney, C. E. Wilson, R. K. Evans, F. O. Tanner and Alfred P. Sloan, jr.

Management in Two Groups.

In a statement given out after the session, one of the longest the directors have held in many months, the board said:

"The new plan (of organization) now adopted is based upon the conviction that the broader problems of management divide themselves into two groups, one involving policy and the second administration of policy. Experience has demonstrated that these two functions have become quite separate in character—sufficiently so to permit them to be dealt with, to an important degree, independently.

"Experience has also shown that owing to pressure under which the corporation's executives operate the demands of administration limit the opportunity for the effective development of advanced policies, particularly as there is evolved in their evolution much study and research. While the success of the corporation will always depend upon effective administration, the policy phase is becoming, through evolution, of greater and greater importance.

"It is for that reason that the new organization has been set up, having in mind a broader distribution of the executive load, thus permitting the concentration of greater executive attention on that phase of business."

came out unfavorably, several amendments would be necessary, and even amendments to amendments—movements that can easily be blocked or defeated by legislative strategy.

Senator Edward R. Burke (Democrat), Nebraska, spoke highly of the Hatch amendment in committee, he told reporters, and informed them that he had "put the question to Chairman Ashurst, whether the Administration would consent to consider such a proposal. Ashurst said no," Burke added. He stated that he had made the suggestion in order "to smoke out the Administration on a compromise."

At the other end of the Capitol, the charge of "unconstitutionality" was used for the first time against the proposed six-judge increase. Representative Samuel B. Pettingill (Democrat), Indiana, said the plan would delegate power to individual members of the court to fix the extent of the increase.

Pettengill said this was not only a delegation of legislative power, but a delegation of that power to judges over 70, eligible to retire.

Stricter 'Loan Shark' Law in D. C. Proposed

Indicating the "loan shark" law as "inoperative because it has no teeth," Elwood Seal, corporation counsel, yesterday declared he would attempt to have a new law enacted at this session of Congress. His office, he said, "has been flooded with complaints against both alleged sharks and procurers."

The bill Seal will propose would license "loan procurers," force them to furnish bond and provide for their prosecution.

2 Industrialists Deny Charges Of 'Wash' Sales

DuPont and Raskob Sold Stocks to Halt Panic, Defense Says.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 3.—Pierre S. duPont and John J. Raskob, two of the Nation's leading industrialists, defended themselves today against Government charges that they established losses for income tax purposes through fictitious stock sales. They asserted through counsel the transactions were "legitimate and honorable."

Their lawyers said the trading, accomplished in the hectic days of 1929, was done to keep from forcing the market down.

DuPont and Raskob appeared before the United States Board of Tax Appeals, accompanied by a dozen or so attorneys to fight a contention that duPont owes $617,316 and Raskob $1,026,340 on their 1929 tax.

James S. Y. Ivins, of Washington, chief counsel for duPont, stated his client's position in the civil action for collection of the tax, saying he agreed with the Government's contention except on two points.

No Re-purchase Plan.

"We stipulate all of it except two points," he told Richard L. Disney, a member of the United States Board of Tax Appeals, who presided.

"The stock sales were legitimate and there was never at any time any agreement for re-purchase."

Business associates for many years and joint leaders in the organization of the American Liberty League, Raskob and duPont sat together in one corner of the room in the old Federal Building. It was expected the duPont case would last several days, and be followed by the Raskob case.

Stacks of letters, a packing case and sheafs of checks were brought in for exhibits.

Chief Counsel Mason B. Leming, of the United States Bureau of Internal Revenue, opened the case by charging that in 1929 duPont and Raskob entered into an agreement to sell certain stocks to each other and to buy them back later at the same price.

Charges "Wash" Sales.

He said the industrialists sold the stocks back and forth—known in financial circles as "wash" sales—at below market prices to establish deductible losses for their income tax returns.

The stocks included those of General Motors—a firm in which both men are heavily interested—Anaconda Copper, Warner Brothers, National Cash Register, Checker Cab, and Otis Elevator.

Leming said evidence would show that on November 15, 1929, a check for $4,606,000 signed by duPont was deposited to the credit of Raskob, and that simultaneously a $4,582,750 check signed by Raskob was deposited to duPont's account.

"The evidence will show that Mr. Raskob at that time didn't have sufficient funds on hand to cover the check," he said.

Tried to Stop Panic.

"But the checks met at the bank and the evidence will show that these coincidences or facts—that is, the checks meeting at the bank—occurred four or five times."

Ivins explained that Raskob and duPont had "losing positions" in certain blocks of stocks and sold them to each other to avoid dumping them on the market in an attempt to "sustain the market and stop the panic."

The sales established heavy losses for both men which were deducted in their 1929 tax returns. The blocks were repurchased in January, 1930, and because of the rising market both Raskob and duPont realized a profit on the purchases.

"This was a perfectly legitimate transaction," said Ivins. "Mr. duPont and Mr. Raskob made these sales to each other to keep from forcing the market down further. It was not only a legitimate transaction but honorable.

"At no time was there an agreement between the parties to repurchase the blocks of stock. All of the sales were made at the risk of the market and there was never any agreement."

Tried to Protest Attack on Burlesque

VIRGINIA JONES, strip-tease artist, of New York, trying to phone Wilbur La Roe, jr., to tell him that he is wrong about burlesque.

Reformers Are Jealous, Says Strip-Artiste on Capital Visit

N. Y. Burlesque Queen Foiled in Attempt to Protest Church Drive; Assails Cardinal Hayes, Rabbi Wise; Jimmy Lake Defends 'Art.'

scene painters, front-of-the-house men, movie operators, ushers, cleaners, stagehands, electricians and comics will all be forced out of work, along with the strip-women by the reformers. It seems to me there is a national conspiracy against us, with all the cities in the land following the leadership of New York."

Church-Theater War.

"My personal opinion," she remarked, "is that people aren't patronizing the churches because the theaters are drawing them away, and Cardinal Hayes and Rabbi Wise and all the others are sore and struck back at us this way. It's a terrible situation."

Miss Jones, unable to reach LaRoe in his offices, telephoned the Rev. W. L. Darby, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, but he likewise was not at home and could not be reached. The strip-tease lady, who lived for one year in Washington, married to a local fight promoter, she said, returned to New York last night to attend a mass meeting of unemployed burlesquers today.

James Lake, known on Ninth street as the colonel, proprietor of Washington's only burlesque house, defended his business by saying:

"Do you suppose I'd let 'em use the lines on my stage they used in "Tobacco Road"? Never. If I used the same stuff here they used in "Dead End" the whole fire and police departments would be in on me, including the Silver Spring force."

"Pure Filth," Not "Art."

"But that!" he exclaimed in what seemed to be disgust, "is 'art.' Art, baloney. It's pure filth. But in my little temple of fun here everybody picks on me. It's hypocrisy, that's what it is. Hypocrisy is the keynote of reform.

"Now I give the illusion of nudity on my stage, but as a matter of fact there is no nudity. I wear X-ray blue brassieres and trunks." (Col. Lake has a way of speaking of his theater and its employes in the first person.)

Jumping to his feet, he opened a trapdoor from his office which gave a view of the distant stage.

"I look nude out there," he stated, "but just come back-stage and I'll show you how nude I am." Suiting his words to action, he went backstage and showed one of his strip-tease ladies at close view. She was wearing a small brassiere and what is technically known as a "G-string"—a delicate strip of beaded lace which ornamented her hips. Underneath was a pair of almost invisible net tights.

Holmes a Customer.

"Look at those tights!" ejaculated Lake. "They're as heavy as a set of draperies from the old Cosmos Theater. I wear heavy brassieres and heavy tights.

Col. Lake then went on to tell of the famous people who patronized his house, starting with the name of the late Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes. He said a bishop was a regular customer, and named several Senators, Representatives and attaches who came there not omitting a clergyman who came one evening and suddenly remembered he was wearing a reversible collar and took it off in the midst of the performance, much to the amusement of the comedians onstage.

"Those men are red-blooded, blue-blooded men," he said. "A lot of people when they're caught coming into my place explain to friends that they're out 'slumming.' But they're not slumming—they like it and are afraid to admit it. But I do say this, that burlesque should stay in its own province and not move into residential districts as they did in New York. How would it be for me to move into the Belasco across from the White House? Not on your life. Ninth street is where I belong and Ninth street is where I stay, and nobody is going to close my show, because it's clean—cleaner than some of the movies, and cleaner than some of the big revues."

Sees Local Shows as Clean.

Replying to LaRoe, Arthur R. John, president of the Burlesque Critics Association of America and head of its local "circle," yesterday said:

"It is regrettable that Mr. LaRoe should be so prompt in his association of shows playing the local burlesque theater with the type of entertainment in New York. * * *

"Jimmy Lake, operator of the Gayety, has striven sedulously for decency in his shows, revamping the I. B. A. offerings, holding 'strip' members to a minimum and making certain that they would not offend. The high percentage of women who attend performances at the Gayety attest to his success in this respect."

Jordan Is Denied Stay of Execution By Justice Letts

Justice F. Dickinson Letts yesterday refused to issue an order to stay the execution of Thomas Jordan, former busboy convicted of the murder of Mrs. Elizabeth S. Jaynes. Jordan is scheduled to die in the District electric chair May 14.

Justice Letts, however, said he would give further consideration to the application for a stay, which was made by John M. Holzworth, the condemned man's attorney.

Holzworth on Friday asked the United States Court of Appeals to issue an order requiring Justice Letts or some justice of the District Court to grant a new trial to Jordan on the grounds that newly discovered evidence would clear him.

Holzworth contends the evidence would show that Mrs. Jaynes' slayer was tall and fair. Jordan is short and dark. The attorney said this evidence was suppressed at the trial last year.

In an answer to Holzworth's application, Assistant United States Attorney Roger Robb said the courts had lost jurisdiction.

He said the new evidence consisted of a police report.

Harlan Miners Describe New Reign of Terror

Say Operators Renewing War on Union; Deputy in Murder Car Identified.

with Frank White one time. I was there when the Sergent boys shot up the sheriff's uncle, old Tid Middleton, and Frank White gassed him after they'd shot him.

"I was in Judge Morris Saylor's court, on the witness stand, to tell what I knowed, when they let Frank White come in the courtroom door with a gun in his hand, and so I didn't say anything."

"Had Hand on Gun."

"He had his coat back and his gun in his right-hand pants pocket and his hand on the gun. He stood right there and looked at me, and I didn't say anything about him while I was on the stand."

"Did he make any threatening motions?" asked Chairman La Follette.

"No. He just looked at me," said Fox.

Elmer Gilbert, an earnest young miner in a lumberjack coat and blue denim overalls, then approached the stand, saying:

"I beg your pardon, but it's against my religion to swear an oath. I will tell the truth."

Gilbert, who said he would "be 27 years old, the sixth day this June coming," told how miners at one of Bassham's mines, the Red Bud, did 12 hours work daily, but were paid for only eight. A local union of the United Mine Workers was organized there April 26, and on April 27, last Tuesday, Bassham's foreman, James Cawood, fired all union men, and about 90 per cent of the workers, the witness said.

"Raffle" Described.

Then James Fugate, another of Bassham's miners, employed for 13 years in the Molus mine, said he had been discharged last week for union activities. He also exhibited a pay slip.

La Follette, curious about an item of deduction from Fugate's pay, asked him the meaning of a notation, "Chances, $1."

Fugate sent the packed room into roars of laughter as he related that Bassham's practice is to raffle off chances on an automobile "two or three times a month," with the money for the chances automatically deducted from the workers' pay slips. The prize, he said, "was supposed to be a new Ford V-8 that Mr. Bassham driv a little while, but when it came it was an old trap—a used Ford sedan of about 1929."

Check-Weighman Denied.

Even Bassham smiled wryly as the witness described these automatic raffles, and La Follette, laughing, said:

"I thought the open shop operators were opposed to the check-off system."

Fugate said: "Hell, we can't even get a check-weighman." (A check-weighman is a union man who checks the weight of coal mined by each man against the company records, when miners are paid by the ton. Most Harlan operators will not allow this, testimony has shown, and union proposals to install check-weighmen at each mine have been the source of many of the bitterest disputes.)

"Get Shet of Union."

Fugate told the committee Grant Saylor, "brother of the county judge, Morris Saylor, come over to my house 'tother day and says, 'I want you to cut out this union stuff. We goin' to get shet of you union fellas in this county or else.'"

Garrett Fugate, his brother, also testified, telling the committee his brother's union activities had cost him his job, too, although he was an assistant foreman of 18 years' experience. Roy Kilgore, the last witness, testified of a threat by "Mistress S. E. Bennett," owner of the Bonita mine, last week. "Mistress Bennett said 'Befo' I recognize the union I'll close up the mine doors and nail 'em shut,'" said the slight, boyish witness.

Sues for $75,468.

William E. Norris, a salesman, yesterday brought suit in District Court against the Art Metal Construction Co., for a commission of $75,468.75 for the sale of equipment to the Social Security Board. He claimed to have sold the board material worth $285,250, on which he was due a commission which he had not been paid.

Murder Witness Tells All

Scheme to Oust Hoover Heard At Parker Trial

By the United Press.

Newark, N. J., May 3.—The story of an alleged plan to capture the Vice Presidency of the United States and to turn J. Edgar Hoover out of his job as head of the G-men was told today in the trial of Ellis H. Parker, most famous country detective in the world, on charges of kidnaping.

It was told by United States Attorney John J. Quinn in his opening statements in Federal court, where Parker and his son, Ellis, jr., bore the entire burden of the Government's attempt to prove that a conspiracy existed to kidnap Paul H. Wendel, a Trenton attorney.

This kidnaping, the Government charged, was designed to cast doubt on the guilt of Bruno Richard Hauptman and to save him from being executed as the murderer of Charles A. Lindbergh jr.

The codefendants of the Parkers—Harry Weiss, Murray Bleefeld and Martin Schlossman — abruptly pleaded guilty today, leaving the Burlington County detective and his son alone at the bar of justice.

The United States attorney immediately began his speech to the jury, and before he had spoken many words he had brought in the name of Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey. It was a strange opening statement—like something out of a detective magazine—involving a medieval torture box where men disguised in false whiskers allegedly "burned" out of Wendel a confession that he, and not Hauptmann, committed the crime on Sourland Mountain in the first week of March, 1932.

Quinn said the Government would prove that Parker, who has a remarkable record for the solution of homicide cases in his county, had drawn Bleefeld into the conspiracy by telling him that Gov. Hoffman was going to emerge from the affair as Vice President of the United States—a hero who solved the Lindbergh kidnaping.

Baldness Starts at These Three Points

HEED THESE WARNINGS

When your hair begins to recede at the (1) temples, (2) crown, or (3) frontal, Nature is painlessly warning you that some serious scalp ailment is attacking your hair, and baldness is surely approaching. Heed these positive warnings and let The Thomas' save your hair with their reliable proved scalp treatment.

BALDNESS is not caused by sleeping in short beds or damp churches. Nor is it inherited. More than 85% of all cases of baldness are caused by one or more of the 14 local scalp disorders which come within the scope of Thomas treatment. Therefore, there is really no reason why you should become bald or remain bald.

Thomas treatment effectively overcomes the causes of baldness, ends dandruff, stops abnormal hairfall and promotes hair growth quickly and inexpensively. You have nothing to do at home, nothing to worry about. A Thomas expert determines exactly which scalp disorders are attacking your hair-growing structure, eliminates them, and stimulates hair growth. Call today at a Thomas office for a complete scalp examination. It costs you nothing and you are not obligated in any way.

Critic Opposes Pulitzer Group On Play Award

Favors Anderson's 'High Tor' Instead; Another Lauds Literary Choices.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 3.—Burns Mantle, dramatic critic of the New York Daily News, who last year took issue with the Pulitzer drama award, said tonight the committee had deviated from its policy of choosing plays of "serious consequence and significance in the theater" in its selections announced tonight.

Speaking over a Nation-wide broadcast, immediately after the award of the drama prize, Mantle said:

"I hesitate a bit to say that I do not agree entirely with the Pulitzer committee. I think the play chosen for a first prize should have more distinction in writing, be a little more of serious consequence and significance in the theater."

The committee, he said, probably "was swayed by the fact that this is a comedy year in the theater" and he expressed the opinion that the Drama Critics Circle prize play, Maxwell Anderson's "High Tor," "will be remembered many years after the very delightful comedy, 'You Can't Take It With You,' is remembered only as a chuckle."

Harry Hansen, literary critic of the New York World Telegram, said "it is certain, a treat to look down this list and see that recognition has been given to so many fine writers."

"Gone With the Wind," by Margaret Mitchell, Hansen described as "absolutely the logical book for the Pulitzer prize," and Van Wyck Brooks' "Flowering of New England" as a "remarkable history."

Hansen ranked Allan Nevins' "Hamilton Fish" with the author's previous Pulitzer prize biography of Grover Cleveland.

In recognizing Frost's "A Further Range," Hansen said the committee had once more honored "that distinguished American poet who is without doubt one of the three or four great poets of our generation."

Among the Winners.

John J. O'Neill, sharer of the reporting prize began career not as cub reporter, but as publisher of his own newspaper at Freeport, Long Island, then was managing editor Long Island Daily Press, science, Sunday and makeup editor of Brooklyn Daily Eagle, and joined the staff of the New York Herald Tribune in 1934 to become science editor. He is 46.

Anne O'Hare McCormick, foreign correspondent—Contributor to New York Times since 1922, and became a member ofthe paper's editorial staff last summer, the first woman to win that distinction. A native of Cleveland, she was once included by Carrie Chapman Catt in a list of the Nation's ten greatest women. Studied at St. Mary's College, Columbus, Ohio, and received an LL.D. at the University of Dayton. Began newspaper career as a free lance in Italy, following Mussolini closey when few took his career seriously. Returned recently from tour of European capitals, and has interviewed most of the world's leaders. Is author of a book on the Soviet, "Hammer and Scythe."

C. D. Batchelor, cartoonist—Born at Osage City, Kans., on April Fool's Day, 1888, and for years a human interest sketcher for the old New York Evening Post. Cartoonist with the New York Daily News for the last five years, his work attracting considerable national attention durmg the last Presidential campaign.

Transatlantic Air Service May Start Next Week

St. Johns, Newfoundland, May 3 (AP).—Regular transatlantic airplane passenger and mail service between Europe and North America may be started next week.

Tiny Botwood, a hamlet of 400 persons, 150 miles northwest of St. Johns, will be the North American landing point. Start of the service within the next week depends on whether the ice is out of Botwood Harbor by that time.

British Imperial and Pan-American Airways are to make the experimental flights under arrangements reached by the United States Department of Commerce with Canada, Ireland and Great Britain.

With both New York and London as terminals, the ships will stop off in Ireland and at Botwood. Between Newfoundland and New York, two routes have been arranged, one via Montreal, the other via Shediac, New Brunswick.

In winter months the northern route would be abandoned. A southern path across the Atlantic would be followed, planes touching Bermuda and the Azores.

New Suit Is Filed Against Mae West

Los Angeles, May 3, (AP).—Frank Wallace brought his claims against Mae West to California today, filing suit in Superior Court on the contention he married the screen star April 17, 1911, in Milwaukee. He asked the court to determine the validity of the marriage and define the rights of himself and Miss West.

The actress shrugged when told of the suit. "I have nothing to say until my lawyer sees me," she declared.

Florida Nuptial Bills.

Tallahassee, Fla., May 3 (AP).—Bills to curb heart balm suits, prevent child marriages and slow down hasty weddings won Senate committee approval today.

Civil War and reconstruction around Atlanta.

Moss Hart shared with George S. Kaufman, a previous Pulitzer winner, the writing of "You Can't Take It With You," whose lines preach a philosophy of doing the thing people enjoy doing most—no matter what happens.

Robert Frost, 62-year-old native of San Francisco, received his third Pulitzer award, his "A Further Range," being selected as the year's outstanding volume of verse. He was among the Pulitzer winners of 1924 and 1930.

The committee selected as the best newspaper cartoon of 1936 a graphic drawing by C. D. Batchelor, of the New York Daily News, entitled "Come on in, I'll treat you right. I used to know your daddy."

It showed a robe-draped, brazen woman with a death face, labeled "War," attempting to lure a stalwart young man called "Any European Youth" into a brothel.

Anne O'Hare McCormick, European correspondent for the New York Times, was the first woman to be named winner of the Pulitzer award for correspondents.

The $500 award for distinguished service as a foreign or Washington correspondent was voted to Miss O'Hare McCormick, of the New York Times, for her dispatches and feature articles from Europe in 1936.

The $1,000 award for a distinguished example of reporters' work during the year was shared by five reporters, John J. O'Neill, of the New York Herald-Tribune; William L. Laurence, of the New York Times; Howard W. Blakeslee, of the Associated Press; Gobind Behari Lal, of the Universal Service, and David Dietz, of the Scripps Howard newspapers.

They were awarded the prize for their coverage of the Harvard tercentenary celebration last year.

Baltimore Writer Honored.

The $500 award for distinguished editorial writing during the year went to John W. Owens, editor of the Baltimore Sun.

On nomination of the teaching staff of the Graduate School of Journalism, Columbia University, the following received traveling scholarships, valued at $1,500 each.

Richard T. Baker, of Cedar Falls, Iowa; Fred J. Pannwitt, of Nokomis, Ill., and Robert W. Root, of Ames, Iowa. Alternates were Jack Steele, of Rockaway, N. J.; Elizabeth Ryan, of South Hadley, Mass., and Vance Packard, of State College, Pennsylvania.

The annual scholarship of $1,500 to the student of music deemed most talented went to Ross Lee Finney, of Smith College, Mass., and the $1,500 scholarship in art was awarded to David P. Swasey, of New York City.

Newspapers Cited.

In the field of journalism the following received honorary mention:

The Providence Journal and the Evening Bulletin (Rhode Island), for a research study of direct and indirect taxes based upon a year's detailed expenditures of three families of working people, revealing that taxes take 14.74 cents out of every dollar spent.

The Cleveland Press (Ohio) for its exposure by news, editorials and cartoons of a cemetery racket.

The Atlanta Journal (Georgia) for its campaign by news, editorials and radio to end corruption and inefficiency in the police department.

W. W. Waymack, associate editor of the Des Moines Register and Tribune, for distinguished editorial writing during the year.

John Francis Knott, of the Dallas (Tex.) News, for his cartoon on dust storms, entitled "Nature's Answer."

Quincy Scott, of the Portland Oregonian, for his cartoon entitled "East Side, West Side, All Around the Town," depicting Alfred E. Smith waltzing with the Republican elephant.

William Allen White, of the Emporia (Kans.) Gazette, and Walter Lippmann, of the New York Herald Tribune, were announced at the meeting as new members of the advisory board of the Graduate School of Journalism, replacing the late Marlen Pew and Rollo Ogden.

Mr. Owens, who won the editorial writing award, was the only winner at the dinner. Telegrams were sent to other winners.

Of its award to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch—the coveted $500 newspaper medal of honor—the Pulitzer committee said, "By a coordinated news, editorial and cartoon campaign this newspaper succeeded in invalidating upward of 40,000 fraudulent ballots last November, and brought about the appointment of a new election board."

Presentation of wards wil be at the 1937 commencement of the School of Journalism.

The committee did not disclose what editorials of the year won a prize for Owens, of the Baltimore Sun, or honorable mention for Waymack, of the Des Moines Register and Tribune. The selections, said the committee, were made because of "distinguished editorial writing during the year."

Winners of the three journalistic scholarships, selected "because they passed their examinations with highest honors and are otherwise most deserving," will receive $1,500 each "to enable each of them to spend a year abroad to study the social, political and moral conditions of the people and the character and principles of the foreign press."

Awards Total $15,500.

The teaching staff of the Institute of Musical Art joined with the staff of Columbia's department of music in nominating Finney as the student of music "who may be deemed the most talented and deserving." His award also will go toward study in Europe.

The National Academy of Design certified Swasey as "the most promising and deserving."

Winners of the awards were determined at a meeting of the trustees, acting upon recomendations of the advisory board of the School of Journalism.

The Pulitzer prizes, first awarded in 1917, represent a maximum annual total of $15,500, including a $500 gold medal for the most disinterested and meritorious public service rendered by an American newspaper; a $500 award for distinguished service by a foreign or Washington correspondent; a $500 award for distinguished editorial writing; a $1,000 award for a distinguished example of a reporter's work during the year; a $500 award for a distinguished example of a newspaper cartoonist's work; awards of $1,000 each for a distinguished novel, an original American play, a distinguished book on the history of the United States, a distinguished American biography, and a distinguished volume of verse.

New York, April 3 (AP).—Pulitzer prize winners in brief:

Margaret Mitchell, novelist—Four feet 11 inches; former reporter for the Atlanta Journal; started writing "Gone With the Wind" after a facetious remark by her husband that she had better start writing a novel herself because she had exhausted the library fiction supply during a three-year period of invalidism after an accident. Steeped in Civil War lore, she turned naturally to that field to depict, in her monumental work, the survival of a high-spirited Southern woman in the reconstruction period.

George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart—Authors of "You Can't Take It With You;" Kaufman, most widely known to nontheater followers as the man beloved in Mary Astor's diary, actually was already author of some 15 hit plays, and he and Morrie Ryskind won the Pulitzer award in 1932 for "Of Thee I Sing." He was born in Pittsburgh in 1889, and was established as a playwright by the early 1920's. Hart was born in New York in 1904; married the former Lillian Solomon and got his start with Auguste Pitou, becoming an established librettist and author with "The Hold-Up Man," "Jonica," "Face the Music" and "As Thousands Cheer."

Brooks Served as Editor.

Van Wyck Brooks, winner of distinguished book award—51 years old and a native of Plainfield, N. J., was graduated from Harvard in 1907, and taught at Leland Stanford University, but turned quickly to criticism and essay writing, publishing numerous books, interspersed with magazine contributions and periods of magazine editing, including the editorship of the Freeman. Received the 1923 Dial $2,000 prize for the leading contribution to letters in that year.

Robert Frost, poetry award—His third Pulitzer winners, having won in 1924 and 1930. He is 62, and a native of San Francisco. Studied at Harvard and Dartmouth, and has taught at Pinkerton Academy, Derry, N. H., the New Hampshire State Normal and Amherst.

Allan Nevins, for biography—Another repeater, his "Grover Cleveland—Study in Courage," having taken the award in 1932. Age 47, a native of Camp Point, Ill. he studied at the University of Illnois and Columbia University, becoming an English instructor at the University of Illinois and at New York University, editorial writer for the New York Evening Post, and for The Nation, literary editor of the New York Sun, a member of the New York World staff, a professor of history at Cornell, and an associate and a professor of history at Columbia.

In Washington Bureau.

John Whitfield Owens, for editorial writing—Born in Arundel County, Md., 52 years ago, studied at Johns Hopkins, began newspaper work with Baltimore Evening Sun in 1911, and was Sun political reporter 1913-20, and a member of the Sun's Washington bureau 1920-24, London correspondent 1924-26, editorial writer 1926-27, when he became editor.

Gobind Behari Lal, reporter—Born at Delhi, India, 45 years ago, the son of the Governor of Bikaneer State. Studied at Punjab University, University of California, Columbia University and various British universities. Has done scientific research throughout Europe and has been science editor of the New York American and Universal Service for many years. Author of two books, "Science and Polity in India" and "The Chemistry of Personality."

William L. Laurence—Science reporter for the New York Times. Expatriated from Russia after a blood purge of revolutionaries in 1905, at the age of 27, came to America, worked in sweatshops for a living, and in drug stores and other establishments while obtaining an education at Harvard and Boston University, later working on Boston newspapers. Served in A. E. F. and returned to Harvard to study law, joined the staff of the old New York World in 1926, going to the Times in 1930.

Started as Publisher.

Howard W. Blakeslee, a sharer of the reportorial coverage award—former divisional news editor for the Associated Press in the Central and Eastern divisions, became the press association's first science editor in 1927, when the department was established. Holds honorary degrees for his work from University of Michigan and Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Awarded fellowship by American Institute "for his contributions to man's fuller understanding of the world in which he lives."

HOW ONE WOMAN LOST UGLY FAT

Lost Her Double Chin
Lost Her Prominent Hips
Lost Her Sluggishness
Gained in Physical Vigor
Gained in Vivaciousness
Gained a Shapely Figure

Many a woman has spent hundreds of dollars on fads and fancies trying to reduce, while others by sensible eating—and the Kruschen common sense method have taken off many pounds of ugly fat for a few cents.

Take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water first thing every morning and cut down on fat meats, butter, cream and rich pastries—in 3 weeks get on the scales and note how many pounds of fat have vanished.

Hundreds of satisfied users call this the Kruschen Way.

Notice also that you have gained in energy—your skin is clearer—your eyes sparkle. The Kruschen way has given many a fat person a joyous surprise.

A 4-oz. bottle of Kruschen lasts weeks and costs but a few cents—if this first bottle doesn't convince you that the Kruschen Way is the easy, safe way to lose fat—if you don't feel a superb improvement in health—vigorously alive—years younger—your money gladly returned.

spending would exceed revenue by $418,000,000, he reminded his hearers, adding:

"So it appears that after recovery has taken place, instead of following the policy of a prudent individual, paying our way and saving an amount to reduce the debt incurred during the emergency, we are going to add to the debt which is now approximately $35,000,000,000."

Bond Question Raised.

He pointed out that if Congress doesn't cut spending this session, there would be little chance next year—an election year. And he asked why a citizen should buy securities of a Government that continually increases its debt, when it can buy tax-free bonds of States or cities "living within their incomes."

Byrnes said there was "no excuse for any alarm," but stated:

"If the time comes when banks and investors fail to purchase the bonds of the United States Government, where will the Government secure the funds with which to operate? When there are less purchasers, will that cause a decrease in the price of our bonds? If so, what effect will that decrease have upon the banks of the Nation? As more than $17,000,000,000 of bonds are held by banks, a decrease of five points would mean a loss to the banks of $850,000,000. Bank deposits are insured, but the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation which insures the deposits has its funds invested in Government bonds and notes."

The South Carolinian said a choice must be made between expense slashing or higher taxes, and the tax choice lies in lowering income tax brackets. He favored budget trimming instead.

He argued his plan to cut relief appropriations to $1,000,000,000, and require local communities to put up half of the cost of WPA projects where able, would actually double the amount available for relief.

And he denied an economy "breach between the President and Congress."

"We have the same objective and can settle any differences as to method," he said.

Meantime, Works Progress Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, speaking in Jackson, Miss., said States and cities will be expected to put up more money for relief in 1938, but their ability to do so "will be taken into consideration."

"It naturally follows that we cannot expect too much of a State or city where real estate is practically the sole tax base for support of social security," the Associated Press quoted Hopkins as saying. "Real estate is already taxed heavily enough in most cities and States."

Byrnes had pointed out that local communities had put only 13 per cent of the cost of WPA projects and denied they were generally unable to pay more.

Coal Tar Product May Save Planes Forced Into Sea

Paris, May 3 (AP).—Georges Claude tonight reported to the Academy of Sciences the discovery of a method to increase the chances of rescuing transocean air travelers in case of forced descent.

By using fluorescein, a coal tar product highly colorful in solution, Claude said the point where an airplane descended could be made visible easily at long distances.

The chemical would be released by an airplane when it came down on water.

Twenty-two pounds of fluorescein, placed on rolling Mediterranean seas by two French submarines in experiments, marked an area nearly 300 yards square.

the best coat of tan that Austria has produced this season.

Before leaving Appesbach, he cheerfully posed for photographers, smiling broadly and joking with newspapermen.

As evidence of his enthusiasm and eagerness to leave, he told Louis Matzhold, Associated Press correspondent, that:

"I bet I could beat you up the mountain!"

The former King Edward VIII, who told the world last December in a dramatic farewell broadcast that he could not go on "without the woman I Love," as usual kept his counsel about his immediate plans.

Persons close to him, however, said he and his future bride intend to reside after a few weeks in southern Austria.

Shunned Night Clubs.

The past months have been trying ones for the duke, although he has sought diversion in many ways—through mountain climbing, sightseeing, skiing, golfing, shopping, learning German and motoring.

He never visited a night club, although on previous visits to Austria he showed a fondness for them.

Money matters bothered him, and his brother, the Duke of Kent, and his sister came, with others, to talk over finances.

He was reported to have made certain promises in return for several concessions, among them that members of the British royal family attend the approaching wedding.

Absolute Decree Granted.

London, May 3 (A).—Wallis Warfield Simpson won today a decree of absolute divorce from the ship's broker who was her second husband and thereby became free to begin her third marital adventure with former King Edward.

Just 25 seconds in London divorce court were required to end the six months probationary period which began last October 27 when the American born woman obtained a decree nisi from Ernest Aldrich Simpson.

There were dull, quiet and anticlimatic disinterest among the eight women and two men who watched from the gallery as the court wrote finis to the divorce case which created an empire crisis.

The bewigged presiding judge, Sir Boyd Merriman, glanced owlishly about the courtroom.

"Is there any intervention?" he asked the court clerk who presented 78 divorce cases on the docket.

Silence and Sir Boyd nodded.

"I pronounce the decrees absolute."

Mrs. Simpson's smiling attorney, Walter Frampton, sped to a telephone to advise Mrs. Simpson at her chateau retreat in Monts, France.

Now Free to Marry.

The lovers are free to marry now whenever they choose, but a spokesman for Mrs. Simpson insisted that the wedding would await the passing of the coronation of King George VI, brother-successor to the duke-former King.

Meanwhile elaborate plans went ahead for the coronation, the coronation originally intended for Edward, May 12.

King George and Queen Elizabeth returned to Buckingham Palace after week-ending at Windsor Castle, to the cheers of crowds listening to records used in testing loudspeakers outside the palace in preparations for next week's coronation broadcast.

The India contingent arrived aboard the troopship Neuralia, 1,000 strong and representative of the defense service in the Indian Empire and Burma.

In Parliament, the Commons civil list committee recommended a $30,000 annual grant for 11-year-old Princess Elizabeth, heiress presumptive to the British throne.

Recommended grants to the royal family totaled $2,050,000, but there was no mention of the self-exiled duke, who was expected to receive a private allowance from his brothers.

Records Go to France.

Winchester, Va., May 3 (A).—The birth certificate "and other information" concerning Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson, fiancee of Edward, Duke of Windsor, has been forwarded to France by a Winchester physician in response to an emergency demand form French officials for "convincing proof" of the date and place of Mrs. Simpson's birth, it was learned today.

In response to the request, Dr. Lewis M. Allen forwarded through French authorities in Baltimore an affidavit that he attended her mother when Wallis was born, June 19, 1896.

Mrs. Simpson was divorced today in England, leaving her legally free to wed the Duke of Windsor. Whether the French request for information indicated another move has been made to prevent the marriage of the lovers whose romance rocked an empire was not made clear.

At the time of Wallis' birth at Monterey, Pa., Dr. Allen was a young practicing physician in Baltimore. He went to the Blue Ridge Mountain resort at the request of the Warfield family physician, who had been called away on another mission.

Gross Receipts Levy of 1 Pct. Sought for City

Corporation Tax Would Net $6,000,000 Yearly, Hazen Claims.

corporation tax plan, the Commissioners will drop their contemplated sales tax on tobacco, Hazen said, as tobacco retailers and wholesalers will be affected by the general levy.

The corporation tax plan is divided into two parts. First, all persons doing business for profit in the National Capital will be required to register with a proper authority, as yet undesignated, and pay a fee of $5. This procedure must be repeated yearly.

The all-embracing definition will cover professional as well as business men, according to Richmond B. Keech, chairman of a sub-committee of District officials that drafted the proposal.

Second, all corporations must file an annual report, which will form the basis for the 1 per cent tax on gross receipts. A minimum tax will be specified, although that has not yet been fixed.

Specific exemptions will be made, however, for types of business or professional men whose gross receipts can not be calculated easily. Under this exemption would come doctors, lawyers, brokers, salesmen, contractors and a host of others.

These exempted classes will then be taxed on the basis of a scaled license system, applied to each class in accordance with ranges of income.

The Commissioners' corporation tax proposal is much more far-reaching than that provided in the Collins bill now before the Kennedy sub-committee. District officials believe it will raise considerably more money, as even Representative Collins estimates that all his nine tax measures will not raise more than $7,000,000.

The Collins privilege tax plan consists of fees based upon the corporation's capital stock and surplus.

As for the Commissioners' inheritance tax bill, it levies a 1 per cent tax on estates under $100,000, save for specified exemptions. This revenue would go entirely to the District.

In addition, the District would collect, as provided in the Collins bill, 80 per cent of the Federal taxes on all District estates.

Exemptions include deductions of $20,000 for the widow, $10,000 for the husband, $2,000 for brother or sister, and $5,000 for any child.

Hazen estimated that the tax will raise $800,000 a year for the District.

Previous tax proposals made by the Commissioners are: an increase of 1 cent on gasoline, adding $1,100,000 to present revenue; a motor vehicle weight tax, $1,500,000; and a 2 per cent levy on insurance premium receipts, which would produce another $200,000 above present taxes.

The American Trucking Association yesterday filed a protest with the House District Committee against any diversion of gasoline taxes to support municipal expenses other than those of the highway department.

Doctor as Counselor Urged by Health Head

Richmond, Va., May 3 (A).—Dr. I. C. Riggin, State health commissioner, said today that the medical profession can be proud of the marked decrease in the death rate of children.

Dr. Riggin said that "what a child eats, how much rest it gets, the hours it spends regularly in the fresh air and sunshine, the clothing it wears, and many other factors are quite as important as are protection against smallpox, diphtheria and other essential preventive expedients.

"And it is in these highly personal requirements—requirements that need to be adapted to the individual child—that the family physician should be called upon to fill and thus render an invaluable service."

Baptist Group Studies Change In Constitution

Columbia Association Opens Meeting; Sen. Logan to Speak Tonight.

Preparatory to consideration today of a proposed new constitution which would change the Columbia Association of Baptist Churches into a "convention," with enlarged powers and scope, the sixtieth annual meeting of the organization opened in the Metropolitan Baptist Church, Sixth and A streets northeast, last night with a devotional service.

The annual sermon to the association was preached by the Rev. Clarence R. Ferguson, of Wisconsin Avenue Baptist Church, on the subject "By the Upper Room." The meeting was presided over by E. B. Shaver, moderator.

With morning, afternoon and evening sessions today and tomorrow, the association will receive reports ont activities and hear addresses by denominational leaders. Senator Logan, of Kentucky, who will speak at the meeting tonight, when reports on youn people's and Bible school work will be presented, will emphasize importance to men of taking part in Sunday school activities. Election of officers for the ensuing year will be held at today's sessions, letters from the churches read and reports presented from the advisory board, the Baptist Bible school, executive board, treasurer, executive secretary, the Baptist homes for children and for the aged, and from the committee on the new constitution.

In his annual sermon last night, Mr. Ferguson pointed to the need today of a renewed "manifestation of the spirit of Pentecost."

"If 24 per cent of the membership of our Baptist churches, as reported in 1936, should win 25 souls each in the year just before us," said Mr. Ferguson, "there would be 108,875 souls added to the churches of the Columbia Association of Baptist Churches within the next 12 months."

Book by Pontiff Accuses Reich Of Pact Breach

Compilation of Records to Be Issued If Hitler Increases Offenses.

By the Associated Press.

Castel Gandolfo, Italy, May 3.—Pope Pius is completing a "white book" to show that the German government and not the Vatican has violated the Catholic Church's concordat with the Reich, prelates said tonight.

The book, or compilation of documents and records, will be issued if Adolf Hitler's position toward the church "becomes more offensive," the prelates said.

One declared the church's position in Germany now was worse "than in Spain." He said priests were killed and churches burned in Spain, but a revival rather than a strangulation of the faith was produced.

He charged more subtle methods, such as economic pressure, were being used in Germany and said the church might be suffocated gradually.

Prelates said the Pope has suffered a setback in his convalescence. He received his secretary briefly, but granted no audiences today.

Eleven Catholics Jailed.

Berlin, May 3 (AP).—Eleven Catholic lay brothers were sent to jail today for terms ranging up to four years. One was sentenced to four years at Koblenz on charges of premeditated fatal assault; one was ordered jailed for three years at Paderborn on immorality charges, and a Bonn court sentenced six others on simliar counts to 7 and 18 months; three were jailed at Koblenz for aiding "immoral" brothers across German frontiers.

Bill to Re-establish Year's Residence Clause Is Passed

Re-establishment of the one-year residence requirement for all applicants for examination before the Civil Service Commission and clarification of requirements as to certification are provided in a bill passed by the Senate yesterday and sent to the White House.

The bill, which previously had passed the House, seeks to restore a residential requirement that was repealed by an act of 1929 and which reduced from one year to six months the period during which an applicant for a civil service examination must establish actual bona-fide residence.

Upon motion of Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, the Senate recommitted a bill increasing the quota of appointments to the Naval Academy from the District.

Last Rites Today For Oscar Bellman

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. today at the Lee funeral home, Fourth street and Massachusetts avenue northeast, for Oscar Bellman, 61, heating contractor and engineer who died Sunday at Homeopathic Hospital.

For many years Mr. Bellman was head of the Bellman Heating Co. He lived at Mount Rainier, Md.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Bertha W. Bellman; two daughters, Mrs. aKthleen Olga Aberg and Miss Dorothy Bernic Bellman; four sons, Alfred Heyser Bellman, Donald Horace Bellman, Henry Nelson Billman Robert Wayland Bellman; two brothers, Waller Bellman, Norfolk, Va., and Randolph Bellman, and three sisters, Mrs. Harry Huntzberry, Mrs. William W. Stewart and Mrs. Carl Deal. He also leaves three grandchildren.

2 Girls Awaiting Bus Are Injured by Truck

Two 6-year-old children were injured yesterday while waiting for a school bus at the Scyamore Island store on Conduit road. A truck operated by Clinton Magruder, of Cabin John, police said, backed into the children, who were below the driver's line of vision.

Frances Thompson and Jacqueline Roberts were removed to Georgetown Hospital. Jacqueline's left leg was broken in two places, one above and the other below the knee, and Frances suffered brush burns on the right leg and hip. Mary Lou Quible, 8, standing with the other two, was knocked down, but not injured. No arrests were made.

10 American Women to Bow At British Court Tomorrow

By the Associated Press.

London, May 3.—Ten American women will be presented to King George and Queen Elizabeth at the first court of the season Wednesday, the United States Embassy announced today.

The ten will be among more than 500 women who will curtsy before their majesties in the Buckingham Palace ceremony that day. About 1,000 more will be presented Thursday and July 1.

The American women:

Miss Eleanora Bowdoin, of Aiken, S. C.

Mrs. George Temple Bowdoin, of New York City.

Miss Vesta Putnam Culbertson, of Chicago.

Mrs. F. Vernon Foster, of West Orange, N. J.

Miss Lydia Fuller, of Boston.

Mrs. Dozier L. Gardner, of St. Louis.

Miss Julia Henry, of Philadelphia.

Miss Catherine M. Maher, of Lincoln, Nebr.

Mrs. John Perrin, of Boston.

Miss Anne Schenck, of New York City.

In addition, two other American women will be presented in the official list Wednesday. They are Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, wife of the Attorney General of the United States, and Mrs. Grenville T. Emmet, wife of the United States Minister to The Netherlands.

government battleship, Jaime Primero, had been sent to the scene.

63 Planes Bomb Rebels.

Madrid, May 3 (AP).—Sixty-three government warplanes bombed insurgent positions in the northern Guadalajara sector today, lest a new drive against the capital be attempted from that direction.

Insurgents were beaten back there in March, along a front 50 miles northward from Madrid.

Today's bombers dropped almost 600 bombs and started fires in the Siguenza Railway station, Guadalajara communications center. Insurgent troops were targets at Castejon de Henares, Almadrones and Alaminos, all about 60 miles northeast of Madrid.

Fighting broke out again in the immediate Madrid sector. The 3,500 insurgents held at University City in a siege within the siege of Madrid attempted vainly to reestablish contact with their comrades at Casa de Campo. Artillery and trench mortars drove them back.

The Casa de Campo insurgents also tried to make the contact, but government artillery smashed their attack.

Insurgent artillery shelled Madrid again.

Guernica Probe Asked.

Paris, May 3 (AP).—An international inquiry on the spot to determine who destroyed the Basque "sacred city" of Guernica will be insisted upon by the Spanish government, Foreign Minister Julio Alvarez del Vayo said tonight. He was en route from Switzerland to Valencia.

(Guernica, northeast of Bilbao, was destroyed by fire and explosives last Monday. Basque authorities said Spanish insurgent air raiders caused the destruction. Insurgents said Guernica was burned by their fleeing foe.)

The Spanish foreign minister asserted Guernica's destruction was the first "practical application of a German theory of totalitarian war, defined in 1936 by Lieut. Gen. Von Taysen as 'a war which would last less than a month if 300 tons of explosives, incendiary and gas bombs could be dumped on the principal towns and industrial and economic centers.'"

Italy-Germany Moving Toward Military Pact

Duce-Neurath Parley Held; Formal Alliance Declared Not Necessary.

By the Associated Press.

Rome, May 3.—Italy and Germany will continue and expand their friendship agreement, highly informed sources said tonight after conferences between Premier Mussolini and Baron Konstantin von Neurath, German foreign minister, who arrived here today.

There will be no formal military alliance because, diplomatic circles said, no such written pact now is necessary. It appeared more probable that Mussolini and Reichfuehrer Hitler might effect a thorough oral understanding in future conversations—(a projected meeting in Germany between the two men has been rumored for some time).

Four Take Stand In Extortion Case

Four witnesses testified before the grand jury yesterday when police officials asked for an indictment against Detective Luther C. Wise, Tenth Precinct, accused of extortion.

Meanwhile, Assistant District Attorney Karl Kindleberger was forced to ask Police Court Judge Isaac R. Hitt to continue the case for two weeks when no papers suitable for the charge could be found. Attorney Charles E. Ford, defense counsel, did not object to the continuance, and the case was set for May 18. No plea was made, and Wise was released under the same $500 bond set at the time of his arrest Sunday morning.

Wise was suspended from duty and placed under arrest by Inspectors Edward J. Kelly, Maurice Collins and Lieut. Walter H. Thomas. He was accused of taking two $5 bills from Fred Kosma, night manager of the Triumph Cafe, 1410 Irving street northwest.

American Reds Plan Campaign To Enlist Youth

League Exhorted to Boost Roll Secretly; Told to Disregard Law.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 3.—Adult leaders of the Communist party called on the Young Communists League today to expand its membership and gird for class war.

William Z. Foster, chairman of the Communist party, told the league's annual convention Young Communists should connect themselves with "the great mass of discontented youth and formulate their demands."

"If we are going to function as leaders in the great class struggle we must build our own revolutionary organization," Foster said.

Later, a panel group discussing industry was urged by David Doran, of New York, chairman of the industrial committee of the league, to enroll youth in every field, even where communism is outlawed.

Russell to Head Bar Association

Horace Russell, general counsel of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, was elected president of the Federal Bar Association at its annual dinner meeting last night in the Harrington Hotel. He succeeds Justin Miller, a member of the United States Board of Tax Appeals.

Robert H. Jackson, Assistant Attorney General, was elected first vice president; William N. Morell, associate member of the Board of Veterans' Appeals, second vice president; Peyton R. Evans, general counsel of the Farm Credit Administration, third vice president; David 3. Davison, of the United States Civil Service Commission, secretary; Harold Jacobson, of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, financial secretary, and Herbert H. Rice, of the War Department, treasurer.

Washington Youth, Stowaway, Returns

New York, May 3 (AP).—Frederick Vonce, of 1855 Calvert street, Washington, D. C., the 18-year-old youth who stowed away on the Queen Mary in hope of seeing the coronation when the liner left New York on April 21, returned today on the same ship.

Vonce was discovered, the first day out, wandering about aimlessly. A check-up showed that he had no ticket so he was put to work. He disappeared again as the liner neared Southampton but was found hiding in a lifeboat before the ship docked. According to ship's officers, Vonce stowed away because he wanted to see the coronation spectacle.

Wheat Supply Low.

Rome, May 3 (AP).—The International Institute of Agriculture today placed world exportable supplies of wheat for the current wheat year at 700,000,000 bushels, the "lowest recorded in many years." The figure is 24,000,000 bushels below last year and 676,000,000 under the 1929 record.

U. S. Catholics Lead.

Rome, May 3 (AP).—American Catholics contributed $841,000 in 1936 to missions organized under the auspices of the Society for the Propagation of the Faith, Mgr. Thomas J. McDonnell, of New York, reported to the general assembly of the society today. All contributions amounted to about $3,000,000, with the United States leading.

Graziani May Retire.

Rome, May 3 (AP).—Informed sources said today poor health probably will force Marshal Rodolfo Graziani to give up his post as Viceroy of Ethiopia. These sources, said the report, had neither been confirmed nor denied, but it was admitted. 160 wounds received by Graziani when an attempt was made on his life had undermined his health. Graziani also was reported suffering a blood infection.

New Hearing Set For Willard Waiter

Baltimore, May 3 (AP).—The discharge of Garland P. Webb, a waiter at the Willard Hotel in Washington, because of alleged mistakes in serving the hotel manager's breakfast, will be given a rehearing May 10 in Washington.

Bennet F. Schauffler, regional director of the National Labor Relations Board, said the complaint alleged the waiter had been discharged because the pat of butter for the manager's breakfast had been omitted and the hot applesauce had been in the wrong place on the tray.

Schauffler said the examiner at the first hearing had decided against the waiter but the complainant had declared additional evidence would be presented. The case was reopened at Webb's request.

Women Voters' Leaders Assail Spoils System

End of Patronage Declared League Aim; Food Bill Delay Criticized.

Attacking the spoils system in government, the National League of Women Voters, convened here at the Washington Hotel, yesterday heard leaders from 35 States indict patronage as "menacing to the fundamentals and efficiency of the American public service."

"You have only scratched the surface," said Miss Margaret M. Wells, of Minneapolis, president, in commenting on the league's three-year drive against spoils. "You have done better than last year. You have dug in on the biggest job ever tackled by a women's organization in this country. Gains made this year point the way to increased public support and ultimate success."

Miss Wells congratulated the membership on having ridden out the depression both financially and in numerical strength. Nineteen new leagues have been formed this year, she said, and 100,000 pamphlets distributed for special studies.

Sees Increased Interest.

Mrs. George Gellhorn, of St. Louis, chairman of the league's anti-patronage campaign, declared at the afternoon session the league is determined to abolish patronage.

Indications of a growing interest in the drive, she stated, was given by the fact that "24 States have considered merit system legislation this past winter." In Arkansas, Tennessee and Maine, laws have been enacted. This is the first time in 18 years, she said, that any State has enacted merit system legislation for its employes.

A slow-up in the Federal field was reported by Mrs. Gellhorn.

"Since the Ramspeck postmasters bill passed the House," she said, "the Congress has been much more interested to date with measures exempting positions from the merit system than extending it."

Paul T. David, a member of the staff of the President's Committee on Administrative Management, explained the merit system his committee had recommended and submitted to Congress.

Hits Drug Bill Delay.

Declaring "every job given is good for at least 20 votes," Wendell A. Falsgraf, a Cleveland lawyer interested in civil service reform, declared the spoils system is the greatest existing threat to American democracy and good government. He described political campaigns as smoke-screens of ballyhoo about platforms, economies and elimination of crime.

Mrs. Harris T. Baldwin, of Washington, decried a long delay in passage of food, drug and cosmetic regulatory legislation. She also discussed the rising cost of food, saying it "has given widespread impetus to the interest of women in food and drug legislation."

Charles Collier, professor of constitutional law at George Washington University, described pending cases before the Supreme Court, in line with the league's policy of study of all proposals relative to government.

Contract Bridge

An Expensive Finesse.

Finesses have a Circe-like lure for almost all bridge players. Happy—and successful—is the player who can "take them or leave them alone!"

North, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

	♠ Q 10 9 ♡ 8 7 ◇ A 4 ♣ A Q J 6 5 3

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	1 ♡	1 ♠	2 ♡
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♣	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

South's bidding was on the aggressive side but not greatly to be censured.

West opened his fourth-best heart. The Ace won, and a heart was returned, the King winning. Now, in a feeble effort to bluff declarer out of the club finesse, West led a low club. Since the finesse was vital, declarer naturally could not be bluffed. Dummy's Jack held the trick, and the nine of spades was led. East won with the Ace, and shifted to the five of diamonds.

At this point I fear a great many players would fall for the apparently "free finesse" of the Jack. This declarer made no such fatal error. He went up with the King and, on the correct assumption that East would not have jumped up with the spade Ace if he had held small spades as well, finessed against the Jack in West's hand. Dummy's ten holding, the Queen was laid down. The Ace of clubs and a club ruff returned the lead to declarer, who drew West's Jack of trumps and then the carefully preserved diamond Ace provided entry to the established club suit.

Had declarer played the diamond Jack when that suit was led by East, West would have covered and the play would have been in dummy. Then, in order to successfully finesse and draw West's spades declarer would have had to ruff a club which would have left no entry in the dummy and would have resulted in declarer's being locked in his own hand with losing diamonds.

Women's League Scores Married Persons Law

Section 213, the married person's clause of the economy act, is a "gressly repressive act resembling those laws of Fascist Germany and Italy, which have dismissed women from Government positions," it was stated in a resolution adopted unanimously at the convention of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom at the Washington Hotel yesterday.

The league voted to support the Celler bill as "a step toward alleviation of the distress occasioned by dismissals under section 213."

Major Brown, 53 Policemen Get Test Today

Veterans of D. C. Force to Undergo Physical Examinations.

Fifty-four veteran policemen, ranging in rank from Maj. Brown down, will appear before the Board of Police Surgeons this morning for their annual physical examination.

Maj. Brown, who is 68, and his two principal assistants, Inspector Bernard W. Thompson, 58, chief of detectives, and Inspector Lewis I. H. Edwards, personnel officer, who is 56, head the list of men scheduled to appear today.

Next Wednesday the remaining members of the force who are over 55 years will be examined. Maj. Brown said there are 104 men over the retirement age.

The officers and men also to appear today are Inspectors Maurice Collins, William E. Holmes, Benjamin A. Lamb and William G. Stott.

Captains to face the doctors are James E. Bobo, Second Precinct; John E. Bowers, Seventh Precinct; Joseph Morgan, Fifth Precinct; J. W. Pierson, Sixth Precinct; Ira Sheetz, Tenth Precinct; Jeremiah A. Sullivan, Fourth Precinct, and George M. Little, vice squad chief.

Others who are to be examined are Lieuts. W. C. Balderson, J. J. Bourke, W. H. Carlin, D. J. Cullinane, E. L. Elby, W. O. Embrey, McGill Grove, H. R. Lohman, J. W. McGinness, J. C. Maloney, J. T. Wittstatt.

Pupils Protest Dismissal Of Teacher by Walkout

Monroe, Mich., May 3 (AP).—Protesting the dismissal of a grade school teacher, pupils in Luna Pier School left their classrooms this morning.

The walkout occurred when pupils learned that James Sheridan had not been re-elected for the 1937-38 term. All but 15 of 100 grade and high school students participated. State police and a deputy sheriff were sent to the village, but there was no disorder.

Dreiser Testifies In Publisher's Suit

New York, May 3 (AP).—Theodore Dreiser, defendant in his former publisher's suit to recover $17,500 advance royalties on novels it is claimed he failed to complete, gruffly testified today he wrote when he felt like it.

"I'm not a once-a-year author," he told counsel for the Liveright Publishing Corporation, the plaintiff. "I don't publish for the fall or winter season * * * and I don't think it makes any difference to the publisher."

Alternately fingering a signet ring and clutching a handkerchief packed into a hand, the aging, white-haired writer, whose "An American Tragedy" crowned his internationally acclaimed studies in realism, surprised the courtroom with an impatient denial that he was "a recognized American author."

Hindenburg Off to U. S. On Year's First Flight

Frankfort on the Main, Germany, May 3 (AP).—Seven Americans were among 45 passengers on the Zeppelin Hindenburg when the huge airship took off tonight on her first trip of the season to the United States.

The ship rose quickly in calm air and disappeared without making the usual loop over the city, leading to predictions a new speed record would be sought.

Miss Earhart Inspects Repairs for New Hop

Los Angeles, May 3 (AP).—Amelia Earhart arrived today to inspect her airplane now being repaired for another attempt at a world-circling flight.

"I shall try to duplicate my last flight exactly—except for the accident," she said. "No definite day can be set for the take-off, however. That will depend on weather conditions." The flier said she hoped to leave late in May.

The Receiving Home Blunder.

One of the important tasks of the Senate sub-committee on District Appropriations, which is expected to begin hearings upon the local supply bill this week, will be to rescue the Receiving Home for Children from the muddle in which the House left it. Apparently the House did not understand the function which this agency serves. At any rate, that is the most charitable assumption. It does not seem possible that a legislative body would deliberately agree to the detention of delinquents in boarding houses.

Last year 3,119 juveniles were admitted to the Receiving Home. Some of them were unfortunates without homes. Others had been lost. But 88 per cent of them were police cases. Some of these were charged with stealing automobiles, housebreaking, assault, purse snatching and other serious crimes. Only a few of the total number admitted were in the younger age groups. More than half of the children were over 14, and the largest age group, numbering 633, consisted of 16-year-olds.

When the new Juvenile Court measure becomes effective another group of boys and girls 17 years of age will have to be accommodated. Obviously, then, the Receiving Home is primarily an institution for temporary detention of youthful offenders too young to be taken to the jail. Unfortunately, the home does not have adequate facilities for segregation of these youngsters with criminal tendencies from children who have been lost or who have no homes. But that is no excuse for trying to replace it by special boarding houses.

Recognizing the inadequacies of the present institution, the Board of Public Welfare sought funds for a new building. The status of District finances will not permit such an outlay at present. Hence the House sub-committee adopted a substitute plan. It slashed the Receiving Home appropriation from $38,000 to $12,000 to be spent for the care of delinquent and dependent children in foster homes. But it refused to grant a $14,400 allowance for a case work service to make the foster home idea in some degree practicable.

Foster homes might permit desirable segregation. But they certainly would not be able to provide the fumigation, medical care, instruction and discipline essential to proper treatment of delinquents. The House appears to have acted without even examining the facts of the situation. That leaves an obligation upon the Senate to correct a blunder as well as to consider the original problem.

Amiable Tennis.

One classification of international news currently spotting the public press can be read with complete equanimity, though one must turn to the sports sections to discover it. Reference is made to the international tennis tournament for the Davis Cup, now well under way.

Court experts from every corner of the world are fighting for the right to challenge Great Britain's hold on the historic trophy. Because she has had her fingers tightly wrapped around the cup for four consecutive years, some opinion maintains that Britannia's muscles must be tiring and that this year the ultimate challenger will be successful. The fact that the great Perry has turned professional, and is thus ineligible for amateur play, tends to sustain this theory.

On the other hand, France, the next previous Davis Cup winner, held the trophy for six consecutive years. And before France, the United States held it regularly from 1920 through 1926. On the basis of these precedents, Britain's course in tennis supremacy is not yet fully run.

The players, however, prefer performance to prognostication in settling the debate. Most of the first-round matches have been completed. On the West Coast our own Budge-Mako combination has routed the Japanese. The most pleasing aspect of the encounter, however, had nothing to do with the scores. It was rather that Japanese and Americans could meet without any capitalization of the adjective in their pacific rivalries.

So, too, Belgian players met and vanquished Hungary's best netmen, but no unsettling thought of war clouds darkened the Budapest courts. And when the South Africans topped the Netherlands in Amsterdam, and a New Zealand team eliminated China by the close score of 3—2, again there was no sign of the dangerous jitters which too often mark international meetings. If machine guns could be beaten into tennis rackets, it would be well.

Japanese Democracy.

To friends of the Japanese people—and they are numerous in this country—no event of recent days has been more heartening than the resounding victory at the polls last Friday of the anti-militarist parties.

This development shows clearly that the people of Japan have had their fill of militarist swashbuckling which has brought their nation to the verge of a serious financial and economic crisis; that they would like nothing better now than to be permitted to govern themselves.

Throughout the world the spirit of democracy is renascent. Time was, and not so long ago either, when the dictatorial principle was sweeping all before it. In one country after another in Europe parliamentary government disappeared. And even in the older democratic lands, such as Great Britain, France and the United States, there were voices raised demanding the establishment of a regime that could "get things done."

There has been a great deal of salutory disillusionment on this point. We know now better than ever before how and at what cost dictators "get things done." It is not surprising, then, that there has been a widespread rediscovery of the virtues of the democratic system which, whatever its faults, does nevertheless permit orderly growth and peaceful change.

In Japan, with a feudal background going back many centuries, democracy has been at best but a feeble plant. Parliamentary government has technically been in existence since the promulgation of the constitution of 1889. But it has always been at the mercy of the surviving feudal elements. Political parties have always had to move warily to prevent their being wiped out.

Japan is now at a turning point in its political evolution. One path leads to a reanimation of parliamentary life. This is what people themselves want if the election of April 30 is any indication.

The other path is in the direction of an outright military dictatorship which can only mean an intensification of the existing financial-economic crisis and increasing difficulties with foreign nations.

For the expansionist tendencies of the Japanese militarists have been responsible for the isolation of Japan and have placed it in an invidious position as an international law-breaker.

Such imperialistic manifestations are meeting with increasing resistance both from within and without Japan. The Japanese people are finding the burden of maintaining the top-heavy military and naval establishments more and more onerous. If the burden is increased they may crack under the strain.

It is clear that the path the Japanese leaders and government will take will have a bearing not only on Japan's internal situation but on its external situation as well. There is talk that the government will ignore the election results and seek to rule without benefit of Parliament. But this would be flying in the face of public opinion and would, in the long run, prove disastrous.

If, on the other hand, Japan chooses the path of democracy the way will be paved for a definite improvement in the relations between the island empire and the great democracies of the West, not least the United States. With Japan's militarists curbed by the civilian elements, Japanese-American friendship, in a very real and intimate form, is not only probable but certain.

The Hollywood Strike.

The strike of Hollywood studio workers calls attention to the relatively small size of the labor force involved compared with the financial importance of the film industry. The Federated Crafts, consisting of 18 A. F. of L. unions, have an estimated membership of only 16,000 and the Screen Actors Guild numbers 5,600.

These individuals serve an industry which last year took from the public about $1,000,000,000 in the form of gross receipts paid to motion picture theaters. Last year, moreover, about 500 feature pictures were produced at an estimated cost of $135,000,000. These large sums plainly indicate what an important place the industry has come to hold in our economic life.

That is an aspect of its development about which the public at large knows surprisingly little. The appeal of the producers is made almost exclusively to prospective patrons, and hence the actors rather than the technicians and their helpers are the ones whose services are featured. As a result of this one-sided emphasis, even the idea of serious industrial trouble at Hollywood seems incongruous to many.

The present strike, although called primarily to secure sole bargaining rights for the newly formed Federated Crafts, will undoubtedly direct attention to the great disparities in wage and salary scales prevailing in the movie capital. If members of the actors' guild earning $250 per week and more should decide to align themselves with the craft unions in the present contest it would be a strong vindication of the principle of industrial unionism. Yet any dispassionate observer would be inclined to conclude that the motion picture studios are not naturally good experimental laboratories for organizations of the C. I. O. type.

The star actors, the scenario writers, the publicity men and the directors have certain interests and problems in common with the carpenters, the painters, the prop men, the photographers, and other artisans and mechanics. But their special skills, different training and different economic status make it impracticable to organize them into one general industrial union covering all types of employes.

The federation of the crafts, and the support accorded by the actors' organization seems to provide a type of bargaining agency that has some of the effectiveness of the industrial union without the patent disadvantages of an all-inclusive membership. And here is an unexpected indication that the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O., personal jealousies aside, are not so far apart as the barbed exchanges between Mr. Lewis and Mr. Green might lead one to believe.

'For Posterity, For All Time.'

Whatever the final decision with regard to the Jefferson Memorial, the Tidal Basin area now seems safe from the destruction which has threatened it.

The Treadway resolution, prohibiting use of this location for the memorial, is ready for report by the House Library Committee. Even without action on this resolution pressure for the ill-judged and highly unpopular plan of the Memorial Committee may be expected to subside. But it is clearly desirable to make assurance doubly sure by a definite act safeguarding one of Washington's most delightful beauty spots from any future menace of a similar characer.

Both the spontaneity and the extent of the rally to save the cherry blossoms have been remarkable. Interest in the preservation of the Tidal Basin in its present attractive form is shown to be Nation-wide. Washingtonians, who generally suffer in silence when it pleases the powers that be to rip up local pleasure grounds, have in this case exhibited a determined community spirit illustrative of the depth of their outraged feelings. The next time an issue of this sort arises there will be less of the attitude that anything goes, so far as this disfranchised community is concerned.

The issue, however, is only half settled. It is virtually certain that Mr. Pope's design will now never come to reality in Potomac Park. But whether his plans will take form elsewhere, or whether an entirely different type of memorial will be chosen to honor Jefferson, remains uncertain.

Senator Elbert D. Thomas, a member of the Memorial Commission, showed notable foresight at the first meeting of that body almost two years ago. Vigorously opposing the Tidal Basin site, he then predicted that "the popular reaction" to destruction of the cherry trees "would be bad." At the same time he argued persuasively for making the memorial to Jefferson "a great temple of some kind with meeting rooms," having a practical value in keeping with Jefferson's always practical interest in the welfare of the masses.

Senator Thomas correctly foreshadowed the popular reaction on desecration of the Tidal Basin. It is probable, also, that he judged public opinion correctly in advocating at least a semi-utilitarian character for the memorial. Of the hundreds of letters received by The Post on this issue a large majority stress the desirability of a monument which would be more than a mausoleum, which would serve as well as impress the common man whose welfare was always the center of Jefferson's thought.

Many suggestions, from a public auditorium to an endowed planetarium, have been made along that line. One of the more interesting is Mr. Thomas L. Blanton's current proposal that the monument should take the form of a model maternity hospital in Washington. All of these ideas center on the appropriateness of having the memorial exhibit those socially helpful characteristics which were so dominant in Jefferson's own personality.

In view of the many thoughtful ideas recently put forward, and the Nation-wide interest in the subject, it might well be desirable for the Memorial Commission to take the whole issue under advisement again. Very likely it would decide that the best course is to proceed with the Pope plans, duly modified, on another site. But at least the country would know, as it does not at present, that public opinion had really been consulted and considered in reaching a decision of great public interest.

As Representative Boylan said, at the first meeting of the Memorial Commission, "Whatever we do must be right. We are doing it for posterity, for all time." In view of that admirable attitude on the part of the commission's chairman a thorough reconsideration of the memorial project would now seem both logical and desirable.

Good Riddance To "Heart Balm."

From the Brooklyn Daily Eagle.

Apart from a few lawyers who stood to profit handsomely from their legal services, there are few who will not welcome the unanimous decision of the Court of Appeals upholding the constitutionality of the alienation of affections section of the so-called "anti-heart balm" act passed by the Legislature in 1935. The court had previously upheld the section which outlawed breach of promise actions.

Litigation of both varieties had become little short of a racket and it is said that the "business" in this State had run as high as ten million dollars a year when both lawyers' fees and the stiff judgments granted by the courts are taken into account.

The idea of a man having a "property right" in his wife, which was the basis of the old alienation of affections actions, has become repugnant to most Americans in view of the present attitude toward the marriage relationship. So the loss of it is desirable in itself. Most important, however, is the blow dealt by this decision to a lot of vultures trying to enrich themselves and their associates through the unscrupulous misuse of a long-outmoded law.

Letters to the Editor

All communications must carry the writer's name and address, though pen names are permitted at the Editor's discretion. In fairness to other correspondents, brevity is requested. Letters are subject to condensation.

An Outrage Averted.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: An overwhelming vote of thanks is due The Post for its great public service in defeating the outrageous project to fill up the Tidal Basin with cement and destroy the cherry trees, in the name of a memorial to Thomas Jefferson. Except for the alertness of Mr. Gross and other reporters in disclosing the facts of the contemplated vandalism, and The Post's magnificent editorials, supplemented by striking cartoons, this enormity would have been under way before the public became aware of its full implications.

Citizens that faithfully attended all of the hearings before the Library committee were amazed at some of the revelations and still more amazed by the palpable efforts on the part of the defenders of the Tidal Basin scheme to conceal information. Only through the skillful questioning of Mr. Keller, the chairman, and of other able members of this committee, was disclosure made that the $3,000,000 already appropriated would be only the beginning of the sum necessary for this project. Estimates ranged from $3,000,000 to $6,000,000 as the amount needed to prepare the foundations before Mr. Pope's structure could even be started. And this at a time of cheeseparing of already small Government salaries, in the name of economy!

Innumerable and overwhelming arguments against the Tidal Basin site were brought forth by innumerable witnesses. Not one single argument was adduced in its favor. And yet its official proponents showed an implacable determination to go ahead with it, in spite of the storm of public indignation. The question arises: what invisible forces are back of this determination and who hoped secretly to profit by filling the biggest sinkhole possible with the largest possible amount of concrete, cement and asphalt? The answers to these questions are still to be made public.

TAXPAYER.

Washington, May 2.

In Praise Of Sen. Byrd.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The proposal of Senator Byrd for merging the Home Owners Loan Corporation and the Federal Housing Administration, apparently for the purpose of saving $24,500,000 annually, is refuted on good grounds in your editorial article of April 27.

On the other hand, The Post suggests that a consolidation between the Federal Home Loan Bank Board and the FHA would probably be more effective, as their functions have similar aims; the former, that of maintaining member banks in a liquid condition in order to facilitate mortgage financing, while the latter, since Title I of the national housing act has expired, is now confined to insuring mortgage funds.

It would seem proper that federally sponsored housing projects should be handled by a single agency, and the creation of a Federal housing authority, proposed by Senator Wagner, will centralize, if enacted into law, the various housing functions of sundry administrations such as PWA and RA.

The Senator from Virginia has rendered a public service by informing the country once more that duplication and wasted effort ought to be eliminated wherever possible.

FIDES.

Washington, April 27.

Appreciation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: This is to express the appreciation of the Board of Trustees of Goodwill Industries to you and The Washington Post for the very timely and helpful editorial which appeared in The Post on April 12.—The cooperation which The Post has given and is giving is helping materially in aiding this worthy enterprise to greater usefulness.

The effect of the editorial is reflected in the astonishingly large number of telephone calls and personal comments of people throughout Washington and we are most grateful to you.

Favors Single Tax.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Supreme Court functions properly when by unanimous verdict it condemns illegitimate laws such as the NRA. A five-to-four decision is always unfortunate, just as it would be for five doctors to diagnose a malady as smallpox while four others pronounced it scarlet fever. But the nine judges are not oracles, and their function is not to determine what is right but what is legal.

When the income tax was first urged by Mr. Bryan and others it was, unfortunately, found to be unconstitutional. Then in 1913 the sixteenth amendment to the Constitution was adopted, and this made constitutional a thoroughly unconstitutional measure. Likewise sumptuary legislation was very properly found to be unconstitutional. But presto! In 1919 the eighteenth amendment was passed and prohibition became the law of the land. Fourteen years later this law was repealed, and just as soon as the injustice of the income tax is realized, the sixteenth amendment will likewise be repealed.

Perhaps our English cousins are more fortunate in their obedience to an unwritten constitution. The greatest of our own unwritten laws is "Equal rights for all and special privileges for none." If we had a Supreme Court capable of enforcing obedience to this principle, tariff walls would long ago have been abolished, giving us free trade with all the world, and our present iniquitous system of taxation and landlordism would be replaced by a single tax upon economic rent.

Checks And Balances.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the matter of "checks and balances" among the three branches of the Government, the Executive, the Legislative and the Judicial, it has appropriately been pointed out that the Judical Branch is the "last bulwark" in defense of our liberties. It will protect us from unconstitutional laws, often instigated or sponsored by the President."

There is another phase of a Congress-controlled by the President. The Constitution (article 1, sections 2 and 3) provides for impeachment of the President, as a matter of punishment for misconduct in office, which may consist of "gross betrayal of public interests," "abuse or betrayal of trust," etc., not necessarily criminal. The House must impeach and the Senate must try; but how could an action be had in an appropriate case when Congress is subservient to the President?

It is evident that all three branches of Congress should be independent of one another.

Alternatives.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why not put the Jefferson Memorial out at the end of East Capitol street, say at Lincoln Park? Then change the name of East Capitol street to Independence avenue. It is a broad and stately thoroughfare well fit to provide a vista from the Capitol to the memorial. The Lincoln statue, now in the park, could be quite appropriately placed in the park at Fort Stevens.

Bluemont, Va., April 30.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Anent the discussion now raging concerning a Jefferson Memorial: the preponderance of opinion seems to be in favor of a memorial which shall take the form of a benefit to the living (which Jefferson would probably have sanctioned) rather than something costing the already over-burdened taxpayers huge sums and creating more or less a spirit of resentment.

For several year the Washington Memorial Highway has been in the making. My offering is submitted.

Let the State of Maryland build the road on the Maryland side and join the two States (Maryland and Virginia) with a great bridge either at Fort Washington or Great Falls. This would be a constant benefit to all citizens and complete a long-projected boulevard making a continuous road around the District.

MRS. J. A. DORSEY.

Berwyn, Md., May 4.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: An appropriate and happy solution of a vexing problem may be at hand.

The suggestion of Dr. William T. Gill in your issue of April 29 that the Library of Congress be renamed the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Library indicates a suitable monument to one the Nation now desires to honor.

There are several reasons:

1. This is in conformity with the tastes of Thomas Jefferson—architectural and literary.
2. Its objects are such as he might choose.
3. Its nucleus was his very own library.
4. It houses his and our immortal Declaration of Independence.
5. The site is near the Capitol, where informative and crucial years he served his country with great distinction.
6. We as a people would be acting in the direction he would approve when we thus avoid a new expenditure of $3,000,000-$5,000,000 at a time when the ideals of a democratic form of government show other more important needs, and our indebtedness calls for retrenchment, rather than for additional outlay.

Taproom Etiquette.

Meticulous persons who like to have all controversial points covered by definite law doubtless will be pleased to know that the moot matter of keeping-on-your-hat-in-a-barroom-in-the-presence-of-ladies has received solemn adjudication in a New York court. A magistrate has ruled that for a man to wear a hat in any place where women are present, including saloons, "is not only bad manners and bad taste but is such a provocative act as to bring about a breach of the peace."

For old-timers to whom feminine elbows resting on cocktail bars create a sad contrast with the masculine isolation of barrooms in an outmoded era, making a man liable to arrest as a disturber of the peace just because he likes to wear his bowler while sipping his beer must be the last straw.

The Post Impressionist

High Jinks Or Low Jinx.

LETS talk about dandelions. Using a hoe to correct proof I have been editing my garden (columns of onions and peas and carrots and potatoes and radishes and lettuce) and my lawn (green space) and I find that dandelions are very much in the news. Dandelions dotted on a full page make a very attractive story, to my way of thinking.

(Why not green space as well as white space? Howard Ketchman, color engineer, insists that publishers would help preserve the eyesight of their readers by substitution of gray and yellow for the standard black on a white page. For my part I find nothing more restful than yellow on green. Absorbing interest and no eye strain.)

Of course, it is all a matter of taste. There are some people who seem to think that my love for dandelions betrays a decidedly common streak in my make-up. And it may be so. Among the things for which I have a strong affection are donkeys, dandelions, potatoes, onions, and smoked herrings. I don't mention dogs, oranges, tobacco and apple pie because they may be taken as a matter of course. Pretty nearly everybody likes them.

One of the reasons I like donkeys is that they disprove the ancient superstition that carrots are good for the complexion. Donkeys are passionately fond of carrots but there is nothing about a donkey's complexion to make it write testimonials in the magazines. And it is certain that the donkey don't do it; not the kind of donkeys I have in mind.

Please don't think I object to carrots. With their faithful companions, turnips, they are loyal pages to that gallant knight, Sir Loin, and when accompanied by Mashed Potatoes and Dish Gravy and Apple Pie and Cheese and Coffee I can't at the moment think of any pleasanter company. And, if you don't mind, I'll have another cup of coffee.

* * * *

I am told that dandelion root is sometimes ground up and used as a substitute for coffee—no, it doesn't interest me, either. But dandelion beer (which, if youthful recollections don't mislead me, is something very different from dandelion wine) is, though bitter, both pleasant and bracing.

And did you ever eat dandelions as green? Not bad, not bad at all. A shade better, I think than spinach or kale, and, probably, quite as healthful. I have doubtless met their vitamins but since we have never been properly introduced I can't call them by name.

The leaves also have some reputation as a salad, but here I'm only passing along what I've heard.

The greens will grow stronger and sturdier as the summer progresses. The dandelion is no shirker. It puts in 15 or 16 hours a day from April to August, waking with the sun and never shutting up shop for the night till 8 or 9 o'clock.

* * * *

And what a reception the poor dandelions get when they first show their lovely yellow teeth in happy grins on the lawn! The lady of the house scowls at them and suggests that they be removed forthwith. And yet she hasn't a word of complaint about the daffodils that come up in unexpected places, the big flaunting things!

Oh, no, indeed, I don't object to daffodils. But I don't think they are a bit more interesting than dandelions. Why, a dandelion is not only one flower, it is a big bunch of flowers, a hundred or more of them, each with its own duty to perform, each with its own life history to unfold. Later their plumed seeds will form a globe which will presently dissolve, and every seed will fly away, each for itself, off for an adventure which may mean death or the beginning of a new life. No, ma'am! There's nothing commonplace about a dandelion. It's a marvel!

The one comfort I have is that for every dandelion I remove two will presently spring up and later in the year when the little colored boys and girls come with their knives and baskets there will be plenty of flowers to gather for the making of dandelion wine.

Ever taste dandelion wine? Fine temperance drink—up to a certain point. After it has seen a bit of the world and learned something of its wicked ways it develops considerable backfire.

What pleases me about the dandelion is that it not only puts up a pleasant front but it has a worthwhile background. It is not only food and drink but good medicine. As a tonic and aperient it has its value in correcting disorders of the digestive organs and the liver. And it may easily be that its commercial value will increase in time when further research has been made. What about its caoutchouc? Wouldn't it be interesting to go koo-chooking over our highways on American dandelion tires? Without knowing a thing about it I'd say offhand it isn't possible.

It may well be that nothing I can say will convince the Washington suburbanite that there is virtue in dandelions. He (or she) wants to keep his (or her) lawn smooth and resents the presence of the dandelion with its strong roots and heavy leaf base. All right, ladies and gentlemen, have it your own way. But if dandelions were worth ten bucks apiece how quickly you'd fall for 'em! You'd be quite willing then for your long green to have a gold standard. That's the trouble with the dandelion. Like some other worthwhile things it has made itself too cheap.

Fair Enough

Not Art But Degeneracy.

APROPOS the reminiscences of Mr. Sam Scribner, the 77-year-old veteran of the burlesque business who testified to the moral and artistic chastity of this form of entertainment, there comes a letter from a retired and apparently reformed professor of the orchestra pit whose memories are no less intimate but much less sentimental.

Our witness speaks with the authority of years of experience in old-time burlesque shows and, checked against your correspondent's own early observations, his impressions are much more accurate than those of Mr. Scribner.

"Ordinarily," he says, "I mind my own business, but at this 'art is burlesque' business I had to dip in my oar.

"If it had been possible, at one time, to corral in one audience all the producers, managers, straight men and comedians from every burlesque company in the country and that audience sat through the finest comedy ever written, not one individual in the house would have had the slightest idea what was going on.

"I knew them all. I had to listen to them. I was the 'professor'. I was there because there was no other place I could get $25 a week for fiddling.

• • • •

"THE BURLESQUE company consisted of an assortment of meat and a few ignorant degenerates to play up to it. If you're not too young you may remember Sam T. Jacks, the Trocadora and Folly in Chicago and a couple over on West Madison and Halstead. Miner's Bowery was a church compared to the Standard in St. Louis. Frank James, the brother of Jesse, was on the gallery door, but he was just a bandit and at least clean. The Standard was a cesspool, and you could pick up leprosy just walking past it.

"On Sunday afternoon, the opening, the customers threw iron dollars if they liked the show and bottles if they no like. That dump never bred any art or anything but venereal disease. When people talk about great artists coming out of such places they're just telling you something they heard. The good actors came from the repertoire companies, and repertoire was as far removed from burlesque as heaven from the sewer."

Out witness probably errs in his general declaration that no good actors ever came out of burlesque, for there have been a number of first-class performers who did. However, mere fame in the show business is no guarantee of artistic merit, and there are some comedians of national prominence who are no better now than they were in their burlesque days. They have merely moved into the higher-pay brackets of revue and musical comedy, bringing their filth with them, and have thus managed to contaminate other departments of the theater, which up to 20 years ago were reasonably sanitary.

• • • •

THIS ACCOUNTS for the rather casual acceptance nowadays of humor having to do with sexual perversion and other subjects hitherto covered by decent reticence.

However, his opinion of the old-time burlesque house generally agrees with your correspondent's recollection. The burlesque house usually operated in a low quarter of town either in or near the outskirts of the restricted district, if there was one, and was commonly regarded as a department of the vice industry.

The humor was foul for the time, but Victorian morality was still rife in the land, and the dirtiest material of the old-time burlesque show would not be out of order in a Broadway revue or musical comedy at present. In fact, it isn't.

Modern burlesque of the kind which has just been temporarily abated in New York, and probably will be abolished elsewhere, represents a new low to which the old kind would not have dared venture. It had to do this to draw patronage from the regular theaters, which were now offering all the dirtiest features of old burlesque. The women in the old burlesque shows did not strip, and even the famous kooch dancers wore tights and were fully covered up to the shoulders. And, though the humor of the old-time show was raw, it had nothing to do with degeneracy, and the script of the vilest show that ever played the old Standard in St. Louis might be considered not too filthy but too bashful for revue purposes today.

So modern burlesque stripped the women naked, and the comedians have resorted to dialogue and situations that would gag the devil himself, and that is the industry which today has the effrontery to demand legal rights and to plead the plight of the unhappy teasers who will be thrown out of work.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

The President Fishes Again.

President Roosevelt is off on another fishing trip. But there is probably nothing he wants less than fish. Washington is full of good fish markets and all he has to do is press a button in case he prefers oysters.

• • • •

As a matter of fact, the President doesn't care much for fish, even on fish days.

• • • •

It is reported on reliable authority that if Mr. Roosevelt was down to one can of salmon he would still have too much to suit him. This Presidential fishing stuff is just part of a tradition. Presidents always go fishing. But they never bring back anything.

• • • •

And they really don't expect anything.

• • • •

They go to get away from editorial pages, press conferences and opposition speeches. President Roosevelt differs from Hoover and Coolidge and most Presidents only in that he likes the water.

• • • •

Of course he may get some satisfaction out of fishing now and then, especially when he gets one of those big round-eyed ones that looks as if it had come out of a Republican club window.

• • • •

When he looks at a fish floppi.g about helplessly on the deck he says to himself, "Monkey with me, eh? Don't you see what happened to Landon?"

• • • •

And when he plays a kingfish and watches its futile leaps and runs against a taut line he can't help thinking that it's merely the last two elections all over again.

• • • •

Except that a kingfish makes a better fight than the Republicans did.

• • • •

As he yanks the hook out of a fish he thinks of a power company president, and his only regret when a fish gets away is that it wasn't a Supreme Court justice.

• • • •

This time the President is fishing off Texas. The fishing, according to experts, is not as good there as off Florida. Which may be why he chose the place.

Retort Courteous

It was a typical act of courtesy for an unidentified Japanese to indemnify Helen Keller when a thief stole her money from her room in a Tokyo hotel. It was a typical act of cnosideration when she donated the amount to a fund for aid of the blind in Japan. There is nothing nearer the desire of this famous blind American woman than to aid those who share her affliction but lack the opportunity and the extraordinary talents and determination to use opportunity that have made Miss Keller a world-famous person. And the courteous Japanese has the double satisfaction of remedying the evil wrought by a Japanese thief and of having his contribution go to help the blind of his own people. As the poet says, the moral's very plan in sight; it often pays to be polite.

Germany Revisited

Observer Returning To Berlin After 7 Years Notes Optimism Of People But Points To False Image Of Their View.

By K. K. Kawakami.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Berlin.

ARRIVING IN BERLIN my immediate impression was that this city appeared much more prosperous than it did seven years ago when I was last here. It indeed seems to be enjoying a boom or boomlet. Stores are crowded. Their windows are bright with colorful displays. Theaters are well patronized. Restaurants are full. People seem to be happy, at least outwardly.

Four years ago there were 4,000,000 unemployed in Germany; now the government claims that this number has been reduced to something less than a million, of which half a million or so are unemployables. The Nazi government, through armament industries, road-building and other public enterprises, has created jobs for millions of workers who had been jobless. The so-called Labor Front, under the able direction of Dr. Robert Ley, has inaugurated the "Kraft durch Freude" movement, keeping the worker not only efficient but contented. It encourages sports. It provides workers with recreations at minimum cost. It enables them to take sea voyages and sightseeing trips at cost which even the average workingman can pay without difficulty.

Germany's industrial production has increased 80 per cent in the past four years. This increase is much greater than that in America or England.

Nor should the moral side of Nazi achievements be minimized. By reoccupying the Rhineland and by putting through a rearmament program in the teeth of the League's opposition and the opposition of the powers, the Nazi government has inspired the people with a sense of power and pride. By scrapping much of the Versailles Treaty it has made the people feel that Germany at long last stands upon plane of equality with her victors in the World War.

Dangers Discerned Behind Their Optimism.

YET THIS ATTRACTIVE facade ill conceals difficulties and dangers which lurk behind it. Consider the plaguing question of food supply, for instance.

Germany's soil is poor. In spite of Nazi efforts for soil improvement and intensive cultivation, she has been able to wrest from it less than 70 per cent of her needed food. This situation has been greatly aggravated by the poor crops in the last two years. Yet she can not buy food materials abroad, because she is using most of the available foreign exchange for the purchase of direct and indirect materials of war industries. This, in spite of the Nazi government's drastic regulation for price control, inevitably raises food price. I notice that most meats served at restaurants are much higher in price than similar meats served in New York. While fish of the inferior variety is cheap, the better types are more costly than in America. That eggs and butter are scarce is a well-known fact. It takes Germany almost a billion marks to import food materials normally required by her people. Now she is using a fraction of that sum for this purpose.

On the other hand, she is importing in large quantities materials for heavy, that is, war industries—copper, zinc, lead, oil, rubber, etc. Even if Germany could curtail some of the industries of this nature in order to buy food abroad, she would not dare do it, because such a curtailment would inevitably result in unemployment, the elimination of which has been one of the strongest claims of the Nazi regime.

It is trite to say that Germany, like Soviet Russia, has, for military reasons, concentrated upon heavy industries. Thus industries in this category have in the last five years grown by leaps and bounds—more than two-fold as estimated by the Nazi authorities.

Consumers Goods Lag Behind In Production.

MEANWHILE consumers goods industries have been lagging far behind. This means one or both of two things. First the government, absorbingly interested in heavy industries, has not encouraged light industries. Second, the government, knowing that the consumers had little money to spend on clothing and other similar goods, deliberately restricted the production of goods of this nature.

It is estimated that the average income of the people in the past five years has increased something like 38 per cent. That sounds encouraging. But in the same period their burden of taxation increased 75 per cent.

Germany's armament and military expenditures last year are said to have amounted to 7,000,000,000 marks. Accumulated deficit bonds are said to total 25,000,000,000 marks. This in itself is an inflationary policy. In addition, the government pays the industrialists for heavy goods they manufacture in short-term, usually three-month notes which are piling up in the banks. Such a financial policy is bound to raise price no matter how strenuously the government may strive to control it.

The stupendous armament plans of Great Britain, America and France render Germany's financial position still more difficult, for they naturally enhance the price of war materials for which Germany depends upon foreign sources. With her "divesen," foreign exchange, becoming less and less, she finds it more and more difficult to pay higher and still higher prices for the materials that feed her armament industries.

Germany makes much of Dr. Schacht's success in increasing her exports to the Danubian countries. But, after all, the purchasing capacity of those countries is very limited. Germany's trade gains in Mittel-Europa is far from offsetting the decline of her exports to Italy, The Netherlands, Great Britain and France. Furthermore, Italy has entered into the arena to contest Germany's newly acquired trade advantage along the blue Danube. Italy has concluded agreements with Hungary, Austria and Yugoslavia with a view, among other things, to increase her export trade with those countries.

Hitler Has Promised Strain Will End Shortly.

HITLER is fully conscious that the German people cannot be expected indefinitely to stand the strain of warlike preparations. He has promised that the period of storm and stress will be brought to a close in four years. When the four-year period expires he is likely to find himself riding a tiger and unable to dismount, as the Chinese proverb has it.

All these factors seem to show that the driving force behind Nazi diplomacy is economic rather than political. It demands the return of her former colonies, but she does not particularly care for those colonies, for most of them are of little economic value. Once the principle of colonial restitution is recognized Germany wants to negotiate with the powers for the shuffling of colonial possessions—this in spite of Hitler's profession that Germany covets no colony which did not formerly belong to her.

Nazi diplomacy's studious exploitation of the Communist menace is also rooted in economic reasons. Its real purpose is to detach Britain and France from Russia in order to create a situation favorable to Germany's advance toward the Ukraine for the solution of her food problem. This explains why Germany rejects the proposed Anglo-French Western security pact unless France drastically modifies, or what is better, entirely gives up her alliance with Red Russia. It is also why she rejects the Soviet-proposed and British-supported proposal for an Eastern Locarno.

Berlin seems to be hoping that Premier Baldwin's resignation after the coronation may result in a new cabinet more sympathetic to the German point of view. Whether her hopes will not be blighted remains to be seen.

Former Cabinet Member, New, Critically Ill

Japan Votes

By Barnet Nover

Army Versus Parliament.

OF THE 466 seats in the Japanese House of Representatives contested for in last Friday's general election, the three anti-militarist parties captured 391. Altogether the opponents of the present army-dominated regime may be able to muster more than 400 votes against the government when the new Diet meets.

Since it was the government that ordered the election, presumably in an effort to win the support of the electorate and discredit the old-line parties, the April 30 balloting can be regarded as a triumph, though possibly only an ephemeral one, of parliamentarism in Japan. In that land, during recent years, Parliament over the militarists which such developments of the cabinet which, in turn, has been the rubber stamp of the militarists.

The combination of an expensive and essentially futile foreign policy and an increasingly acute financial and economic situation has tended to break up this arrangement. While the army has continued to dominate the cabinet, the cabinet has, more and more, had to contend with a rebellious Parliament.

• • • •

AT BOTTOM this rebellion has been one engineered by the great commercial and financial interests that dominate Japan's economic life against the army's policies and prerogatives. In the past these capitalistic and feudal classes managed to get along pretty well together.

The expanding economy of Japan made possible large profits to Mitsui, Mitsubishi and the other great families who among them monopolize Japan's heavy industry, its trade, shipping and banking. It also made possible increasing expenditures for the army and navy.

That it did not at the same time, permit any very marked increase in the standard of living of the Japanese masses was of secondary importance. With the great industrial, commercial and financial interests dominating the two major parties (Seiyukai by the House of Mitsui, Minseito by Mitsubishi) which took turns in governing the land and with the police efficient in ferreting out those harboring "dangerous thoughts," discontent found no political outlet.

THIS ALLIANCE between big business and the army began to crack when the world depression hit Japan.

Big business wanted a reduction in governmental expenditures, and viewed as a godsend the London Naval Conference which scotched a race in cruisers and submarines. It also favored a reduction in army expenditures.

But while the London Treaty was ratified and the army budget was cut, the victory of the civilian element over the militarists which such developments suggested was more apparent than real.

In the fall of 1931 the Japanese armies were on the march in Manchuria and liberal parliamentary rule as practiced by the Minseito party, then in power, was thrown into the ash can. And in months after the Mukden incident the Fascist-minded hotheads put to death a number of Japan's leaders, including Premier Inukai, Baron Dan, of the House of Mitsui, and Yunnosuke Inouye, one-time head of the Bank of Japan and minister of finance. Expansionists abroad were anti-capitalist, so far as Japan's internal policies were concerned.

However, the capitalist-militarist alliance was somehow reconstituted when the army heads took control from the hands of the more fanatical "Middle Strata," as Frank Hedges has called the group. The army group supported Japan's remarkable commercial expansion after 1934, an expansion in part made possible by continued low wage scales. In turn the army got all the money it wanted for military expansion. This alliance even survived, if feebly, the army uprising of February, 1936, when a new wave of "patriotic" assassinations swept Japan.

IN THE EYES of Japan's industrial and financial leaders, however, there was a limit beyond which the budget for the fighting services could not be pushed without endangering the whole rickety structure of Japanese governmental finance and with it Japan's economic system.

Had the militarists succeeded in making an El Dorado out of Manchuria all would have been well. But Manchuria has up to now been a liability rather than an asset, while the pressure of the Japanese army south into China proper has been meeting with increasing resistance by the Chinese. And to make a bad situation worse, the breakdown of the Washington system of naval limitation has led to a naval race in which Japan is in no position to compete, the resources of Great Britain and the United States being what they are.

Even in the face of this situation, and even though in taking an indirect stand against the army's pretensions to power, they were voicing the opinion of a large proportion of the people of the island empire, Japanese big business has not dared undertake a frontal attack on the army. The campaign has been one against the cabinet, as the army's puppet.

Oddly enough it is in part in consequence of that struggle that the working class element in Japan has been able to make really striking political gains.

• • • •

JAPANESE workers have shared little in Japan's recent prosperity. While the peasants have benefited by rising prices of agricultural products, the factory workers have seen their meager wages reduced, their hours of work lengthened and their cost of living steadily increased.

Last year growing discontent among the workers resulted in a sharp increase in the electoral gains of the Social Masses party, whose political orientation is not far different from that of, say, the right wing of the British Labor party.

On Friday the Social Masses party more than doubled its strength. Whereas in the last House it held 18 seats it will control 37 in the next. Minseito lost 26 seats and the Seiyukai did a little better than hold its own.

In view of the overwhelming defeat of the government, which means the army, a return to parliamentary government appears in order.

Actually this is anything but certain. Since it can no longer rule with Parliament the army may decide to rule without it. There are ominous rumors that Premier Hayashi may dissolve the new Diet soon after it is summoned and order still another election so as to wear out the opposition. Or, holding dissolution as a club over the parties, he may demand a new electoral law restricting the franchise as the price of the Diet's continuance.

Japan today inhabits the half-way house between parliamentarism and military-fascism. The odds would seem to be that it will continue along the path to an absolute military dictatorship. But this is by no means certain. For the combination of the imperial household plus the more conservative army heads plus big business may decide against such a dictatorship. It is still too early to write the obituary of Japan's Parliament. Yet it throws a curious light on Japan's internal situation that there is talk of the ultimate triumph of the Japanese militarists so soon after the people of the island empire had given the army's puppets an unmistakable rebuke.

The Olympics

By William Lyon Phelps.

Overemphasis On Athletics.

To all who are interested in sport, let me recommend "The Story of the Olympic Games, 770 B. C.—1936 A. D.," by John Kieran. It is profusely illustrated and is published by Frederick A. Stokes, New York.

The highest point in civilization and culture ever reached by any urban community was probably reached by the City of Athens in the fifth century before Christ. From 490 to 400 B. C., the standard of culture was so much higher among the citizens of Athens than it is today in Boston, London, Paris, Rome, that there is no comparison at all. I say "citizens" advisedly, because they had slaves.

Now during this long period, when the most austere tragedies delighted the Athenian audiences and when philosophers discussed the meaning of life as excitedly as we discuss more trivial things, they were so madly excited about track athletics that when the Olympian track meet was held every four years, all wars in Greece—and there were many of them—were stopped; and a truce was held during the duration of the meet, so that the soldiers of hostile armies could take part in the games.

They were absolutely amateur athletics. No money or valuable prizes were allowed. The victors got merely a laurel wreath; but they were local and national heroes for the rest of their lives, and when they returned in triumph from the games, if their "home town" was surrounded with a wall, the citizens felt that to bring them in through the gates was not sufficient honor; they tore a big breach in the wall, so that the athlete could enter in style.

Sen. Byrnes' Economy Speech

Excerpts of speech by Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, last night urging reductions in Federal expenditures:

In the life of the average citizen there often arises an emergency due to illness or other unavoidable misfortune when it is not only impracticable but unwise to attempt to balance the family budget. The emergency must be met. Extraordinary expenses must be incurred. If necessary, money must be borrowed. When the emergency has passed, the prudent individual realizes that he must not only reduce his expenditure within his income, but from that income he must save some amount to pay upon the debts incurred during the emergency.

This is true of a government. The necessities of an emergency must be met regardless of whether the budget is balanced. Four years ago an emergency confronted us and it was courageously and humanely met by the Government of the United States. The homes and the farms of the people were saved and the needy and the unemployed were assisted, even though in order to do it, the Government had to borrow billions of dollars.

As a member of the United States Senate I voted for every recovery measure. As a member of the Appropriations Committee I actively supported every relief appropriation. If today the same conditions existed, I would vote for the same appropriations. But the same conditions do not exist. The recovery program of this Administration has accomplished its purpose. The emergency has passed. Now it is easy to forget those things we do not care to remember. But let me remind you that in 1932 and 1933 it was our opinion that we should not seek a return of the boom conditions of 1929 because we feared such conditions would result in a recurrence of the unfortunate and disastrous conditions that followed 1929. Today we approach 1929 conditions. The Federal Reserve Board has announced that industrial production in March reached 119 per cent, as compared with an average of 119 per cent in March, 1929. It is unnecessary to read the charts of the economists. By every yardstick we have heretofore used to measure prosperity, the people of the Nation are prosperous.

"Emergency Has Passed."

It is true that we have the problem of the unemployed. We have always had that problem. Today, because of technological improvements, the great increase in the number of women who have gone into business, and other factors, there is an increase in the army of unemployed. As to the size of that army, no two men agree. But regardless of the number, we know that business conditions are today as good as we could reasonably expect to maintain over any period of years. Therefore, I assert the emergency has passed and it is time for us to put our house in order.

First of all we must consider the debts we have incurred during the emergency. The indebtedness of your Government as of April 28, 1937, was $34,941,507,897.91. The interest you will have to pay next year on this indebtedness is $860,000,000. Now what chance is there of reducing this debt?

On April 20, 1937, the President submitted to the Congress a revised estimate of the Government's financial needs for the next fiscal year beginning July 1. He advised the Congress that the amount of revenue the Government would receive would be $604,000,000, less than was anticipated last January and, if the Government spent the amount of money heretofore requested, and, in addition the sum of $1,500,000,000 he estimated as necessary for work relief, at the end of the year—July 1, 1938—our expenditure would exceed our income by $418,000,000.

So it appears that after recovery has taken place, instead of following the policy of a prudent individual, paying our way, and saving an amount to reduce the debt incurred during the emergency, we are going to add to the debt which is now approximately $35,000,000,000. If this year we cannot meet our current expenses and pay something upon the indebtedness, what will we do should we have a recession of business? Or, without a business recession, what chance is there of Congress reducing appropriations next year, which is an election year?

Nation's Greatest Question.

There is no question of greater importance to the people of this Nation. The securities representing the $35,000,000,000 indebtedness of your Government are held by the banks, insurance companies and investors of the Nation. On June 30, 1936, $17,270,401,000 of the direct obligations of the Government, bonds, notes and bills, were held by the banks of the Nation. That is approximately 50 per cent of our debt. In addition, the banks held obligations of the HOLC and other Government corporations, which bonds are guaranteed by the Government, amounting to a little more than a half billion dollars.

If you had $1,000 to invest, would you buy United States Government bonds, if you knew the Government owed $35,000,000,000 and proposed to spend each year more than its income, or would you buy the tax-free bond of a State, county or city which was living within its income and reducing its debt? It is not safe to rely upon some other man making an investment you would not be willing to make.

If the time comes when banks and investors fail to purchase the bonds of the United States Government secure the funds with which to operate? When there are less purchases, will that cause a decrease in the price of our bonds? If so, what effect will that decrease have upon the banks of the Nation? As more than $17,000,000,000 of bonds are held by banks, a decrease of five points would mean a loss to the banks of $850,000,000. Bank deposits are insured, but the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation which insures the deposits has its funds invested in Government bonds and notes.

Today there is no excuse for any alarm. With the increased wealth of the Nation and the increased tax paying capacity of the people, the credit of the United States Government is beyond question. But the credit of the Government must be maintained. The only certain way to maintain it is to balance the budget. It can be balanced in one of two ways—by increasing taxes or reducing expenditures.

Revenue Declines.

We have increased taxes on the larger incomes and on estates and we now find a falling off in the revenue expected from these sources. We must conclude that we have gone the limit—if not too far. It is proposed that additional revenue be secured by either lowering the income tax exemptions or levying a sales tax. If I had to choose, I would lower the exemption. But I am opposed to both proposals. The budget should be balanced by reducing expenditures, not by levying more taxes.

Today when an effort is made to reduce any appropriation for the regular departments of the Government, or to prevent an appropriation for some new activity, the argument is made that even though the activity requiring the increase may not be essential, that as long as we are spending money for everything else, and particularly for "relief," we might just as well vote for the increased appropriation. But there is a general recognition that we cannot go on forever spending more than our income and there is a willingness to stand for a reduction if it is applied to all activities and will result in balancing our income and expenditures.

When the appropriation bills have been passed by Congress they will total $7,000,000,000. I urge that the Congress, by an amendment to the last appropriation bill considered at this session, provide for a reduction of 10 per cent in the appropriations for each department with the provision that the 10 per cent cut should not apply to the so-called fixed charges. Those fixed charges should be specified by the Congress. This would exempt from the cut such items as the interest on the public debt, pensions for veterans, the permanent annual appropriations and other items which cannot be reduced. The head of a department should be given the power to transfer from one bureau to another within the department, funds not in excess of 10 per cent. He knows the relative importance of activities in his department. If some bureau or service cannot stand a reduction, he can take a percentage from some activity not so essential and apply it to the more essential activity. I would require only that he keep the expenditures for his department within the appropriation fixed by the Congress, which would be 10 per cent less than what he expected to receive for the next fiscal year. There is not a successful business executive who, faced with the necessity of balancing his budget in order to maintain his credit, could not absorb a cut of 10 per cent out of an expenditure of several billion dollars.

Half of Sum Is Fixed.

The fixed charges, which must be exempted from the cut, would probably amount to one-half of the total appropriations, leaving approximately $3,500,000,000 to which the cut would be applied, and making possible a saving of $350,000,000. It would not require a reduction in compensation of employes. It would require dispensing with the services of some unnecessary employes. It would require deferring the construction of some buildings and the purchase of some land. It would inconvenience some officials and disappoint some persons interested in appropriations, but it would help the Government and help the people.

The budget would not be balanced by a reduction of $350,000,000, or even $418,000,000, the deficit estimated by the President. During the year, deficiencies will occur, which will increase this amount, and the total deficit will depend entirely upon the amount of these deficiences.

The Congress, however, can make certain that the Government, during the next fiscal year, will at least live within its income, if it cannot reduce its debt, by providing for work relief $1,000,000,000, instead of $1,500,000,000 requested in the estimate submitted to the Congress. If to you $1,000,000,000 seems a small amount, it is only because the expenditures in recent years have caused us to lose our perspective. It has not been so many years since $1,000,000,000 would have covered all expenditures of the Federal Government. Next year it would be one-seventh.

But this billion dollars would not be the only money granted to the States for relief. Next year the Federal Government will give to the States through the Social Security Board, for old-age pensions, dependent children and the blind, $214,000,000. In addition to that, we will give to the States $36,000,000 to administer the unemployment compensation law. Additional amounts will be appropriated to the States for relief through the Public Health Service and the Department of Labor and many more millions contributed to the States through the various 50-50 laws, for highway construction, vocational education and other purposes. Notwithstanding these generous appropriations, those who oppose any reduction in the expenditures of the Federal Government meet the argument for reduced relief appropriation with the statement that "we must not permit people to go hungry." No one wants any human being in this country to go hungry. I am unwilling to admit that with the great improvement in business and the great improvement in the financial condition of local governments, our people will go hungry unless the Federal Government continues to make for work relief the tremendous appropriations such as were made during the depression.

Fear of Recession.

If this year when business conditions approach the greatest boom year in our history, 1929, the Federal Government must, in addition to the other grants to the States, appropriate $1,500,000,000 for work relief, how much will it be necessary to appropriate should there be a recession in business? And what will we then use for money?

Prior to 1932 the Federal Government did not appropriate any money for relief or work relief. Relief was recognized as a duty of the States, counties and cities. The Federal Government entered this field because the revenue of the local governments had decreased and they were unable to borrow the money with which to care for their own. The first bill provided that before the Federal Government granted aid to a State, its Governor must certify that the State and its subdivisions did not possess the revenue or the credit with which to secure funds to take care of its needy. Governors filed such certificates. They certified to the truth. Then the Federal Government borrowed money and made loans and grants to help the States. Loans made to home owners and farm owners included amounts to pay back taxes to States, counties and cities. We gave millions to build roads, schools and all kinds of projects normally and properly paid for by the local governments. As a result local governments as a rule are operating within their income. They have reduced their debts and increased their credit.

If local governments are required to contribute out of funds secured by levying taxes 50 per cent of the cost of a project, there would be less inducement to local officials to retain upon the rolls those persons who could secure employment elsewhere if they really wanted to work.

Now let us see if local governments are contributing as much as they can contribute. A statement prepared by WPA within the last few weeks shows that through December 31, 1936, $3,500,000,000 was spent for projects in the United States and of this amount only $463,000,000 or 13 per cent was contributed by the public agencies sponsoring the projects. Do you think that local governments cannot now contribute more than 13 per cent?

New York Lagged.

We are accustomed to regard the Empire State of New York as the wealthiest State in the Union, and yet only 7.2 per cent of the cost of projects in New York State was contributed by the sponsors of those projects, which was the smallest percentage contributed by any State. Idaho, certainly not regarded as a wealthy State, contributed 28 per cent of the cost of its projects, which was the highest per cent contributed by any State. If New York contributes the same percentage as Idaho, and all States are forced to contribute 50 per cent, there will be no cause for dissatisfaction.

The President does not recommend, and the Congress does not want to levy additional taxes. The only way to achieve a balance of actual income and outgo is for the Congress to reduce appropriations to the total income. I will join the President in his effort. To assist in balancing the budget I will vote against any appropriation not included in the budget estimates. But restricting appropriations to estimates will not be sufficient. Therefore, I will vote to reduce by 10 per cent the appropriations heretofore requested and vote to reduce by $500,000,000 the amount requested for relief. This will be sufficient to accomplish the declared purpose.

While it is the duty for the President to make recommendations, it is the duty of Congress to raise revenue and to make appropriations. Therefore it is the duty of the Congress to balance the budget, and this duty should not to shifted by the Congress to the President.

There is no excuse for the effort to create the impression that there is a breach between the President and the Congress in this matter.

Mrs. Davis Entertains Patrons of Art at Tea

Chairman of Washington's Newest Venture in Culture Honors Group at Home; A. Conger Goodyear Speaks.

Persons interested in the Capital's newest venture in culture—the Washington Gallery of Modern Art—met for tea and a talk yesterday in the home of the gallery chairman, Mrs. Dwight Davis.

Long residence in New York, several years of work on the committee of the Museum of Modern Art, and keen disappointment that the famous Van Gogh show of this museum, which visited several hundred cities, did not come to Washington, were among the factors which gave Mrs. Davis the idea for the Washington gallery. Associated with her in the enterprise is Mrs. George Angus Garrett, who used to arrange exhibits for the Junior League in Philadelphia. They already have chosen the first floor of the Metropolitan Club as the place, and November as the time for six exhibits. Meanwhile, Mrs. Davis and Mrs. Garrett are planning to do over the clubrooms for the exhibits.

Mr. A. Conger Goodyear, president of the Museum of Modern Art, spoke briefly on its work. He mentioned the accomplishment of Mrs. McCook Knox last year when she brought the first exhibit from this museum to Washington and also gave his definition of the meaning of modern art.

Mr. Goodyear's talk was preceded and followed by tea. At either end was a modern glass-covered table presided over by the two daughters of the house, the Misses Helen and Cynthia Davis. Both wore print dresses and sandals.

Practically every leader in Washington art circles was present—Mr. Duncan Phillips, founder of the Phillips Memorial Gallery, with Mrs. Phillips, herself an artist of distinction; Mrs. Dean Acheson, in a black crepe frock with a white ruffle at the neck and a shiny, black straw hat; Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, who had pinned three pink carnations to her yellow suit, and the conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra, Dr. Hans Kindler, who was accompanied by Mrs. Kindler.

Mrs. Lee Warren wore a short black silk cape and a tiny hat with roses at the brim. Rear Admiral and Mrs. Adolphus Andrews, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Mark Bristol and Mrs. Henry Latrobe Roosevelt, wife of the late Assistant Secretary of the Navy; Col. and Mrs. Edwin Watson—Col. Watson is military aide to the President—represented Army and Navy circles. Among other were Mrs. Glendinning Frazer, of Philadelphia, who is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Garrett; Mrs. James Clement Dunn, Mrs. Winthrop Chanler, Mrs. Henry Cabot Lodge, jr., in a gray tailleur and an off-the-face white hat; Mr. David Finley, Mr. William Brewster, Mrs. Phillip Coffin, Mrs. Nathan Wyeth, in navy blue, and Miss Josephine Patten.

Diplomats, Army, Navy Represented At Tea Given by Argentine Attache

Guests from diplomatic, Army and Navy circles were present yesterday afternoon at the tea given in the east end of the Presidential dining room of the Mayflower by the Naval Attache of the Argentine Embassy and Senora de Sueyro in honor of Capt. Marcus Zarr, chief of the Argentine naval aviation.

Senora de Sueyro wore a gown with a long black velvet skirt and a silk crepe blouse of a gay flowered print, made with a short peplum at the hips. Near where she and her husband and the guest of honor received was a table with a bouquet of flowers of the same colors as those in her dress. On the buffet table at the opposite side of the room were pink and white snapdragons and candles in silver candelabra.

Among the guests were Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, wife of the Secretary of the Navy; the Minister of Guatemala and Senora de Recinos, the Minister of the Dominican Republic and Senora de Pastoriza, the Chief of Naval Operations and Mrs. William D. Leahy, the retiring Chief of Naval Intelligence and Mrs. William D. Puleston, who are preparing to leave Thursday to spend two months in Maine; the Minister of Paraguay and Senora de Busk Codas, the Air Attache of the Chilean Embassy and Senora de Puga, Senora de Tudela and her sister, Senora de Alverez Calderon; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burke, Dr. Leo Rowe, Senora de Guachalla, wife of the Bolivian Minister; the Air Attache of the Italian Embassy and Mme. Coppola; Senora de Alfaro, wife of the Ambassador of Ecuador; the Japanese Naval Attache and Mme. Kobayashi, and the Naval Attache of the German Embassy, Rear Admiral Robert Witthoeft-Emden; the Naval Attache of the Peruvian Embassy and Senora de Althaus.

Also there from Navy circles were Rear Admiral and Mrs. Alfred W. Johnson, Rear Admiral and Mrs. William S. Pye, Commander and Mrs. H. A. Seiller, Commander and Mrs. R. E. Webb, Commander and Mrs. R. E. Schuermann and their guest, Miss Ann Powers; Capt. and Mrs. Wallace Lind, Capt. and Mrs. Allan Farquhar, Mrs. Gerald Linke and her sister, Mrs. R. B. Buchanan.

Also among the guests were the Secretary of the Yugoslavian Legation and Mme. Perazic, the latter wearing a crownless navy blue hat formed of a large bow in front and a band of the material circling her head. Her dress was of navy blue with small white polka dots, and she wore with it a five-strand necklace of pearls.

Rear Admiral Ralston S. Holmes, U. S. N., director of naval intelligence, will entertain at a luncheon today at the Mayflower in honor of Capt. Zarr.

The guests will be Capt. Sueyro, Lieut. Comdr. Edgardo R. Bonnet, chief of the Argentine navy; Lieut. Carlos Gadda, Capt. Allan Farquhar, Capt. A. C. Read, Capt. H. J. Abbett, Commander A. M. Mitsgher, Lieut. Col. M. G. Holmes and Lieut. J. F. Greenslade.

The Troyanovskys and the Saitos Ranking Guests at Ropers' Dinner

One of the largest dinners of the spring season was given last evening by the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper at the Mayflower Hotel. The ranking guests were the Soviet Ambassador and Mme. Troyanovsky and the Japanese Ambassador and Mme. Saito.

Other guests were the Minister of Switzerland and Mme. Peter, the Minister of the Irish Free State, Mr. Michael MacWhite; the Minister of Denmark, Mr. Otto Wadsted, and the Canadian Minister and Lady Marler.

Senator and Mrs. Morris Sheppard, Senator and Mrs. Charles L. McNary, Senator Arthur Capper, Senator Theodore F. Green, Representative Mary T. Norton, Representative J. Walter Lambeth, Admiral and Mrs. William D. Leahy, Rear Admiral and Mrs. David F. Sellers, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Oscar Westover, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Frederick W. Coleman.

The Assistant Postmaster General and Mrs. William W. Howes, Mr. J. F. T. O'Connor, the Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Charles Edison, the Assistant Secretary of the Interior, Mr. Oscar Chapman; Mrs. Ernest G. Draper, the Assistant Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. J. Monroe Johnson.

Col. and Mrs. James Roosevelt, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Allen, Mr. and Mrs. W. Averill Harriman, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Barron Collier, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Everett Hughes, of West Orange, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Corcoran Thom, Mr. and Mrs. Gould Lincoln, Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose, Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, recently named Minister to Norway.

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Mrs. James M. Helm, Mrs. Rushmore Patterson, Mrs. Gilbert M. Hitchcock, Mr. and Mrs. Harper Sibley, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Culbertson, Mr and Mrs. Robert M. Gates, Dr. Sterling Ruffin, Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, Mr. and Mrs. Richard F. Roper, and Dr. Henry F. Grady.

Dinner was served in the Chinese room of the hotel following reception of the guests in the Pan-American room. Table decorations were made up of Hollywood roses, a deep red shade, and white lilacs. Music was furnished throughout the evening by a section of the Navy band playing in the promenade just outside the Chinese room.

The Mexican Ambassador, Senor Dr. Don Francisco Castillo Najera, has left for Mexico to be gone a week or more. The First Secretary, Senor Dr. Don Rafael Fuentes, will be charge d'affaires during the Ambassador's absence.

The French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet were ranking guests at a dinner given last evening by the Siamese Minister and Mme. Rajamaitri. The other guests were the Secretary of the Yugoslavian Legation and Mme. Perazic, the legal adviser to the State Department and Mrs. Hackworth, the former President of Panama and Mrs. Ricardo Alfaro, and Col. and Mrs. John B. Courter.

The Minister and Mme. Rajamaitri also entertained at a luncheon yesterday. Their guests were Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Stevens, Dr. Hugh M. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Lynch.

The Yugoslavian Minister and Mme. Fotitch entertained at dinner last night in honor of the Italian Ambassador and Donna Matilde de Suvich. The guests included the Secretary of War and Mrs. Harry H. Woodring, Senator and Mrs. W. R. Austin, the Rumanian Minister, Mr. Charles Davila; Representative and Mrs. Ralph E. Church, the Naval Attache of the Italian Embassy and Donna Bianca Cugia, Secretary of Embassy Nobile Benedetto Capomazza, Sir Willmott and Lady Lewis, Miss Mabel Boardman, Mr. and Mrs. Lammot Belin, the Assistant Air Attache of the French Embassy, Mme. Fayet and Mrs. Frank Simonds.

Colonial Dames Open Session With Reception

Underwood & Underwood.

Mrs. Joseph B. Hutchinson, center, president of the National Society of Colonial Dames of America, with Mrs. Cazenove Lee, left, chairman of the committee for the biennial council meeting, and Mme. Cantacuzene, at the reception she gave for the council last evening at the Shoreham.

Colonial Dames Visit Historic Gunston Hall

Mrs. Joseph Hutchinson Entertains at Shoreham Reception for Delegates to Biennial Council of National Society.

A journey to Gunston Hall, which eventually will come into the hands of the National Society of Colonial Dames for preservation, opened the week's program for the biennial council of the society yesterday afternoon. Last evening the president, Mrs. Joseph B. Hutchinson, entertained at a reception at the Shoreham for members of the council.

Three buses took the visiting Colonial Dames and a few members of the Washington Chapter to Gunston Hall. Mrs. William A. Moncure, of the Alexandria, Chapter, assisted the committee. A short stop was made at Pohick Church on the way out.

Mrs. Hutchinson and a group of the regents of Gunston Hall had preceded the guests to the house and received them when they arrived. The host, Mr. Louis Hertle, owner of the historic estate which originally belonged to George Mason, author of the Virginia Bill of Rights, also welcomed the visitors. Later he went through the rooms with some of the guests telling the history of some of the old furnishings.

Greeted by Mrs. Valentine.

Mrs. Granville Valentine, of Richmond, Va., president of the Virginia Society, greeted the visitors as they came onto the veranda and Mrs. Hutchinson and Mr. Hertle were just inside the door. Mrs. Valentine wore a navy blue costume with a wide-brimmed hat, and Mrs. Hutchinson a redingote suit—a gray coat over a gray silk dress, figured in gray flowers with a touch of blue and yellow. Her hat was black with a trimming of white ribbon.

The rooms of the home were decorated with bouquets of white dogwood and white and lavender lilacs.

The handsome doorways of the house, the mantles and stairway were among the features. In the library where the Bill of Rights was written are built-in bookcases behind glass doors and, on the walls, historic documents and photographs.

Mrs. Theodore Walters, wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Interior, was one of those from Washington among the guests. Mrs. Stanley F. Reed, wife of the Solicitor General, also was there, with Mrs. Wilbur W. Hubbard, president of the Women's National Democratic Club. Mrs. G. W. Ricker, wife of Maj. Ricker, of the Army War College, and Mrs. William W. Hicks, wife of Col. Hicks, also were among the guests.

Mrs. Lynn Talley and Mrs. Thomas A. Wadden were together and also present were Mrs. Dangerfield Love, of Alexandria; Mrs. Walter Peter, of Georgetown; Miss Angelica Remey and Mrs. John Small.

Reunion for Many.

The occasion was a reunion for many. Mrs. S. Westray Battle, of Asheville, N. C., regent of the North Carolina Society, was greeted by many friends. Each summer that she is not in Europe Mrs. Battle entertains at her home for all the Colonial Dames who are vacationing in the mountain resorts nearby.

Mrs. Lucius B. Barbour, president of the Connecticut Society, was there, as were Mrs. Christopher Ward, Guston Hall regent from Delaware; Miss William Elliott, of Columbia, S. C.; Mrs. George F. von Konlitz, president of the South Carolina Society; Mrs. Joseph F. Waring, a past president from the same State; Mrs. Frank Jones, of Macon, Ga.; Mrs. John C. Shaw, of Michigan; Mrs. Sumter de Leon Lowry, of Tampa, Fla.; Mrs. Walker Taylor, jr., of Wilmington, N. C.; Mrs. James B. Diggs, of Tulsa, Okla.; Mrs. Thomas Malone, of Nashville, Tenn.; Mrs. Benjamin B. Cates, of Knoxville, and Miss Catherine Drayton Simons, of South Carolina.

Mrs. Casenovo Lee is chairman of the committee which has arranged the entertainment for the visitors and Miss Agnes Peter is honorary chairman. Assisting them are Mrs. Fairfax Harrison, Mrs. Charles A. Hurt, Miss Aimee E. Powell, Mrs. Charles D. Walcott, Mrs. Joseph S. Wall and Mrs. Charles Willcox.

This afternoon the District of Columbia Society will give a garden party at the Dumbarton House, national headquarters of the society, and tomorrow afternoon Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss is entertaining the group at a reception at her home, Dumbarton Oaks.

Peirce Guild to Hold Spring Party Friday

Members of the Peirce Guild will hold a spring party on Friday afternoon at the Washington Home for Foundlings. The function of this organization is to keep up necessary repairs and improvements not provided for in the Community Chest budget.

At the annual party next Friday the guests will be welcomed by the newly elected president, Mrs. Frank W. Mondell; Mrs. William Hamilton Bayly and Mrs. Wendell P. Strafford, former presidents; Mrs. William H. Sholes, treasurer, and Mrs. Simon Wolf.

Washington Girl To Marry Soon

Miss Helen Richardson's Betrothal Announced to Benjamin D. Mills.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd D. Richardson, of Washington, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Helen Richarson, to Mr. Ben Davis Mills, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Mills, of Stillwater, Okla. The wedding will take place here in the late summer.

Miss Richardson, formerly of Palm Beach, Fla., and Iowa City, Iowa, is now residing with her parents in Washington. She attended the University of Iowa and has been active in swimming circles both there and Washington, having formerly been breast-stroke champion of the District of Columbia.

Mr. Mills attended Oklahoma A. and M. College at Stillwater, where he was affiliated with the Kappa Sigma Fraternity. He later attended George Washington University, where he became a charter member of the Kappa Kappa Psi, honorary musical fraternity. He is now connected with the Rural Electrification Administration in Washington.

Their engagement was announced at an informal tea given at the Mayflower Saturday afternoon.

Miss Grace O'Hara And Lieut. King To Wed in Summer

Mrs. James O'Hara, of Washington, has announced the engagement of her daughter, Grace, to Lieut. Harrison King, U. S. A., now stationed at Fort Myer. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. King, formerly of South Dakota, now of Silver Spring, Md. The wedding will take place early in the summer.

Miss O'Hara was graduated from Gunston Hall and also attended school in Lausanne, Switzerland. She is a daughter of the late Col. O'Hara and a granddaughter of the late Senator E. J. Westlake, of Minnesota.

Lieut. King attended Shattuck Military School, and was graduated from West Point in 1933. Next fall he will go to Fort Sill, Okla., for duty.

James F. Welshes Plan Visit Here

Mr. and Mrs. James F. Welsh, who were married at St. Paul's Catholic Church in Washington April 24, will come here the end of the week for a brief stay before going to their residence at 3307 Dorchester road, Ashburton, Baltimore. The bride is the former Gretchen Charline Van Slyke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Clair Van Slyke, of Washington. Mr. Welsh is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Welsh, of Baltimore.

Mrs. Welsh had as her attendants Mrs. Thomas Neff, Mrs. Frank Beatty, Miss Sonny Hardiman and Miss Theda Wonders. Mr. Harry C. Leeks, of Baltimore, was best man and the ushers were Mr. Brooke E. Furr and Mr. John N. Curlett, of Baltimore, and Mr. John P. Huebsch and Mr. Ralph I. Williams, of Washington. The Rev. Denis J. Kavanagh performed the ceremony.

THE MERRY WHIRL

By Marylyn

Lady Lindsay, who has known Ruth Draper "ever since she can remember," was in the audience at the National last evening for the famous monologuist's opening night. Wearing a white silk brocaded wrap over her black evening gown, she was accompanied by the British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay. Miss Draper is visiting at the Embassy.

Among others in the audience were the Chief Justice and Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, the latter wearing a black velvet wrap over her spring print evening gown; Mrs. Edwin Watson, wife of the President's military aide; Mrs. Jesse Hildebrand and Mrs. Norah Bell.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Himes have returned from Honolulu, where they had it demonstrated to them that the Boy Scout code not only includes "a good turn daily" but also "one good turn deserves another."

Two years ago, when the Boy Scout jamboree, which was to have been held in Washington, was canceled, a party of 16 lads from Hawaii had already arrived and were faced with a dull visit in the Capital. Mr. Himes determined they were not to be disappointed in their trip. He took the whole party to his beautiful estate in the Thousand Islands and saw that they had a wonderful time.

The Boy Scouts of Hawaii have been waiting ever since for an opportunity to welcome him there and show their appreciation. They learned the time of his arrival on his recent trip and, the day before reaching Honolulu, he was called to the ship's radio to hear a concert in honor broadcast by the Boy Scout Band from there. The band and Scout troops were out to greet him and Mrs. Himes when they landed the next day. Then a party was given in their honor and on this occasion the radio was again brought into play. Mr. Himes was given opportunity to talk to his daughter in Frederick, Md., and then to his son in Princeton, N. J. At the close of these conversations, he was connected with a friend in Los Angeles, who asked him to describe his impressions of Hawaii. He did so with enthusiasm and the friend said, "Fine, now wait a minute." The next thing Mr. Himes heard was his own voice coming back with the description he had just given—recorded in Los Angeles and re-broadcast to him.

He says he has since had other records made to give to his friends to save telling them about his trip.

The Norwegian Minister and Mme. de Morgenstierne are the first of the diplomatic colony to move to a summer resort this season. They are occupying at Bluemont, Va., Bishopsgate, the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Craig Peacock, of Chevy Chase.

The estate gets its name from the fact that a Confederate bishop occupied it during the Civil War. Situated high on a mountain, it has many verandas commanding a fine view of the Shenandoah Valley.

The next time it rains and you have to go slithering around on wet sidewalks with impertinent little raindrops spattering in your face and down your neck just think of this story. Mrs. John Murdock, wife of the Representative from Arizona, loves gray, wet days, and as for umbrellas, they "are things of beauty," and therefore joys forever, to her. Until this year she had never, never owned one. Out in her Western home town, it never rained and one just didn't need either rubbers or umbrellas.

Mme. Cantacuzene Takes Party Office

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Naval Academy Student Whose Girl Friends Never Take Him Seriously Asks What to Do About It.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: You would probably think that a boy who wore the uniform of the United States Naval Academy would have no problems of the heart. But it doesn't hold true in my case. I am fairly good looking, neat and smart looking, and my complexion is such that it gives me a youthful, joyously appearance. I don't drink or smoke and my manners are of the best, I am proud to say. But still I can't solve my problem.

* * * *

During the past four years I have gone with numerous girls. All of them have been pretty and have had the nicest personalities. Even though some of them have been slightly robust in build and taller than I (as I am short) others have been just my size or smaller. But none have ever taken me seriously and each one adopted a sisterly attitude the minute she met me. Lots of these girls have written me about their love affairs, have told me of their engagements, etc. But the farthest I ever get is to be addressed as "dear" in their letters, which they usually sign, "yours."

* * * *

What can I do to remedy this state? I feel that I am missing the best of life in not having normal love affairs at this age. Here I am, 22 years old, and no success yet. Will you please advise me? Should I continue to hope (while feeling lost), or should I act serious or a trifle debonair with the ladies? Bear in mind that my choice is nice girls.

MIDSHIPMAN.

The Thing to Do.

DEAR MIDSHIPMAN: If the girls treat you like a younger brother, it's probably because your comparatively short stature and "youthful, joyous" complexion makes you look astoundingly young and innocent—immature, in other words. And maybe your classmtes, too, treat you as a youngster; a fact which would not be lost on girls, who like to believe the boy they give their heart to is a veritable "man among men."

* * * *

Obviously the thing to do is to live down your appearance, rather than live up to it. Cultivate manner and bearing to compensate for that over-youthful look. Very often the short-statured man who carries himself so as to make every inch register acquires a dignity of bearing that his taller brother never learns. Girls admire men who impart a suggestion of strength, force, poise and self-sufficiency. A certain gravity of mind, a certain cool deliberation of conduct greatly becomes the small man.

* * * *

In your association with girls, be masterful and self-possessed in public and gallantly attentive and lover-like in private. Learn how to pay subtle compliments as though you were a connoisseur of feminine charms. Be self-confidently aggressive in your courtship of girls who attract you. Cut in on them at dances, for instance, with the nonchalance of a man of the world who is sure of his welcome. If a girl shows signs of interest, don't drop your manly mask to become a delighted youngster. Play the role of experienced beau to the hilt.

* * * *

In the beginning, it might be well to try out the role on girls a few years younger than yourself; perhaps on girls you aren't really interested in. After a time the role will become a habit, and you can gradually shift your attention to girls your age, or to girls on whom you've had your eye, without much hope, for years. As between acting serious or debonair, I would suggest that you act serious about life, but only casually interested in girls, though perfectly capable of taking them in your stride. Nothing flatters a girl's vanity more than to suppose she has caught the fancy of a man who isn't an easy catch. To be debonair is to possess a light-hearted grace of manner, and best becomes the man who is something of a devil with women. Since you are not and essentially never will be, I advise you to stick to a graver, more self-contained attitude. M. H.

Should She Show Love?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Please answer my questions for me. They have been worrying me so much lately. I know your answer will help. I have been going with a boy for several years. He tells me he loves me very much and wants to marry me in a couple of years when he has a good job and income. I love him very much, too, and he knows it. He always lets me know how much he loves me and I do the same. By telling him and showing him I love him, am I wearing my heart on my sleeve? Should I let him know I do love him? Or should I keep it to myself? JEANNE.

* * * *

DEAR JEANNE: The girl whose speech and actions constantly declare her love for a given man is assuredly wearing her heart on her sleeve. A certain reticence in regard to her feelings is an excellent thing in women. Just as cotton wrapping preserves the polished surface of a gem, so does the gauzy veiling of a woman's shy, well bred reserve preserve indefinitely the springtime bloom of mutual love.

* * * *

It's quite all right to let the man know you love him, since he loves you and wishes to marry you, but don't be excessive in your declarations and manifestations of love if you don't wish to surfeit him. There will, of course, be occasions when it will seem eminently natural and right for you to tell your love all over again, but the burden is on the man to woo such declarations, as they are apt to seem less precious if freely volunteered. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

White, Black and Ginger Lead Summer Shades

New York (AP).—Leading summer colors at this stage seems to be white, black, ginger, all the "burnt" shades, yellow, the light blues and greens and deep, dusty pink.

It is smart to combine two tones of one color for sportswear, such as "lilac" and "parma," "pink and fuchsia," and to have plain white sports dresses with a "wardrobe" of jackets.

Simply Made Crocheted Cape Adds Lacy Glamour to Frocks

By Alice Brooks.

Pattern 5854.

A WISP of lacy glamour—this crocheted cape, one that will add no end of allure to dinner or evening frock! Miss or Matron will love it in dazzling white, a flattering pastel, or black. Its simple "repeat" stitch and that of its ruffle trim are easy ones to memorize. Get busy on it soon, for there'll be many an informal evening, too, when you can wear it. Use mercerized cotton number 10. In pattern 5854 you will find complete instructions for making the cape shown; an illustration of it and of all stitches used; a photograph of a section of it in about actual size; material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Washington Post, Household Arts Dept., 259 W. 14th St., New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and pattern number.

Parisian Shops Stress Lamps As New Decorative Medium

The White color scheme of this living room is carried out in the accessories as well as in the larger pieces of furniture, the lamp with its washable shade, adding a decoration that is easily kept fresh. The draperies and leather chair are white. Color relief is supplied by the blue-green binding on the lamp shide and black trimmings on the commode.

By Rebekah Blake.

LAMPS are rapidly gaining in importance as a decorative medium. Paris shops are showing many innovations in lamp designs and American shops are adopting these new ideas.

At the recent New York Lamp Show, plastic materials in both solid and transparent effects were much favored for lamps not only in new designs but also to give an up-to-date touch to lighting equipment of traditional style. Lamp shades of cellulose and of rayon were used to modernize old-time lamp bases. Colored finishes often appeared as decorative motifs on shades or as all-over treatments on the lamp bases.

White lamps and shades are especially popular. They are suitable both for modern rooms and for those with antique furnishings. White lamps lend a note of lightness and freshness to a room and white shades give off more light than do darker shades.

One new lamp shown was in "X" shape, with candles of old-fashioned wax at each end held in plates of exotic wood. The shades were of parchment. Also shown was a cubic lamp of red leather studded with two lines of gold nails and equipped with a shade of beige parchment laced with red leather thongs.

Transparent plastic materials were effectively used on lamps. One fixture had a base consisting of a series of graduated spheres of this material on a metal stand, with shade studded with plastic beads in geometric design. Another was of pale green pottery with a plastic shade of the same tone, banded at the top with brown velvet.

Among the modernized lamps inspired by old-fashioned styles was a brown pottery lamp with a shade of white cellulose trimmed with heavy brown braid; also a brass empire lamp with a transparent shade in green and gold. Interesting candlesticks in the styles of earlier years, but in new materials, included a desk type of metal with two candles in pale green glass and green parchment shade. Another type was made of wood and crystal with candles of pale pink glass and shade of beige parchment trimmed with pink beads.

Modern lamps included fussier styles that were popular in the early 1900's, but now appear in modern material—such as a ball-shaped lamp of yellow transparent plastic with shade-trimming of white crystal-like beads of the plastic hanging from brown velvet edging. Also in this group was a night table lamp with a shade of rayon tulle decorated with small painted motifs.

Lamps for children's rooms were seen in quaint designs. One of these, which was of wood with a painted finish showed an amusing chick with the egg from which it had just emerged. A fish design was used for a lamp which combined wood and transparent plastic material. A china lamp has a shade of celluloss decorated with a flower design to match the base.

Looking glass was used on a floor lamp to form the base and a circular shelf for ash trays half-way up the stand. The shade was made of bias bands of parchment.

Designed for boudoir use was a linen finished shade in Bermuda blue with white mossy bread edging and a glossy inside surface. This shade appeared on a white lamp with a column-shaped base.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

New York, May 3.

KATE SMITH, the Maryland Nightingale, continues to be one of this town's biggest personalities and most generous spirits. And this spring I note a new cadenza in the Smithian symphony. The sweet-voiced radio star is becoming distinctly clothes-conscious—and for the first time.

ALICE HUGHES.

Kate has always been neat and clean and sweet-looking, but she has never shown any particular interest in clothes until now. She used to rush to the microphone wearing any dark dress nearest to hand. Now she trills into the dingus wearing a very high-style and costly black evening gown, and her hairdo is precise and handsome.

When I asked La Belle Smith the wherefore, she said that appearing before a big studio audience each Thursday night had done the trick. And she's very happy about it, too, for it adds still another interest to her full and colorful life. She says she's even stopped biting her nails, which was one of her few faults ever discernible in the swell girl.

Few realize that Katie is one of the leading sportswomen in the entertainment world. She adores the didoes at Lake Placid, our rather feeble version of St. Moritz, and she's slightly terrific at swimming and tennis. A couple of years ago she bought the Celtics, one of the world's greatest pro basketball teams, and she roots for them so loudly when they are passing and dribbling to victory that her manager, Ted Collins, sometimes has to tell her to be careful of her dignity. Added to all her other lovable qualities, the sight of Katie Smith dressed up fit to kill is a pleasing one. Drop around next Thursday.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Speaking of lady tennis sharks, we have just been treated to a fast look at the California bombshell, Alice Marble, one of the prettiest girls ever to smack the chalk lines. She and her mentor, Eleanor Tennant, just passed through on the way to Wimbledon and, we hope, glory. Miss Tennant not only coaches Alice, but designs her court duds as well . . . And I hear that Helen Wills Moody's screen test was hardly forte, or even thirty, and that the company which made it is inclined to drop the thought for the moment . . .

* * * *

I have a warning for the country's editors. I hear that Sam Goldwyn has engaged a corps of the prettiest and highest powered girl press agents in the land to sell the new Miriam Hopkins comedy, "Woman Chases Man," to the Nation. So the pretty press agents will now storm the editorial offices of America—and the editors had best find a better 'ole, and go to it!

* * * *

We had a great fashion show here not long ago, in which 15 well-known American women saw their fashion namesakes parade in characteristic clothes. The most delighted of the honored was Marjorie Hillis, of "Live Alone and Like It" fame. She thanked Maybelle Manning effusively for designing her a ducky street costume. "People seem to think I spend my whole life in lounging pajamas," Marjorie told me. Well, it would be a nice life, I guess.

* * * *

* * * *

The make-the-most-of-yourself books keep pouring from the weary presses. The newest I've seen is "Your Clothes and Personality," by Mildred Graves Ryan, who warns her readers against copying other girls' clothes and tells them how best to fit their raiment to their psyches. It's a smart tome and should help young ladies with clothes-woe.

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Logan Clendening.

Fever Prevention.

Scarlet fever, within the last 20 years, has been becoming milder and less frequent. Disease has a way of doing that, of running in cycles. This year, however, there has been a distinct increase in the number of cases reported practically all over the country although it is still mild.

A number of years ago a serum both for prevention and treatment was announced. At that time this department was not willing to indorse this because it did not appear to work out in practice successfully. Within the last three or four years, however, steady work has been done on improving this vaccine, and we are now prepared to revise our opinion concerning it.

Vaccine Is Used.

The prevention of scarlet fever is accomplished by the use of a vaccine which is put up in five doses, to be given about a week apart. The doses are of increasing strength. There is one drawback to this treatment, which is that sometimes the antitoxin causes reactions. These may be largely avoided, however, because they occur usually at about the third dose, and this dose may be split up and half of it given, two or three days apart. The same thing is frequently done with the fourth and fifth doses, so that as a matter of fact, eight doses are given by many physicians and reactions are very largely avoided

It appears to be effective in about 90 per cent of cases, and the immunization is partially completed very rapidly, approximately at the third dose.

The same thing can be said of the serum for curative treatment. This antitoxin has also been very greatly improved by work at many laboratories. It is much smaller in bulk than the old amount of antitoxin used, and much more effective. It should be given as early in the disease as possible.

Complications Reduced.

Its principal value consists in its ability to reduce complications. Complications of scarlet fever, such as infection of the ear, throat, eyes, and possibly skin abscesses, are among its most distressing features.

One health officer says: "There are few complications in patients receiving serum. A favorable effect in complications is evidenced by lessened severity and duration as well as incidence."

A favorable opinion of this serum has been expressed by the American Academy of Pediatrics, the membership of which consists of very conservative children's specialists, so that we may feel that this opinion is well based.

I think that parents at the present time might be glad to know of these developments in order to cooperate with their physicians in combatting the present epidemic of scarlet fever.

Editor's Note: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a 3-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Boys and Girls Trained in Mass Tend to Pattern

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

"NO, I don't like Miss Bank's school. The girls all have to wear uniforms and so look like a lot of orphans."

The same parents who will make such a complaint of outward uniformity, however, are quite content to have their children put into a mold of conformity when they are still toddlers and turned out 16 or 18 years later, just like everyone else.

The whole trend of present-day training and education is toward mass production. By the time the processing is complete, the boys and girls are as far as possible of the same model.

Makes for Mediocrity.

It simplifies education, and may simplify life, but it makes for mediocrity.

The world needs individuals, leaders, men and women who stand out above the general level. Let a child show any signs of nonconformity, however, and his life is made wretched for him, not only by the other children, but by his parents and teachers as well.

He must play games, make contacts, go through a routine schooling, look like the other children and act like them. No provision is made for the exceptional child, either at home or in school. If he is different, he must be wrong.

Chance Worth While.

Of course, many so-called exceptional children turn out to be merely eccentric. But there are many on whom it would be well worth while to take a chance.

The home can do much to help here.

It is not necessary to send every child to a nursery school or even to kindergarten. Some children do better for the special training and contacts which only the home can give.

Mothers and fathers and family life have a very definite function to perform in drawing out and cultivating the child's individuality before he is thrown into the educational hopper.

American Pursuit of 'Smartness' Widens Job Field for Women

New School Will Train Girls for Fashion Careers.

THE AMERICAN WOMAN'S pursuit of style and personality—now second only to that of the Parisienne—is bringing into being a new type of educational institution. The School for Fashion Careers which Julia Coburn, former editor of the Ladies Home Journal, and Tobe, New York stylist, will open next fall in New York will be the first of its kind in the country and will mark a milestone in feminine professional advance.

This school is making about as much hubbub in the fashion world as the opening of the first school of journalism did in newspaper circles. For fashionists up to this time have, like the old-time newspaper worker, gotten all of their training in what they fondly call "The University of Experience."

Now by technical and professional training the School for Fashion Careers hopes to shorten the long periods of apprenticeship which women following fashion careers have had to undergo and, in the words of Miss Coburn, "give its graduates the joy of succeeding while they are still young."

Shortens Apprenticeship.

The idea for the school was born in the many letters that Miss Coburn, while serving as a fashion editor, received from ambitious girls who wanted to know how to prepare for fashion careers and to get jobs on leaving school.

"It was discouraging," she said, 'to have to tell these youngsters that nobody wanted them now—except to pound a typewriter or sell behind a counter. Not that those positions don't provide worthwhile experience, but fashion apprenticeship for a girl of good education and ability should be provided in months rather than years."

Miss Coburn and Tobe are enthusiastic about the future of fashion careering in the United States. They point out that women who hold important positions in fashion are, year in and year out, the best paid in the world. Unlike stage and screen stars their earning capacity increases with age. Many young women in fashion work have reached $10,000 salaries by the time they are 30. And some in their 50's and 60's are still occupying important positions.

Follow the French.

Moreover, the widespread interest in fashions on the part of the American woman holds great future for the business.

"The American woman," says Miss Coburn, "is beginning as the French woman has done for years—to concentrate on herself, her figure, her clothes, her makeup, her charm. She realizes the influence of all these factors on her social and business success. For this is an era that worships personality.

"Paris still leads the world in the creation of fashion ideas, but America, through its production methods, leads the world in fashions for the masses. Our ready-to-wear industry, our stores and shops, and our films all contribute to nation-wide rapid acceptance of new fashions.

"American women are no longer charmed by the magic of a Paris label. They are developing high standards of taste, becomingness and appropriateness in dress, and are far more discriminating in their purchasing than heretofore. Trusting their own judgment, they are not so dependent upon French names.

Julia Coburn (above), fashion editor and Tobe (below), stylist, head a new school to train women for fashion careers.

The school will train young women for fashion work in retail stores in the manufacturing field, in advertising agencies and on newspapers and magazines. The faculty will be composed of prominent men and women in the field of fashion, teaching, editing, advertising, manufacturing and retailing.

Miss Coburn, a graduate of Vassar College, has had extensive experience in fashion merchandising, has been connected with leading newspapers and magazine as fashion writer and publicist. Tobe (in private life Tobe Coller Davis) was a pioneer in a new profession for women, creating her own job as America's first stylist. For 10 years she has headed her own fashion reporting organization for department stores and specialty shops.

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

WE ARE PUT in our place and awed by the baronial hall proportions of some of the living rooms we have seen in new houses being built around town. We just can't picture Mame and Dan, home of an evening, rattling around in these barn-like rooms with vaulted ceilings and long vistas through French windows. We think our grandmammas were rather sensible when they went in for "front" and "back" parlors, the former for back-straight, down-the-nose formality, and the latter for hooking the knees over a chair arm with a book (if our grandmammmas ever did such things!) We imagine it won't be long before we'll be presented with problems in how to make a big room look smaller and more friendly.

In the meantime, however, there are still lots of us with small living rooms which we are continually trying to enlarge—by artifice. Well, magicians aren't the only ones who can use mirrors to fool the eye. Mirror sills and facings for the window are clever for both enlarging a room and brightening it, so are mirrror panels between windows.

Another trick, of course, is carpeting completely, so that the eye travels cleanly and unhesitatingly to the edges of the room, not being detoured by broken spaces of scatter rugs or wide borders of hardwood floors in contrast to a 9 by 12 Sarouk. And in addition, be sure that walls, woodwork and curtains are the same color, and so much the better if that's likewise the color of the carpets.

On the subject of paint in enlarging the effect of the room, remember what one white wall can do, especially if it's the window wall in "letting out" a room. A lighter than the wall ceiling color raises the ceiling, a darker than the wall lowers the ceiling, and this latter sometimes helps the effect of spaciousness in a small room with a too high ceiling. Avoid big scale patterns in rugs, fabrics or wallpaper if you want a room to seem larger than it is. In fact, a monotone room with no pattern or very little in it will create the illusion of such wide and tranquil spaces if you plan it just right.

And then arrangement of furniture can do worlds. Avoid cat-a-corner arrangements or furniture out in the floor at right angles to the wall. Set your chairs and sofa, as well as your rugs, straight and forth-right, so that the corners of the rooms are not slurred off and made blurry. Big, bulbous furniture is difficult in a small room. If you have that combintaion, get the over-stuffing slenderized when you have it reupholstered.

Act of Running Devoid of Grace In Most Women

Why Do Ladies Persist in Public Dashes, Asks Male Artist.

Apropos of the present craze for glamour, a man artist has contributed to The Post's woman's page the following discussion on feminine grace—or rather the lack of it.

By S. F. Perkins.

RUN is a word that women abhor.

And very well they may. The sinking sensation caused by a run on a bank is hardly greater than the feeling of dismay brought on by the parting of silken threads. This calamity is supposed by many to be the worst that can befall a well-groomed woman. But is it?

Unsightly though a stocking run may be, it is a trifle compared to the short run to catch a trolley. Here is the destroyer of feminine charm. The simple act or running as performed by most women is totally devoid of any grace.

Why do women persist in making public dashes when they are so severely handicapped? Long skirts, tight skirts, high heels and handbags hamper the free movement of both arms and legs in running. To run well, one must run with abandon. Add traffic hazards to the restrictions above and to run at all is a problem, indeed.

Running is an art as much as dancing, walking, riding and swimming. In all of these, except running, women excel. In the ballroom the smooth-flowing movements of their lithe bodies, the lightness of their step, their rhythmic gyrations put their male partners to shame. The supple, calculated action they possess when riding, swimming and hiking is a continual source of delight to escorts and observers alike. But when they run they are lost.

Most women run with a jerky, tied-in stride that resembles "trucking" sans music. Handbags are clutched firmly to the body, forcing the torso to twist from side to side to retain even a semblance of balance. The stilted action of the legs is restricted at the knee, which is barely lifted, and the whole result is rather grotesque.

Westbrook Pegler, writing of the Olympics, mentioned women had no right to run at all. Perhaps he meant only in competitions where the strain is great enough to distort features even when the body is performing smoothly and well. This must be true, because women can and do run beautifully when properly attired.

Trying to catch street cars and buses or beating the office clock should be strictly taboo. This type of competition is not applauded by the opposite sex and its effect on the runner's appearance is certainly anything but good.

So to women who wish to appear graceful and charming in this hurrying, everyday world, walk—don't run—to the nearest exit.

Bob Burns Says

By Bob Burns.

It's kinda foolish to worry and fret about little troubles that come up in your life because, as time goes on, you'll find you'll forget 'em entirely, and years later, if somebody happens to mention the incident, you'll probably find that you've forgotten it altogether.

I remember when Uncle Tate and Aunt Flutey got married. The preacher was late showin' up at the weddin' and Uncle Tate almost worried himself to death. If the preacher hadn't finally showed up when he did, I believe Uncle Tate's heart would have stopped altogether.

Ten years later, he happened to run into this same preacher and the preacher says, "Do you remember jest ten years ago, I gave you an awful fright?" and Uncle Tate says "Yes, and I still got her!"

Bottles

Whisky bottles, beer bottles, eatsup bottles—all kinds of bottles—diversions for the Maritime Security Division, Hydrographic Office in the Navy Department. For bottles, with little slips of paper sealed inside, are tossed overboard from a liner, float around for a year or two, are picked up on a distant shore and eventually find their way back to the division's headquarters here in Washington.

The division uses this technique, usually confined to starving shipwrecks and mystery writers, to check on currents in the ocean. They print little slips of paper—with instructions in eight languages, including English and Esperanto—to be filled in with date and longitude and latitude, sealed in a bottle and tossed overboard. The idea is, some years later the same bottle is found on the shore, its message completed with date, longitude and latitude of spot where it was found, and sent in to the division. This way they check which direction the current goes, and how fast.

Perhaps it isn't too scientific, admits William G. Watt, assistant chief of the division, but it's interesting work. Filled-in massages come in from all over, sometimes as many as 30 a week. The longest trip recently came in last week. The container had been tossed overboard off Mexico's West Coast, and had traveled 8,600 miles to Leyte, P. I., in 1 year 4 months 26 days flat. Trouble is, it may have lain on the Leyte Beach for several weeks before being found.

There's no reward for sending in the message. The instructions emphasize that. But one Irish boy sent in a bottle message, said America was paved with gold, he needed a reward to buy food. So ten persons in the division chipped in, sent him a dollar. Once a West Indian asked for a dress for his wife, and a Bible, as his reward. The division wrote him, said no reward was possible, but passed the letter on. The man got his Bible; they don't know about the dress.

One missionary down in the Marshall Islands, in the Pacific, sends in bottle messages regularly—almost a regular subscriber. Occasionally messages come in with "Ship sinking" scribbled on the back, with the longtitude and latitude. At first the division was worried, but shortly found out all the positions given were somewhere in the midst of a mountain range or prairie.

* * * *

The bottle business isn't all the division does, however. Most important is its work checking up on derelicts, wreckage and icebergs that obstruct navigation. It receives daily reports from merchant ships, makes up a complete chart each night, broadcasts locations of all obstructions from the Alexandria Navy station.

Icebergs, says Watt, are coming a little far south this spring, not dangerous, but farther than usual. Ships have already shifted their course, are using southern routes on the North Atlantic. April is the worst month for bergs, Watt reveals. He reminds that it was April that saw the Titanic disaster.

* * * *

Forty-three ships never troubled by icebergs, derelicts or wreckage are the luxurious models owned by the Navy, worth well over $200,000. These used to be exhibited all over the country, until the Navy discovered they couldn't do it—no law empowers them to ship the boats. Recently they've sent three down to Dallas (Tex.) Exposition, since Congress' law encourages participation by the Government. The ships are so delicate it cost $1,100 just to pack and carry the three one way. H. C. Brunner, chief clerk of Construction and Repair Bureau in the Navy, has charge of them. Says a model of the new battleships will probably be made eventually. But not for another four years—until the ships themselves are finished.

Combat Reds By Education, P.-T.A. Urged

Delegates Are Asked to Study Communism, Not Ignore It.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

A Staff Correspondent

Richmond, Va., May 3.—A careful study of communism is the best way to combat it, Dr. Forrest E. Long, professor of education, New York University, tonight told 2,000 delegates to forty-first annual convention of the Parent-Teachers Association.

Attempts to curb communism any other way are futile, declared the speaker.

"For example," he said, "the city of Washington has been attempting to combat communism by the enforced ignoring of it in the schools. As a result it is probably true that no children anywhere in the country know as much about communism as do the Washington pupils. Knowledge is not good or bad—it is true or false."

Turning his attention from communism to world peace, Dr. Long urged educational programs in all schools as an effective way to end war. In conclusion, he summed up the points of his talk on "The Literate Community" by listing what he said were five test questions that should be asked any community claiming to be literate. They are:

"Does it insist upon an open door for the entrance of new ideas? Does it plan? Does the community provides adequate physical and social accommodations for all its members, old as well as young? Does it have a genuine concern over local, State and national affairs? Has this community a wholesome interest in its schools?"

Mrs. B. F. Langworthy, president of the P.-T. A., presided at the meeting. Platform guests were the following chairmen of the national committees; Mrs. Hugh Bradford, Sacramento, Calif.; Mrs. B. C. Clark, Sutter Creek, Calif.; Mrs. Simon Lapham, Providence, R. I.; Mrs. Fred Raymond, Detroit; Miss Ellen C. Lombard, Washington, D. C.; William H. Bristow, Washington, D. C.

Warns of Liquor Menace.

Youth's need for less liquor and cigarettes and more vocational guidance in school and home were stressed by speakers on opening programs of the convention.

The delegates who assembled in the John Marshall Hotel auditorium for the initial session were warned of the alcoholic and narcotic menaces now threatening youth and were urged to use their influence to keep boys and girls away from cocktail bars and slot machines, and out of poolrooms and low-grade motion-picture shows.

More effective vocational guidance was described as a crying need of the day by Dr. John W. Studebaker, United States Commissioner of Education featured speaker at the morning session.

Presenting to the delegates the convention theme, "the place of the home in the community," Mrs. Langworthy bore out Dr. Studebaker's belief in the importance of educating parents. The need for this, she said, has already been recognized by the Parent-Teachers Association, and a program to meet it is being worked out. A more pressing need, however, is the abolishment "of such forces for youth's corruption as the tavern, the pool room, low-grade motion pictures, and bank nights," the president declared.

The convention received a letter from President Roosevelt in which he said: "Again it gives me pleasure to congratulate the National Congress of Parents and Teachers on the program of its work in the interest of parents and boys and girls of the Nation. I regard the children as the most precious assets of the Nation and I urge you to redouble your efforts to surround them with every safeguard possible in the home, the school, and the community. I am glad to give my hearty indorsement to the movement of co-operation between parents and teachers and I wish you all success in the development of your work."

Nomination of the national officers who will be elected tomorrow was another high-light of today's program. The slate as presented to the convention is as follows: Mrs. J. K. Pettingill, Detroit, president; Mrs. Warren L. Mabrey, of Cape Girardeau, Mo., secretary; Dr. W. T. Sanger, of Richmond, treasurer; Mrs. John E. Hayes, Twin Falls, Iowa, first vice president; Dr. Thomas W. Gosling, Washington, D. C., second vice president.

Nine conferences were carried on simultaneously in the early afternoon, when various groups centered their attention on "modern needs in school and home."

Capital's Last Fire Horse Heeds Death Siren, Leaves Reservation for Greener Pastures

Mrs. Maude Booth Makes Plea Here For Destitute Girls

Mrs. Maude Ballington Booth, the "little mother" who more than two score years stood on boxes in New York's Union Square and said that "men should look up—there is hope"—yesterday stood in the Washington Hotel, spoke in behalf of penniless girls who have a will to work but no shelter because of circumstances.

Out of her words, the Volunteers of America was founded 41 years ago. Now she has seen in Washington a need for a "hospice" to shelter destitute young women of what she calls the "white collar group."

The movement already has been started by Lieut. Maj. H. Mills Eroh, commander of the local Volunteers' post, but $5,000 is required to complete the project.

The facts were laid before the annual breakfast meeting of the District Sunshine and Community Society in the Shoreham Hotel.

The Sunshine Society, a philanthropic organization, elected officers for the year as follows: Mrs. Esther M. Blair, president, succeeding Mrs. Eugene Thompson; Mrs. Marie C. Deal, first vice president; Mrs. H. Stuart Boyer, second vice president; Mrs. H. A. Matson, recording secretary; Mrs. M. H. Uelsmann, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Claude Wright, treasurer; Mrs. H. E. Huntsberry, auditor; Mrs. Eugene Thompson, and Mrs. T. K. Powers, directors. The program marked the organization's twenty-fifth anniversary.

Tom, last of Washington's fire horses, who raced through the streets with smoke-belching apparatus at the dawn of the motorized era, is dead.

The great dapple-gray steed died peacefully of old age in his pasture-land at the Government Reservation in Blue Plains yesterday. He was 27 years old, and had been retired, an honored pensioner of the District, for the past 12 years.

Last active service performed by Tom was as one of the horses attached to the water tower. When the automobile completely invaded his domain and that of his four-footed coworkers, Tom was sent to graze, with his companions in harness, Gene and Barney.

Firemen, remembering more spectacular days of fire-fighting, came to visit Tom and his mates, and to stroke their heads and pat their manes and give them apples and lumps of sugar.

Then Gene and Barney died. And Tom remained. Sometimes in the distance he heard the clanging of a fire bell, or the shriek of sirens in the busy city he used to serve.

Until the last two years Tom was a participant in the Firemen's Parade. Wherever firefighters met, they asked about Tom. As the years passed he grew increasingly famous.

With Gene and Barney, Tom, at the age of 3, joined the department in 1913.

The three horses were attached to old No. 8 Engine, 637 North Carolina avenue southeast, and they got their names from the officers of that company, Capt. Thomas Buckley, Lieut. Barney Haynes and Sergt. Gene Trainor.

Tom and his mates figured in many fires—notably the Jackson Furniture Co., the National Hotel, Kann's warehouse and the Knickerbocker Theater diaster.

The last run the steeds took together was on June 15, 1925. At this tmie there was a ceremony, attended by District officials and members of Congress.

Floral wreaths, horseshoe-shaped, were placed around their necks, while school children clapped their hands and adults looked on in admiration touched with sadness.

When Tom and Gene and Barney first went to Blue Plains there was a suggestion that they be made into work horses. Firemen and others who loved the steeds and the era they represented succeeded in preventing it.

The last time the three appeared together in review was in 1929, but until a few years ago Tom was a promenader. His final bow was during the firemen's parade in Alexandria, where he was harnessed with two strangers.

In retirement, Old Tom's closest friend was Lieut. A. J. Bargagni, who came to see him regularly.

"I always said if I died first I wanted Old Tom to follow in the funeral," said Bargagni yesterday.

When the watchman went to rouse Old Tom yesterday he found the great, dapple-gray form still upon the grass.

And then he knew Old Tom was dead.

But some strange coincidence, a blaze flared in a barn a mile and a half distant from Blue Plains last night. The flames licked the sky and firemen got the first alarm from Blue Plains.

When they arrived, the watchman thought they had come for Old Tom.

"No," the firemen said, "it's the fire over yonder. We didn't even know Old Tom was dead."

Higher Fines Levied; Court Hits Speeders

Curran Warns Reckless Drivers to Expect No Leniency.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

Stiffening of penalties on all types of traffic offenses marked the beginning of a new term in Traffic Court yesterday, with Judge Edward M. Curran presiding. Repeatedly admonishing motorists on trial, he increased penalties as much as 50 per cent over any day in last month's session of the court, records disclosed.

Determined to "stop this killing of citizens" needless negligence on District streets, Judge Curran served notice that accused motorists would receive no mercy during his tenure on the traffic bench.

He struck particularly at speeders and persons who operate cars without first obtaining permits.

Lashes Illegal Drivers.

"Too many persons don't bother to secure driving permits or renew expired ones because they feel certain they will be given another chance if apprehended," said Judge Curran. "I am going to put a stop to this. There will be no more personal bonds or reprimands to motorists convicted of driving without licenses."

With few exceptions, accused speeders arraigned before Judge Curran yesterday received maximum sentences. In each case, however, the defendant was given an opportunity to present his or her side of the case.

The heaviest penalty permitted under law for first offense reckless driving went to Jack Treadwell, 1500 block of Vermont avenue northwest.

On Way to Hospital.

Contending he was en route to Freedmen's Hospital with an injured woman, Treadwell was charged with running through a red signal light at Vermont avenue and U street northwest and striking another car.

Witnesses said the man was traveling approximately 30 miles an hour and was sounding his horn constantly. He failed, however, to slow down at the dangerous intersection.

Judge Curran fined Treadwell $100 or 30 days in jail.

Another motorist, accused of 80 miles an hour speed and driving without a permit told the court:

"I intend to get a license."

But his "good intentions" came too late, Judge Curran said, and fined the driver a total of $40.

N. Y. Motorist Is Freed.

Reckless driving charges against a New York motorist were dismissed for lack of evidence. Lambros Papageorge, Coney Island salesman, drove his car through the plate glass window of a dress shop at 1325 E street northwest following a collision in front of the National Theater.

Rice Hooe, assistant corporation counsel, charged both Papageorge and Hiram Weiss, of the New Colonial Hotel, with reckless driving as a result of the accident. When Judge Curran dismissed charges against Papageorge, Hooe nolle prossed the counts against Weiss.

Damage to the store was estimated at $650.

Board Action on Permits.

Vincent D. Burch, 763 Quebec place northwest, suspended; Benjamin Carow, 3537 Edmunds street northwest, revoked; Charles Daniels, 2020 Jackson street northeast, suspended; Helen C. Dapray, 2700 Connecticut avenue northwest, suspended; Oscar M. Eisen, 144 Bates street northwest, revoked; Berkley Inge, 1451 Monroe street northwest, revoked.

Woman Lacking $1 To Pay for Room Attempts Suicide

Because she lacked $1 of her $4 room rent due yesterday, Lillie L. Munford, 29, was found shot in the chest in her rooming house at 925 Twelfth street northwest yesterday.

Taken to Emergency Hospital, she told doctors she had shot herself with a .38 caliber revolver found in the room. Miss Munson's condition was described as critical and she was transferred to Gallinger Hospital.

The woman was found by a maid who entered to clean up. Miss Munson asked her to call a doctor.

"My bed is full of blood. I've been shot," she said.

Friends told police the woman lost her job selling perfume in a downtown store three months ago and since has been peddling goods from door to door.

The landlord said $4 rent was due from Miss Munford yesterday. Only $2.98 was found in the flat.

Dupont Group Opposes Shrine At Tidal Basin

Michigan Park Citizens Support Compulsory Auto Inspection.

Opposition to a Jefferson Memorial in the Tidal Basin was voted yesterday by the Dupont Circle Citizens Association.

Officers also were chosen.

Demarest Lloyd was re-elected president; W. P. Houghton, first vice president; W. F. Crosby, second vice president; R. S. Marshall, secretary, and W. H. Gill, treasurer. Dr. Harry Garfield and Maj. L. M. Leisinring were elected to the executive committee.

Favors Auto Inspection

The Michigan Park Citizens Association last night indorsed the bill which would provide for compulsory semiannual inspection of motor vehicles in the District.

The association also indorsed Col. William Peak, superintendent of Lorton Reformatory, for the post of superintendent of District Penal Institutions.

It was voted to conduct a prize contest for gardens. Twenty-five dollars was set aside for three prizes.

Dr. Clinchy Re-elected Head of Social Agencies

Dr. Russell J. Clinchy, pastor of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, again will head the Council of Social Agencies as president for the coming year. His re-election by the board of directors was announced yesterday by Mrs. W. A. Roberts, executive secretary of the council.

Re-elected with Dr. Clinchy were Mrs. William Kittle, first vice president; John Ihlder, second vice president; Charles W. Pimper, treasurer. The elections were all unanimous, the slate being presented by the nominating committee.

New Welfare Board Asked By Sen. King

Bill Would Substitute Three Paid Experts for 9-Man Body.

Senator King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, yesterday introduced a bill to scrap the present Board of Public Welfare and substitute a board of three experts, each to be paid $7,000 a year. It provides also for a paid secretary.

There are nine members on the present Board of Public Welfare, all serving without a salary. However, there is a paid director and a paid assistant director. Senator King's bill would abolish these posts.

The King bill is similar to the Wood bill in the House, except that it provides salaries of $7,000 for the social welfare experts who would serve on the board instead of $10,000.

Asked to Sponsor Bill.

Senator King explained he had sponsored the bill by request and would be guided by the attitude of the District Commissioners. However, he intimated the bill had his support.

Hearings probably will be held before sub-committees of both the Senate and the House District committees in the near future. Representative Wood (Democrat), Missouri, will try to arrange for a House inquiry when the committee meets this week.

King also introduced an amendment to a bill authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to acquire additional land for future Federal building. The amendment provides that before any streets or alleys within the area may be closed, such action must be recommended by the District Commisioners.

Calls Airport Commission.

Favorable reports, with amendments, are expected on both the juvenile court bill and the small claims court bill when the Senate District Committee meets at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Senator King, chairman, said he expects the committee to complete action on both measures, which have been pending for several weeks following public hearings.

After Elwood Street, director of the Board of Public Welfare, had been accused of being "anti-labor," the Central Labor Union last night voted "to withhold its co-operation from the board until labor receives representation."

The organization also approved the Wood bill which would reduce the number of welfare board members to three and abolish the office of director.

Unanimous disapproval was placed on "any Federal economy drive that will lower wages or cause dismissals of Government employes."

Morris Verbov, business manager of the Hotel Employes Alliance, told the meeting he had preferred charges with the National Labor Relations Board against the A. and W. Hot Shoppes for the dismissal of two employes, allegedly for union activity.

Ruth Draper Is Triumphant in Her First Bill

Una-Dramas at National Win Ovation From Select First-Night Audience.

By Nelson B. Bell.

For three full hours last night in the National Theater, Ruth Draper held the rapt attention of a less numerous audience than she deserved, but one that made up in distinction whatever it may have lacked in house-packing proportions.

There were present in the auditorium, Chief Justice and Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, of the Supreme Court of the United States; Mr. Justice Stone, of the same high tribunal; Sir Ramsay MacDonald, British Ambassador and Minister Plenipotentiary of Great Britain, and others of like standing in the present governmental, business, social and diplomatic circles of Washington.

Miss Draper's program was a marvel of one-woman versatility and difference of approach to the various sketches to which she addressed herself. Last night's bill was one of admirable diversification. It embraced four items of major interest. First was the "Opening Day at a Bazaar," then "In County Kerry," as the ostensible piece de resistance of the entertainment, "Three Women and Mr. Clifford," done in three scenes, and, finally, "In a Church in Italy."

Last Shall Be First.

To this casual observer, the most effective of all these always has been "In a Church in Italy," by reason of the wide range of characters which it covers and Miss Draper's demonstration in the last scene that she is as adept at pantomime as in auricular characterization. There are comedy, tragedy, pathos, the penny-snatching activities of the professional mendicants and the abject penitence of a scarlet woman blended here in a mosiac of miniature studies that ranks as a masterpiece.

To many, "Three Women and Mr. Clifford" will be the outstanding feature of Miss Draper's first bill, but there is just a chance that this subject may prove a little boresome to those out front. Miss Draper portrays the secretary, wife and inamorata of the fictional, and always invisible, "Mr. Clifford" in this three-scene study and not always is aware of the demand for variety in her work. The private secretary is, to my notion, by far the most effective of the three portrayals that this skit reveals, with Mrs. Mallory running a close second.

High Comedy Note.

The comedy note is resoundingly struck in "Opening a Bazaar," with which last night's bill was inaugurated, and then came an equally impressive display of the artiste's capacity for pathos. "In County Kerry" relates in simple terms, and a finely assumed brogue, the story of a mother who has lost her favorite son in the war. There is tenderness in the lines and an immensely potent emotional appeal in the drama that Miss Draper is able to inject into this so-called "una-drama."

In "In a Church in Italy," the final presentation of the evening, Miss Draper runs the gamut, as the saying goes, of emotional approach to a sacred subject. All manner of visitors to a sacred place of worship stop before a painting that is magnificent in concept and execution. Each reacts differently. There are the ardent worshiper, the American tourist, the Italian beggar, the woman of the streets and the rest of a long line to give variety and vigor to Miss Draper's remarkably facile art.

Bill Changes Tonight.

And it is an art that she possesses—the art of peopling the stage with invisible characters and making unusually vivid those which she herself portrays. Her program last night was long. It might ordinarily have been expected to depopulate the theater before it was over, but it did no such thing. It held every auditor in his seat and won the solo artiste of the evening no less than an ovation at the fall of the final curtain. That is an achievement for any single actress, unsupported by cast or material investiture, barring one set of tan drapes and the footlights.

Tonight's bill at the National, where Miss Draper is booked for the week, will be completely different from last night's. As a matter of fact, I think no two bills during the week are to be identical—which is just another evidence of Miss Draper's amazing versatility.

She is a creative artiste to be seen by all lovers of the theater, as is true also of her only active competitor, Cornelia Otis Skinner. Both are players of unique endowment.

Nelson B. Bell About The Show Shops

Pearl S. Buck, Noted Novelist, Turns Playwright, Although Her Stage Works Will Be a Year Deferred

Author of 'The Good Earth,' a Recent 'Road-Show' Picture, Has Written Two Plays That Have Been Accepted by Katharine Cornell and McClintic.

PEARL S. BUCK, whose most distinguished novel is "The Good Earth"—although she has written several others—has become a playwright.

This change of medium probably was induced in part by the success of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of "The Good Earth," which recently closed a successful three-week, "read-show" booking as a two-a-day attraction at the National Theater, and by her having witnessed Katharine Cornell's performance as Oparre in Maxwell Anderson's play of "The Wingless Victory."

BELL.

She has written "The Empress," a drama dealing with a great dowager empress of China, for Miss Cornell. As the "first lady of the American theater" does not wish to follow one Oriental character immediately with another, "The Empress" probably will not be presented on the boards for a year or so.

Mrs. Buck, incidentally, has just completed a second play, "Flight Into China," which Guthrie McClintic has accepted for production next winter. This in all probability will be his second production of the year, as he plans to begin his season with "Blind Man's Buff," by Ernest Toller and Denis Johnston.

So great has been the demand for seats for the Washington Civic Theater production of "Lysistrata," currently being shown in the Wardman Park Theater, that the engagement of this 2,300-year-old Aristophanes farce has been extended through Thursday night of the present week. No matinee performances are being given, but the play is visible nightly at 8:30.

One of the genial gestures which E. Lawrence Phillips always may be relied upon to extend was celebrated last night at his Johnny J. Jones Exposition at Eighteenth and H streets northeast, when he entertained the full roster of The Post's route agents and carrier boys on the lot.

Under the ownership-management of Larry Phillips, the Johnny J. Jones Show has taken rank as the foremost of the carnival companies touring the country, recognizing, possibly, only one competitor of note—the Cherry-Rubin Shows.

The Post's carriers acknowledge no active competitor with the Johnny J. Jones outfit.

Today is the day when the drama desks, once again, are harassed by a sudden dislocation of schedules. At 1 o'clock is that luncheon at the Mayflower to the Samuel Goldwyn emissaries, and at 7 in the evening comes the premiere in Washington of the new Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers vehicle, "Shall We Dance?" at RKO-Keith's.

This Keith business, so I am given to understand, is one of those recherche events—to steal a word from Woody Van Dyke, that does not contemplate any two-for-one bartering of a double bill.

After the last showing of "The Woman I Love," costarring Paul Muni and Miriam Hopkins, beginning at 5:34, the house will be closed and then reopened for the first showing of "Shall We Dance," at 7:30 p. m., with another projection to follow at 9:44. So now you know.

• • • •

One of yesterday afternoon's major distractions turned out to be a brunette young woman by the name of Ethel Friedner, who is in town doing a little Grade-A advance work for "Woman Chases Man," a picture that soon will be seen on the screen of one of the Loew houses.

Miss Friedner professes a complete bewilderment as to the requirements of her present assignment, but seems to be in no immediate danger of professional collapse, what with her eyes and all!

Here is a young woman whose personal attributes are such as to suggest that the title of her picture should be "Man Chases Woman," although at the age of this column that is only a thought and not either a suggestion or a declaration of purpose.

Ethel, nevertheless, is finding her way strewn with the proverbial roses on her first visit to Washington as advance guard for a film play that is said to be pretty good.

We drama desks seem to be suckers for a pair of brown eyes—that is all but the distaff members of the craft. I can't speak for them.

Too many of the boys are beginning to show up with the groundwork of fine coats of tan. We heliophobes envy them, what with our blisters and all!

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, May 3.

"RUMMAGING through the files," writes Mrs. David Freedman, "I have unearthed so much splendid material written by David that I felt I must write you about it . . . David started his career as a writer of short stories—O'Brien reprinted the first one he ever wrote in 'Best Short Stories of 1922.' Harper's published his novel, 'Mendel Marantz,' from which he wrote his play, 'Mendel, Inc.,' and the Warner movie, 'Hearts of New York' . . . What there is left now is a great mass of unpublished, unproduced material, some of it incomplete. It all bears the stamp of David's great and genuine talents. Included among these are motion picture scenarios, musical comedies in a more or less fragmentary form. David was really at the portal of fame, great enduring fame. I would like the world to appreciate and enjoy his unique gifts as a creator of laughter and a weaver of fascinating tales."

"I'VE GONE BUCOLIC, here in Hollywood," Benny Rubin informs. "I bought myself a farm, planted 42 nursery trees—a foot high—and then bought three cows. Nothing's much happened—except that the cows ate up all my trees" . . . "Robert Foulk of the 'Brother Rat' company," writes J. M., "is decorating the new home of Sam and Bella Spewack. The decorating contract has a unique clause. In lieu of any graft he might have made—over and above his commission—Foulk has exacted a stipulation that when the Spewacks write their next play, a part will be written in especially for Foulk!"

"HERE ARE SOME news notes for you," L. F. P. wires, "Vinton Freedley will close 'Red, Hot and Blue!' tonight in Chicago. Merman refused to take a cut, and Freedley was unable to get Wini Shaw to replace her . . . Also, a corporation now is being formed to take over Col. Johnson's Show, which plays the Garden every year. It's being sold for $150,000 . . . And Lowell Thomas, it might interest you to know, will be the next president of the Advertising Club."

ON A POST-CARD displaying a Hebrew hotel in Palestine, the globe-circling Monroe Hellinger writes: "25,000 miles I've traveled already, Len, and what do I find? Grossinger's!" . . . "We feel that the case stated in your column," states Mark Dorio of the American Society for Race Tolerance, "with regard to discrimination against the Cotton Club chorus girls, is surely one within our province, and assure you that our prompt attention will be given in the matter." . . . Forgetting that Clare Boothe is wed to Publisher Henry Luce, Latham Greene and 36 others accuse: "Shame on you. Twice in one week you referred to the author of 'The Women' as 'Clare Luce,' when it should be 'Clare Boothe.'".

"INCLOSED IS A PHOTO you might not recognize," J. Edgar Hoover submits. "No, it's not a picture of a G-man's victim, stretched out stiff. It's the picture we took of you, during that fishing trip off Biscayne Bay. You were sleeping then, between internal upheavals" . . . "With regard to those suggestions you received, abou a testimonial dinner to me," Franklyn P. Adams assures, "I don't go to dinners in anybody's honor—let alone mine."

"THAT WAS A VICIOUS CRACK you took at Alice Duer Miller, by calling her 'venerable,'" John Pierpont writes. "Miss Miller is still in her fifties and, therefore, certainly not venerable" . . . "It may seem strange to you," is the lament of Dominic Graziano, "but after writing to you two years ago, I'm still looking for that Marx Brothers' height-stretcher. I've been a sailor for seven years, and the other seamen laugh at my lack of height. Next week I am sailing for Frisco, and intend to leave the ship there for Hollywood, in search of the place where the Marx Brothers are, to find out about that damn height-stretcher."

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDLER

Hollywood, May 3.—Bing Crosby's continued sniff of disfavor at studio efforts to entice his wife back to the screen brings to mind the fact that plenty of Hollywood husbands might be better satisfied were their wives to drop careers. Home versus profession has always been a major colony problem, and as long as the movies hold forth such enticements as gold and fame the contention will remain.

IRENE HERVEY.

Allan Jones told me just yesterday that while he encourages Irene Hervey in her work, he hopes she will soon tire of it and settle down to being a wife and mother (hopeful man.) To Miss Hervey he cites Mildred Davis Lloyd, Jobyna Ralston Arlen, and June Collyer Erwin, examples of wives who found greater happiness in retirement to home life. Irene always counters by pointing to Norma Shearer Thalberg and Frances Dee McCrea, who have made marriage and career blend beautifully.

I do advise Miss Hervey (and other career-wives) to regard the method by which Miss Shearer and Miss Dee made successes of their dual lives. They have often deserted the screen for long periods during which to have babies and be home bodies. In other words, they never permit careers to supersede homes in importance.

From a close study of the average Hollywood woman's point of view, I am inclined to believe that the commonness of divorce accounts for actresses' unwillingness to toss careers into the discard. So many who chose to be "just wives" were later divorced, only to find the comeback road hard and rocky. Dolores Costello and Virginia Bruce for examples.

I often wonder about the average person's conception of this colony. I believe women expect to see stars and film companies on every corner, while men are skeptical. To sustain this belief, Wendie Barrie relates that she was working on location at the railway station, when a well-groomed man and woman alighted from a transcontinental train

This Morning

The Sad Story of Shanty Hogan

By Shirley Povich.

J. Francis Hogan managed a weak smile as he took leave of the fellows who had been his Washington colleagues and cracked, "Well, guys, it was nice to have saw'n ya, anyway."

With that, the big guy shouldered his way through the crowded lobby and headed for the train that would take him to Washington, where he would pack his belongings for the trip back to the minor leagues. He was really quite broken up.

POVICH.

It was tough enough, he said, slipping out of the big leagues for the third time (and at his age of 32, he reckoned he'd never be back in the majors), but Shanty was getting it the rough way this time, he couldn't help but think.

"Jeez, just two more months and they couldn't do this to me," mourned the big Irishman. "That's what makes it tough. Just two more months and I'd be a 10-year man in the majors. Then they'd have to give me my release as a free agent if they wanted to get rid of me. That would have meant something to me."

* * * *

Soul Isn't Own.

Shanty is quite correct that it would have meant something to him. It would have meant that, as a 10-year man, he'd been able to sell his services to a minor league club and pocket the money, himself.

* * * *

The Washington Club sent an unannounced sum of cash along with Hogan to Indianapolis in exchange for Catcher John Riddle and, figured conservatively, Hogan is valued as a $5,000 chattel. If he had qualified as a ten-year man, the money that passed in the deal, and probably more, might have passed into Hogan's hands. No wonder Shanty was rueful.

* * * *

"But it's the racket I'm in, I guess," he said. "Your soul isn't your own in this business. Of course, I appreciate the chance the Washington Club gave me when they took me on last fall, but this release is still tough on me. I guess, though, it isn't the first time a ball player got the sack like this. Look what they did to Johnny Hodapp a few years ago. That was worse."

And what did they do to Hodapp?

"Why, he was slipping out there with the Cleveland Club, but he still had a lot of good baseball left in him. He could have sold himself to some minor league club for a pretty good chunk of money if Cleveland made him a free agent. But four days before he would have completed ten years in the majors they gave him the works—sold him to Little Rock or somewhere and pocketed the dough that should have been Johnny's."

* * * *

Hogan had a right to feel that he was getting an awful jolt in being traded to Indianapolis. This was the season which he felt would be his best in years. He had trained earnestly down South, shedding nearly 40 pounds in a heroic training siege. Foregoing all the pleasures to which he had been accustomed, including seven-course meals, and actually feeling as if he was getting into prime condition.

* * * *

But somehow he couldn't get started hitting and his work around the plate, despite his comparative agility was none too gilt-edged. Somewhere probably in that poundage he had shed, he lost his batting power. He was a huge handicap to the Nats on the attack. The new Hogan was not effective. He had left his vigor in the training camp, but, of course, he didn't know that.

His Washington teammates and fellows around the league have watched almost incredibly for the past two weeks as Al Simmons flopped as a hitter. The transformation of Simmons from one of the most feared batters in the big league to a literal set-up for the pitchers was something of a mystery.

But there was no doubt about it. Simmons was popping up, beating harmless grounders into the dirt, striking out or placidly watching third strikes sail by. He was helpless up there.

Finally Manager Harris benched him today in favor of Freddie Sington. Harris had no alternative and Simmons readily acknowledged it. But his batting slump nevertheless found Simmons in a frenzy to ascertain the reason.

One member of the Nats allowed as how Simmons never would hit as long as he continued his current batting posture. "Hell, nobody can hit the way Al is swinging," he said. "He doesn't draw that bat back until the pitch is past him. When he swings through it, it's too late.

"I know darn well that's his trouble, but what can a fellow do? Who am I to tell Al Simmons what's wrong with his batting. He's been a great hitter. I'm a comparative punk. He'd probably think I've got a heluva nerve, telling him how to hit. That's why I can't say anything to him."

And, a bit later in the afternoon, Al Simmons, in the Nats' dressing room, was on the verge of a moan. "Dammit all I can't figure out this slump," he said to a Philadelphia friend. "I wish somebody around here would tell me what I'm doing wrong."

Officials and Players in Action as Departmental League Opens

Terrapins' Title Hopes Fade as Duke Wins, 2-1

By Lewis F. Atchison.

A smooth fielding but not particularly hard hitting Duke nine nosed out Maryland, 2-1, yesterday at College Park, relieving the home team of the Conference pennant it won last season.

It was only Maryland's first league loss, but Duke, with 11 more victories than the Terps, has met defeat only once, too, hence Maryland's hopes of overtaking the Carolinians are slimmer than a grasshopper's ankle.

One reason Duke wasn't a hard hitting club yesterday was "Bull" Wood's slender Old Line left-hander, who enjoyed one of his best days in limiting the opposition to five measly hits. Two of these came in the third inning, however, along with a base on balls and truant pitch that sank itself deep in a Blue Devil's ribs and the net result was two runs—and victory.

Barley Stops Terps.

It took a big league candidate, "Speed" Barley, scheduled to join the Philadelphia Athletics immediately after graduation in June, to stop Maryland, though. The Terps had one run in and the tying marker reposing on third in the smiling person of Waverly Wheeler when Barley took the mound. He forced Bill Bryant and Fries to roll weakly to him and Egan to roll to Ambler, ending the inning, while the only thing that left third was Wheeler's smile. Barley didn't give up a hit in his two innings.

Another of the Athletics' prospective rookies, Wayne Ambler, played second for Duke, incidentally, and was one of the strongest links in the defense.

Maryland threatened twice before finally scoring, once filling the bases to capacity.

Knepley Singles.

In the third inning George Knepley led off with a single, and after Wood had popped up to Morris at third, Shorty Chumbris poked another safety into left field. Lefty Chombris rolled out to the pitcher, but Thomas raised Maryland's hopes by drawing a base on balls. All three were high, wide, but not so handsome when Ambler snagged Wheeler's line drive with his gloved hand.

In the next inning Bryant led off with a double and reached third on Surgent's infield out, only to be left when Duke pulled a fast double play. Eddie Johnson reached first on Morris' bad throw to Cheek, Bryant holding third, only to be rubbed out when Knepley rolled to second, starting the double killing.

Thomas opened the eighth with a single and scored on Wheeler's triple before Barley arrived on the scene, and thereafter the Terps' batting fell off remarkably fast.

Duke's Big Inning.

Duke's big inning started with Wood's erratic pitch into Watson's ribs. The pitcher was sacrificed to second by Ennis, went to third on Ambler's short hit to left and scored on Bergman's single to center. "Knocky" Thomas trapped Bergman off first with a quick peg to Knepley, who promptly shifted the play to Ambler, who in turn was caught off third and eventually run down by Wheeler. Bergman, meanwhile, had gone to third.

He scored when Tipton broke for second, drawing a peg from Thomas, which was cut off by "Shorty" Chumbris. The return throw was too high to get Bergman.

Georgetown Tops Wake Forest, 2-1

Nicketakis Displays Old Form, Allows 6 Hits; Keegin Is Star.

Big Nick Nicketakis, Georgetown's portly southpaw, signalized his return to form yesterday by hurling his mates to their seventh consecutive victory, a 2-1 decision over Wake Forest, at the Hilltop.

In trouble during the first three innings because of erratic support, Nick gave one of the best pitching exhibitions of the season overcoming this handicap. He granted only six hits in all, struck out five, and was in complete control of the situation at all times.

Wake Forest, considered one of the South's leading exponents of the ancient pastime, would have been ingloriously shut out but for an error, so stingy was Nicketakis with base knocks. Tom Keating, the responsible culprit, later atoned for his deed with a stinging single to center that scored Tony Barabas with the winning run.

Georgetown drew first blood in the second inning when Outfielder Tony Barabas beat out a hit to shortstop, stole second and then scored on Joe Keegin's single to centerfield.

In the fourth inning, Wake Forest evened the score. Warren, of Wake Forest, was safe at second when Tom Keating threw wild to Bassin, on first base, on Warren's grounder. A triple by Pitcher Wirtz scored Warren and matters stood even-Stephen at 1-all.

Late in the seventh inning, Barabas singled off the glove of Pitcher Wirtz. He then went to second on a sacrifice by Keegin and scored as Keating singled to center.

Al Simmons Resumes Place in Left Field

Works Impressively in Cleveland Workout; But He Loses Clean-up Post in Batting Order; Johnny Stone Will Go to Bat Fourth.

By Shirley Povich,
A Staff Correspondent.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 3.—Manager Bucky Harris will wiggle a finger in the direction of Al Simmons tomorrow afternoon, telling him to resume his place in left field for the Nats, and Simmons' one-game siege on the bench will be ended.

Harris gave Freddie Sington a shot at Simmons' outfield job the other day in Philadelphia on the theory that Sington could do no worse than Simmons had been doing in the Nats' batting order, but he was disagreeably surprised. Big Sington failed even more miserably.

He not only went hitless, striking out on one occasion with two men on bases, but he blundered into a double play that cut short a promising Washington rally in the sixth inning, when it appeared the Nats might tie the score.

He really did blunder into it. On his way to second base when Myer grouded to Cissell, Sington calmly permitted himself to be tagged by Cissell instead of flopping to the ground or at least knocking Cissell kicking, and the A's second baseman easily completed the double play.

Simmons Impressive.

Harris arrived at his decision to reinstate Simmons during the Nats' workout here today while the Cleveland club was in St. Louis. The black-browed Pole for the first time this season was really impressive. He rattled the offerings of Pete Appleton and Harold Conn against the fences, and Harris, watching the workout, was visibly impressed.

But Simmons will not go back to his clean-up hitting role in the Nats' batting order when the Nats' commence their three-game series with the Indians tomorrow. That honored spot he has forfeited as a result of his slump. He will bat fifth.

The important fourth place in the batting order has been assigned Johnny Stone, who compiled a .341 average as the Nats' clean-up socker last season. Stone, one of the few to escape the Nats' early season batting slump, collected three hits against the A's yesterday.

Harris is shuffling the regular routine of his pitching staff for the series here and is starting Buck Newsom against the Indians tomorrow despite the fact that both Joe Cascarella and Monte Weaver have not pitched since Newson beat the Yankees in Washington last Friday.

Recognizing Newson as his most effective pitcher as this stage Harris is taking care to keep the big fellow from rusting on the bench.

Pitching Duel Looms.

So the first 1937 clash of the Nats and Indians looms as a pitching duel between the club's respective ace right-handers. Manager Steve O'Neill, of the Indians, has indicated that the clever Mel Harder will be his pitching choice against Newsom.

The game also will mark the return to action of Roy Weatherly, Cleveland's sensational midget outfielder of last season, who has finally recovered from an injured hand. Manager O'Neill is rushing Weatherly into action on account of Rightfielder Bruce Campbell's unaccountable hitting slump.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 3.—A blond, broad-shouldered chap whose physique breathed of power, walked into the Nats' hotel tonight and introduced himself to Manager Bucky Harris as John L. Riddle, of Indianapolis.

Almost forgetting to shake hands with Riddle in his eagerness to survey the fellow for whom he had traded Shanty Hogan sight unseen, Harris finally blurted out:

"Glad to see you." And he was glad, for Riddle was several hours overdue and Harris was apprehensive that something had happened to block the deal with Indianapolis.

"You're bigger than I was led to believe," said Harris as he stepped back and appraised the minor league veteran catcher whom he hopes will fit into the Nats' No. 1 catching role.

"A hundred and ninety pounds, and I'm in shape," said Riddle, and there was no mistaking that drawl. He is from Georgia. "Ready to catch for you tomorrow."

Harris smiled. "The fact is," said the Nats' manager, "I was figuring on you to catch tomorrow. Hope I'm not rushing you, but there no sense in letting you hang around without working."

Riddle is 30 years old, not 32, as had been reported. For nine years he has been the first-string catcher of the Indianapolis Club with the exception of two months in 1930, when he had a tryout with the Chicago White Sox. Moe Berg and Bill Autry were the catchers for the White Sox then and Riddle couldn't make the grade.

Straiges Gets Decision Over Terranova

Camden Scrapper Wins Nod From New York Lightweight.

By Bill McCormick.

Joey Straiges, the Camden, N. J., lightweight, won the decision from Frankie Terranova, a freakish 135-pounder from New York, in a dismal 10-round "feature bout" at Turner's Arena last night.

Terranova, so short that he seemed to be fighting on his knees throughout the fight, swung furious misses from bell to bell. Straiges ran, blocked and countered to pile up a commanding lead going into the tenth round, which furnished the only satisfactory action of the contest.

Came the tenth, and Terranova at last connected with one of the whoopla wollops which had been going astray all night. This blow, a sweeping left hook to the head, set Joey down for a nine count.

Terranova had 130 pounds packed on his 4 foot 6 frame, Straiges weighed 133¾.

A crowd of 1,054, most of whom walked out before the last round, watched the peculiar match. Judge Charles Dunn and Referee Denny Hughes voted for Straiges, Judge O. U. Singer, thought the result a draw.

Frankie De Angelo, former ruler of the local featherweight division, continued his "comeback" winning streak by scoring a unanimous decision over Doug Swetnam in a six-round preliminary.

Billy Temes, a local lightweight, won a unanimous decision from Bob Anderson, of Leonardtown, Md., in another six-rounder.

Joey Archibald, bantamweight stablemate of Lightweight Champion Lou Ambers, soundly trounced Buddy Grimes, of Norfolk, to take a unanimous eight-round decision in a fast semifinal. Grimes was floored for a count of seven in the fourth round, three in the fifth and nine in the eighth, but Archibald was unable to keep the Norfolk gamester on the floor for the full count.

Weir Halts Giants As Bees Win, 3 to 1

Young Collegian Allows Six Hits and Drops Champions Further Behind Pirates; Phillies Capture Slugfest From Brooklyn, 14 to 8.

By the United Press.

New York, May 3.—The Detroit Tigers increased their American League lead a half game today by blasting the Chicago White Sox, 12-9, in a free-hitting affair at the Motor City.

It wa sthe only game played in the circuit, Cleveland at St. Louis, being rained out. No other games were scheduled.

The victory gave the Tigers a clean sweep of their three games against the Sox, and gave Clyde Hatter, who followed Pat McLaughlin to the mound in the fourth, his first win of the year. Italo Chelini, who relieved Sox Hurler Merritt Cain in the third, was the loser.

The Tigers collected 19 hits off the quartet of Chicago hurlers who worked, which was three less than the Sox totaled off the Detroit duo. Hank Greenberg clouted a homer with the bases loaded in the third in addition to a brace of singles. Mickey Cochrane hit a triple and two doubles and Billy Rogell a double and three singles.

Philadelphia outlasted the Brooklyn Dodgers in another wild scoring affair, blasting five pitchers for 21 hits and a 14-8 victory. It was a four-run spree in the eighth, resulting from four base hits and a balk by George Jeffcoat that gave the Phils their winning margin. Arnovich, with four singles, and Martin, with a triple, double and two singles, paced the Phillie attack. Credit for the victory went to Jorgens and the loss went against the record of Birkofer.

Bill Weir scattered six hits to the New York Giants to give the Boston Bees a 3-1 victory, and a 2-1 margin in their three-game series. The Bees scored all of their runs in the third off Hal Schumacher when Warstler and Moore singled and Cuccinello and Vince DiMaggio smacked doubles. The game was notable because of failure of the Giant outfield to make a single putout, tying a record held jointly by six other clubs. DiMaggio, brother of the New York Yankees' colorful outfielder, was spiked in the head in the fourth inning, but continued to play.

Joe Louis' Camp Is Hit by Protests

Chicago, May 3 (AP).—Protests halted the projected training camp of Joe Louis, Negro challenger for the world's heavyweight championship, at Lake Geneva, Wis., today.

Julian Black, co-manager of the Brown Bomber, told friends he doubted if he and Louis would go anywhere they "were not wanted." He said he would leave further negotiations up to Dr. E. O. Hudson, president of the Lake Geneva Chamber of Commerce, and Walter Ledger, mayor of the resort town. Both had invited Louis to establish his camp there.

The camp was to have been pitched Wednesday on payment of $5,000 by local merchants.

Finance Shakes Off Purple Knight, Wins Pimlico Feature by Neck

Azucar Is 3d In Handicap, Matey Fifth

9,000 See Denemark Horse Capture Brooklanwood Race.

By Walter Haight.
A Staff Correspondent.

Pimlico Race Track, Baltimore, May 3.—Mrs. Emil Denemark's Finance, a determined son of Bull Dog, shook off repeated challenges from R. H. Heighe's Purple Knight and survived to win by a neck margin in the Brooklandwood Handicap, today's Maryland Jockey Club feature race.

Third in the group of seven was Azucar, winner of the 1934 running of the $100,000 added Santa Anita Handicap.

Spring weather was the order of the afternoon and 9,000 were out for the sport.

Walter M. Jeffords' Matey, candidate for the Preakness, could do no better than fifth in the 1 1-6-mile race. After a poor showing at Havre de Grace, this race was looked upon as a test for Matey.

The winner of the Pimlico Futurity last year through the disqualification of Privileged had to be taken up slightly at the first turn but saved ground along the rail thereafter. He reached third position turning into the stretch and then tired gradually as if needing racing.

Finance, coupled with Two Bob in the betting, paid a $7 mutuel while running the route in 1:45 1-5.

Jockey Charlie Kurtsinger had Finance away well and the gelding had his neck in front of Purple Knight as the field went into the backstretch. Bootless, pulled up while in a tangle at the first turn, was third, with Matey sixth and next to last. Jockey Harry Richards had taken Matey into the rail at this point.

Battle to Finish.

Finance and Purple Knight continued their battle throughout the remainder of the race. The Denemark gelding always had a little on his rival and their respective riders were driving for all they were worth at the finish.

Matey had plenty of room to come through on the rail at the final bend. He did get almost abreast of Finance and Purple Knight, but then began to drop back. Azucar had been in a contending position from the start and he rallied to be going strongly at the end.

Aroused, a $5.80 second choice, accounted the chief part of the purse in the seventh race, a six-furlong sprint. Racing in the interests of Mrs. B. F. Christmas, Aroused defeated Nadir by two lengths after leading from the start. Third money in the vestpocket field of five went to Cruising. Aroused was clocked in 1:13.

W. F. Hitt's Crump scored a lucky victory in the day's steeplechase event when he took a photo decision from Teddy The Bold, owned by Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark. Third money in the field of ten went to Thomas Hitchcock's Carryvogne.

Teddy The Bold took command with three jumps to go and had what appeared to be a winning lead approaching the final fence when Noccalula, which lost his rider at the seventh jump, darted in front of him.

Jockey H. Clements was forced to pull up sharply. This allowed the driving Crump to get to the front. When Teddy The Bold regained his stride, Clements sent him after Crump and he just missed getting up in the final strides. Crump was a $49.40 betting proposition and time for the 2-mile course was 3:58.

Fillies and mares, contesting at 6 furlongs, held the attention in the fifth race, and Warrior Queen, representing the Glen Riddle Farm, turned in an easy victory. Deflate, the heavily played favorite, was second and Care For third in the group of seven. Warrior Queen was the winner of a brief struggle with Dashing Doe and then went on to win while in hand at the end.

Deflate lacked her early burst of speed, but was a fast second. The race was run in the good time of 1:12. Warrior Queen was second choice at an $8.40 mutuel. It was the second winner of the day for Jockey E. De Camillis, who was up on Warrior Queen.

Manda's Baby Victor.

Manda's Baby, running in the silks of Mrs. F. A. Straus, proved a handy winner of the third race, which drew a dozen cheap sprinters. The daughter of Black Servant was capably handled by Jockey Eddie De Camillis and had a margin of four lengths over Mahogany at the finish.

Toothpick accounted for third money. The winner was well played at a $7.90 mutuel and stepped the route in 1:14 2-5. Lernana, a first-time starter, caused Manda's Baby to turn on speed approaching the stretch, but the filly soon drew clear to hold sway thereafter.

Don't Sell Pompoon Short, He'll Win the Derby, Trainer Says

New York, May 3.—In less than two minutes, a sudden snarl from the turf gods changed mighty Pompoon from a short-priced favorite in to the big bay question mark of Saturday's Kentucky Derby.

Now he is the most uncertain factor in Col. Mat Winn's Blue Grass classic at Churchill Downs. On Pompoon's record, he has speed enough to win that $50,000 added event. But because of his amazing failure last Saturday in the Wood Memorial at Jamacia, when he finished fifth, a large section of the racing world claims that he hasn't the stamina to finish in the Derby money.

Even before the Wood Memorial, there had been mild doubts as to Pompoon's stamina because he was sired by Pompey. And none of Pompey's sons ever did much at distances longer than the mile.

It must be emphasized, however, that the man who knows Pompoon best does not question his stamina. His trainer, 64-year-old "Danny" Clarke, says, "I still believe Pompoon will win the Derby."

Clarke said that Saturday, right after the Wood Memorial, when the murmur of surprise and disappointment was still cascading down from the stands. And he said it Sunday before he left for Louisville with Pompoon. And he'll be saying it when the horses parade to the post Saturday.

Danny Clarke is a small, bald-headed old-time jockey with a hump on his back. He suffered this hump in a bad track spill many years ago. And he doesn't mind when his friends call him "Humpy Dan." But he did mind it Saturday when his friends tried to express sympathy over Pompoon's defeat. They tried to condole him when he took the glasses down from his watery blue eyes. And they could see anguish in his wizened face.

But Danny wanted no sympathy. He wanted understanding. And he said:

"If that horse could only talk, you wouldn't think he ran a poor race. No—I didn't see the race. I had my glasses only on Pompoon. I just saw him running. I saw what happened. And he was great in defeat. I'm more confident now than before. And I'm not making any alibis for his beating. Sure—he was beaten. But dammit, it wasn't his fault. And it wasn't the fault of Jockey Harry Richards. He rode a fine race and followed instructions."

There was no doubt that Pompoon was beaten—and badly—in this his first test at a distance greater than a mile. He finished the mile and 70 yards in fifth place, behind Melodist, Sir Damion, Jewell Dorsett and Clodion—four other Derby hopefuls. And people were saying, "Well, if Pompoon hasn't the stamina to last a mile and 70 yards, how can he expect to win the mile and a quarter Derby, which is 370 yards longer?"

Danny Clarke, who had powerful alibis after Pompoon's only two defeats as a 2-year-old, said:

"It wasn't a question of distance at all this time. I watched Pompoon from start to finish, and here's what happened. On the first turn, he was knocked off his stride. But he didn't regain his stride until near the finish—until it was too late. He was working well in the stretch. And here's something else most people didn't see. I had instructed Richards to continue on after the finish and work Pompoon to the mile and a furlong post. (1 mile 220 yards). He did this and caught Sir Damion at the mile and a furlong. Sir Damion also was trying the longer distance."

Sir Damion already had finished second to Melodist at the mile, 70-yard finish.

Clarke seemed to be intimating that if the Wood Memorial had been run over the longer derby mile-and-a-quarter route, Pompoon would have won with comparative ease in spite of his off-stride handicap.

Clarke rated Sam Riddle's War Admiral, Chesapeake Stakes winner, as the horse Pompoon must beat at Churchill Downs. As for Mrs. E. D. Mars' Reaping Reward, which beat Pompoon last year in the New England Futurity at Narragansett, Clarke said, "That horse won't even be in the money."

He claimed Sonny Workman's poor ride lost the Narragansett fixture for Pompoon. Likewise he said Maurice Peters' poor ride caused Pompoon to lose to Miss Mary Hirsch's No Sir in an allowance race at Saratoga last year. Those were Pompoon's only two defeats as a 2-year-old in eight starts in 1936.

So—the case of Pompoon and Clarke vs. the racing experts will go to the jury Saturday afternoon.

Deal Ak

Word comes from New York that the metropolitan turf fans have soured on the Australian starting barrier. I believe I predicted as much while writing from Florida last winter. Joseph E. Widener, big shot at Hialeah, had a dream and foresaw the Australian barrier in use at every track in the Nation. He planned to start with the 2-year-olds and gradually work the contraption into all ages. He used the barrier on the juveniles at Hialeah and, to my mind, it did not work well, although the youngsters started had never been postward before. There is no doubt that in time the Australian contraption would have worked well in most cases. However, as predicted, there was no enthusiasm shown by a majority of tracks. The New York fans put up a howl about it, so the State commission ruled it out, except for overnight claiming events. The chief objection to the Australian barrier is that it does not have separate stalls for horses and tends to bring back the day's of bumping and jamming starts. It is probably a safe bet, however, that Widener will again shove the device on horsemen at Hialeah next winter. BILL.

First Race—Cancel was poorly handled last out when well meant. This one has worked kindly and, with improved riding should take the purse. Titian Kiddie, a recent winner, is dangerous. Wandrel and Happy Hostess are not out of it by any means.

Second Race—Prattler is another that got a miserable ride. He should have won his last with intelligent piloting. There will be a change of jockeys for this and I expect a set of brackets. Little Marty, recent winner, and Greatorex for the place and show.

Third Race—Black Boo, arter being in action over his head, meets a field of maidens here and should score. Happy Hazel and Torquil appear better suited for money positions than the others.

Fourth Race—Smoke Signal is a fair sort of youngster and seems capable of carrying top weight to victory in this field. Spring Meadow, a first time starter, is said to be promising. Busse Trumpet for third money.

Fifth Race—Playnot is tossed in this with only 103 pounds and appears to be the best thing of the day. Small Change is fit and should be close. Canrock likes this track.

Sixth Race—Bunny Baby and Tedema should battle it out for the chief award here. Both are speedy juveniles. Fancy That moves up after a smashing victory. May take it all.

Seventh Race—Departed appears headed for a winning effort in this group. Fluffy Lee was kidding last out and may lead Eudes to the wire.

Eighth Race—Some Bull, Church Call and Toney Boy is the way I prefer them in the day's finale.

Harry Pitt Favored in Woodmont Invitation

East Potomac Medal To W. Seay With 77

Levi Yoder Post Entry in Woodmont Event, Women in Team Matches, Army-Navy Releases Schedule, Pros to Play in Virginia.

By Merrell Whittlesey.

Obviously well on his game after a practice round, 74, at Woodmont yesterday afternoon, Harry Pitt, the Manor "Moose," moved into the favorites role for the twelfth Woodmont invitation tournament, starting today over the Bethesda course.

Harry was runner-up to Roger Peacock in the last Woodmont tourney, in 1935, and has been playing well all season, leading Manor to a victory in the team matches on Sunday.

Levi Yoder, Kenwood star and Middle-Atlantic champion, was among the prominent post entries received yesterday that included Pat Axtell, former public links qualifier, and Sam Parks, of Argyle.

Pitt will oppose a strong field for the year's inaugural invitation event, the first of four successive tourneys here and in Baltimore. John Shorey, former local ace and who now registers from Farmington, Va.; Russ Hollebaugh, Bean, McCarthy and Baggett, from Beaver Dam; Claude Rippy, national public links runner-up; John Brawner, Ralph Quinter, Bill Harvey, Andy Oliveri and Howard Nordlinger, host club luminary, are among the other prominent entries.

Summer rules will prevail over the Woodmont course and scores of 79 are expected to make the first flight. The fairways are not in the best of shape, the greens are full, but deceptive.

Several post entries boost the field near the 130 mark.

Tuesday, 11:45—Pat Axtell, L. D. Byers (unattached); 12:15—Bob Leapley (unattached), T. Smith (Indian Spring); 1:40—Levi Yoder (Kenwood); 2:30—Sam Parks (Argyle).

Wednesday, 9:55—Don Dudley (Argyle); Paul Gunnell (Argyle); 1:10—John Wineman (Indian Spring); 1:25—L. E. Darling (Kenwood), Thomas Foley (Chevy Chase); 2:25—N. Montet (Kenwood), A. S. Bain (Kenwood), W. Wooley (Kenwood); 2:30—Tom Goode (Kenwood), C. Johnson (Kenwood); 2:35—Dr. Riley (Manor), Ray Fleming (Manor).

W. W. Seay Wins Spring Tourney Medal With 77

W. W. Seay posted a 35—42—77 yesterday for medal honors in the East Potomac spring tournament. One over par for the first nine, Seay hit the muddy stretch on the next nine and soared to 42. Harry Saunders was a stroke behind with a 78. Elmer Shafer, J. Gipe and Robert Bowers were the other qualifiers breaking 80.

Match play starts today at 8 a. m. Three flights qualified for play. The second round will be run off tomorrow and semifinals and finals on Thursday.

Labor Day—Tourney for Stanley Cup, full handicap; September 18 and three weeks thereafter—club championship.

P. G. A. Qualifiers Play In Old Point Comfort

Al Houghton, former District pro who is now located at the Chamberlin C. C., Old Point Comfort, Va., announced that more than 50 top-notch professional and amateur golfers from the Middle-Atlantic section, including the three P. G. A. qualifiyers, would play in the pro-amateur at the Virginia resort next Monday.

Play wil be over the 18-hole route with over $300 in prizes awaiting the pros and suitable trophies for amateurs for low gross and net awards. Bobby Cruickshank and Morton McCarthy will head the Virginia entries, with Johhny Bass and Ralph Beach among the Baltimore contingent making the trip with virtually every local professional.

Al Sargent, Six Others Qualify

Springfield, Ohio.—Al Sargent, of the Toledo Inverness Club, fired a 140, four under par, to lead Ohio professionals today in the 36-hole qualifier for the National Professional Golf Association tournament.

Billy Burke, of the Cleveland Country Club, shot a sensational 67 on the last 18 to qualify second with an aggregate of 142.

Al Esponosa, of Akron, was third with a 74-71—140. Seve Zappe, pro of the host Springfield Country Club, ranked fourth with 76-71—147.

Bill Barbour, of Cleveland; John Malutic, of Poland; Lloyd Gullickson, of Elyria, and Reggie Myles, of Cleveland, tied for fifth with 148 apiece, necessitating a "sudden death" playoff.

Armour Paces Illinois Entries

Chicago, May 3.—Tommy Armour fired a 70-73—143 today to pace six other Chicago stars in the Illinois section qualifying round for the National P. G. A. championship tournament.

The veteran Scot was three over par on a course made heavy by rain. Ralph Guldahl followed with 73-73—146. Harry Cooper and Frank Walsh had like rounds of 75-75—150. The other qualifiers for big battle were Jim Foulis, Sam Bernardi and Eddie Williams. Williams won the last place by defeating Jock Hutchison, jr., with whom he tied at 155, on the third hole of a playoff.

Horton Smith, Johnny Revolta and Ky Laffoon, exempt from qualifying as members of the 1935 Ryder Cup team, will complete the Chicago threat in the title tournament.

Sam Snead Paces Pittsburgh Qualifiers

Pittsburgh, May 3.—Sam Snead, the young professional golf star from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., scored a sluggish 149 today over the Pittsburgh Field Club course to pace Tri-State qualifiers for the Professional Golf Association's championship tournament May 24-30.

Perry Delvecchio, of Greensburg, Pa., and Joe Palette, of Clarksburg, W. Va., also qualified. Sam Parks, of Pittsburgh, filled out the district contingent by reason of his place on the last Ryder Cup team.

Pat Willcox Wins Berth in Nebraska

Norfolk, Nebr., May 3 (AP).—Playing most of the time in a drizzling rain, Pat Willcox, Norfolk Country Club golf pro, qualified today for the third consecutive year as an entrant in the National P. G. A. meet.

Willcox scored 72 on the first round and 78 on the second for a total of 150—four over par. Ed NewKirk, Lincoln, and Bill Schuchart, Omaha, tied for second with 157 each. Stanley Davies, Omaha, carded 159.

Vic Ghezzi Leads Plainfield Qualifiers

Plainsfield, N. J., May 3 (U.P.).—Vic Ghezzi, Deal, N. J., led six qualifiers into places for the P. G. A. championship by equalling par figures, 73-71—144, today.

Ghezzi, one of 13 players selected to qualify for the United States Ryder Cup team, rallied on his last nine with a 34, two under par, to snatch low-scoring honors from an unknown, Frank Kringle, of Sunnyfield, N. J., who set the early pace with 72-73—145.

The four other qualifiers were Clarence Clark, Forest Hill, 150; Johnny Farrell, Baltusrol, 151; Alec Ternyei, Elmwood, 153, and John Kinder, Plainfield, 153.

Sal Di Buono First, Leads Briarcliff

Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., May 3 (AP). Sal Di Buono, of the Bonnie Briar Country Club, Larchmont, scored a 145 to lead the field in the 36-hole qualifying round of the metropolitan division of the National Professional Golfers Association championship, today, at Briar Hills Country Club.

Di Buono posted a 32, three under par, on his morning first nine but slipped to 38 coming in. He shot 36-39 in the afternoon.

Mike Turnesa, of the Fairview Country Club, finished in second place with two 73's for a 146. George Kerrigan, Wykagel Country Club; Willie Klein, Wheatley Hills, and Henry Cuici, Fresh Meadows, were tied for third with 148's.

South Bend, Ind.—Blasting his way home in 69, 3 below par, Ralph Stonehouse, of Dayton, Ohio, today nosed out a field of 18 Indiana pros for medalist honors in the annual Indiana P. G. A. Tournament at Coquillard Country Club here. One stroke behind was Johnny Watson, of Erskine Park, South Bend, who shot a 74, 71 for 145.

Rochester, N. Y.—Soggy Fairways boosted scores here today as Earl (Pete) Rowley, of Lancaster, and Charlie Bemish, of Buffalo Country Club, qualified in the western New York section for the National P. G. A. championship. Rowley shot 151 and Bemish 152.

Riverton, N. J.—Shooting a sub-par 140 for 36 holes at the Riverton Country Club today, Bruce Coltart, of the Woodcrest Country Club, led the seven Philadelphia district qualifiers for the National Professional Golfers Championship.

Other qualifiers were Ed Dudley, of Philadelphia, 142; George Fazio, of Jeffersonville, 143; Byron Nelson, of Reading, and Charley Schneider, Wilmington, and Leo Diegel, Philmont, who tied at 146. Henry Picard and Jimmy Thomson were exempt from qualifying.

Oregon Inlet has the well-known little medium backed clean out of the picture, when you look at the wonderful promise shown all last month and consider the withholding of its fulfillment past the time of normal expectancy.

True that the weather has been untimely, with week after week of prevailing northeast winds. Neither did the southeaster that blew all last week help in any way to change the outlook; in fact, it only held the blues, that had been lifted in the nets as early as April 2, on the offshore shoals, instead of following the bait fishes in under the beach.

Channel bass, striking sparingly ever since the 20th of April, have not materially increased in numbers, because of the same abnormal conditions. The catches, on days the boats are able to get out, still remain small—six being about the limit; the only satisfactory note being the high weights of the individual fish, which seldom run under 30 pounds and up to 45.

* * * *

There has been noised around Washington the reports of catches of blues being made by local fishermen. Including Saturday, May 1, and on which day there were 15 boats out, finds the first bluefish yet to be caught on a hook and line.

* * * *

This information comes from Sam Tillet, dean of all Oregon Inlet sport fishermen, who constantly keeps Post Notes informed by telephone of any material change in conditions.

His prediction is that Wednesday will see the start of the real fishing.

Keep in mind that the Norfolk steamers have accommodations for about 40 cars and that they are running close to capacity. Make your reservations well in advance if you don't want to make that long trip over the road.

Whenever two or more fishermen contact, the ensuing conversation is never of anything except the expected North Carolina blue fishing. They all seem to want to hit the first run right on the button, without losing even a day. How it is to be accomplished is beyond our ken.

* * * *

One exception to the foregoing was an impromptu get-together in Bill Briggs Eastern Air Line office, due probably to the presence of three, who were guests of the line on the Fisherman Special last July. The hope was freely expressed that it would be repeated this summer in time to get in on the exceptional tarpon season that is just hitting its stride on the lower west coast of Florida.

Our local ring impresario, Joe Turner, with Mrs. Turner, Ralph Murdock and Jack Ennsley, left on the Norfolk boat Saturday evening for a four-day trip to Oregon Inlet. They will fish with Dewey Tillet, and it is hoped, for Joe's sole benefit, that the blues will break in while he is there, for all his talk for the past month has been of this fishing.

Frank Del Veechio, the Southeast tackle merchant, also leaves today with a party, for a try at the same fishing.

G.P.O. Shades PWA, 5 to 4

The Departmental Baseball League opened with a fast-played game yesterday as Public Works Administration nosed out Government Printing Office, 5 to 4, on the East Ellipse.

A. E. Giegengack, Public Printer of the United States, and Col. Horatio B. Hackett, assistant administrator of WPA, each threw out a "first ball" and then sat back to see their respective clubs fight to a close decision finally decided in the seventh when PWA broke a 4-4 tie.

Western Net Team Routs Eastern, 7-0

Western High's unbeaten tennis team opened its drive for the inter-high championship held by Central yesterday, sweeping all matches from Eastern to win, 7 to 0, on the Potomac Park courts.

Led by their Cuban No. 1 man, Miguel Nunez, the Georgetowners breezed through without loss of a set to take their third straight victory. The George Washington freshmen and the crack Episcopal High netmen have fallen before the Red racquetmen.

Singles—Nunes defeated Simpson, 6—1, 6—1; Ken Dalby defeated Groves, 6—0, 6—3; McGee defeated Mathews, 6—4, 6—0; Burnside defeated Stasuli, 6—4, 6—0; Wadden defeated Richardson, 6—2, 6—3.

Doubles—Dalby and Nunes defeated Simpson and Stasuli, 6—4, 6—2; Wadden and Bonham defeated Mathews and Richardson, 10—8, 6—2.

Net Stars Expected Here This Week

A fast field including Bryan M. (Bitsy) Grant, of the Davis Cup team, is expected to compete here this week at the Chevy Chase club for the Chevy Chase invitation doubles championship, Lawrence A. Baker, vice president of the U. S. L. T. A., said yesterday.

Donald Budge and Gene Mako will not defend the title they won last year. Wayne Sabin, winner of the recent White Sulphur tournament; Elwood Cooke, North-South champion; Gilbert Hall, Mason-Dixon champion, and Prof. John McDiarmid, of Princeton, are others expected for the two-day event Friday and Saturday.

R.F. Owens' Pigeon Wins Distance Race

Winging 110 miles from Cumberland, Md., to Washington at a rate of 1,172.20 yards a minute, "Smoke," a powerful little pigeon owned by R. F. Owens, won the first race of a series of old bird competitions scheduled by the Aero Racing Pigeon Club Sunday.

"Smoke's" feathers beat him home with a close lead over E. Barrett's entry which made a speed of 1,167.82 yards a minute.

Following is the finish in yards per minute of the first bird of each loft: Owens, 1,172.20; Barrett, 1,167.82; Owens, 1,163.05; Morris Bros., 1,161.90; Fierstein, 1,149.20; Crown and Cox, 1,143.32; Rose, 1,139.12; E. Sports News at a Glance

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 3 (AP).—The New York Yankees defeated Western State Teachers College, of Kalamazoo, Mich., 16 to 0, today in an exhibition game dedicating a stadium here.

New York.—The semi-final session of minor events bowling in the American Bowling Congress produced no changes in the list of singles and doubles leaders today.

Guy Burkland, of Brooklyn, polled 658 for the high singles score while Walter Watson and Herb Sutton, of Hackensack, N. J., turned in 1,186 to top the day's doubles counts.

Armstrong High School defeated Dunbar, 17 to 4, in the first game of the colored high school series yesterday. Norman Watkins, Armstrong first baseman, made four hits in four trips to the plate. He banged out two doubles and two singles. Bill Cain, Armstrong catcher, got 3 out of four hits, accounting for two doubles and one single.

Hampden-Sydney, Va.—The University of Richmond tennis squad rolled up its twelfth victory of the season today when it shut out Hampden-Sydney, 9 to 0.

Woodstock, Va.—Pounding two Massanutten Academy pitchers at will, the Shepherd College nine avenged a former 30-to-10 defeat here today as they completely outclassed the Cadets, 15 to 6, in a one-sided game.

Today's baseball game between Hyattsville and Gaithersburg, to be played on the latter's field, is the beginning of a full four-day program for athletes of Prince Georges County, which ends Friday with a triangular track meet with Laurel playing host to Mount Rainier and Glen Burnie.

Mount Rainier's nine will entertain Woodrow Wilson tomorrow at 3:30.

The field day events listed for the triangular meet sponsored by Laurel High in an effort to encourage track and field, will feature the 50-yard dash, 60-yard dash, 70-yard dash, 80-yard dash, 100-yard, 220-yard dash, 440-yard run, 880-yard run, mile relay, running broad jump, running high jump, shot put and soccer kick for distance. There will also be a relay team for the following classes: 80-pound, 95-pound, 115-pound and the junior unlimited.

The day's program will come to a close with Laurel's baseballers playing Mount Rainier. The track meet is scheduled to get underway at 1:30. The baseball game will start at 3 p. m.

The lull before the storm of Friday's Eastern-Western conflict today descends on Roosevelt Stadium in the form of the annual interhigh classic between Tech and the Rough Riders. Between the two of them they have won one game in four interhigh starts, but this state of affairs will be remedied this afternoon.

Unison, Va., May 3.—The Bear, a lovely 4-year-old chestnut gelding, belonging to Mrs. John Hay Whitney, of Llangollen Farms, captured the championship honors over a large number of splendid hunters at the Unison-Bloomfield Horse Show today, which opened the season in Loudoun County. The Bear won the 3- and 4-year-old prospective hunter class, the light and middleweight hunter class and the model class. Peach Brothers' Dorothy M., a consistent winner in the show ring, captured the Reserve ribbon.

Ideal weather, an attendance of 1,500 who sat in a brilliant May sunshine and excellent performances marked the opening event. The show today gave promise of interesting programs on the Maryland-Virginia Horse Show circuit this season.

Dion Kerr, jr., youthful steeplechase rider, mounted on Miss C. H. Noland's Rokeby, won the hunter's race over a rolling course of 1 mile, in which the condition at finish and time were considered. Miss Agnes Dana, of Foxcroft School, piloted Dr. Snowden to second place, and Miss Ruth McCormick rode Proper Time to win third place. Young Kerr, riding Rokeby, also captured the obstacle race, the most amusing number on the program, in which the contestant rode to the other end of ring, dismounted, drank a bottle of soda pop, ate a shredded wheat biscuit, whistled, remounted and rode to the starting point.

The young ladies of Foxcroft School under the direction of the riding instructress, Miss Eleanor Mackubin, performed splendidly and were the largest winners in the afternoon. Mrs. John Hay Whitney and Mrs. George P. Greenhalgh took the largest number of morning classes. The judges were Lodge Bowles and Graham Doughtery, of Clarke County, and George Robert Slater, of Upperville.

Abattoir Fight To Open Today On Capitol Hill

was issued to the Gobel company to proceed with construction of the slaughter house.

Foes of the abattoir, including Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace and Frederic A. Delano, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, are being mobilized by the American Planning and Civic Association.

Ickes has said that "the idea of an abattoir in Washington seems disgraceful."

"Washington is a residential city and the seat of the national Government and such as this has absolutely no place in the city. I can't understand why they should want to come into the District when there is plenty of space outside of it."

Near Housing Project.

Ickes is interested for a number of reasons. The National Parks Service, which comes under him, has purchased considerable park land in the Benning and Anacostia area. The Housing Division of the Public Works, a favorite project of Ickes, owns 54 acres of ground within 1,600 feet of the Gobel plant, and on this it is proposed to build homes for 700 families.

Delano, uncle of President Roosevelt and spearhead in the drive against the abattoir, heads a committee of 100, a unit within the American Planning and Civic Association. Last November, this committee issued a broadside, saying:

"It must be clear that neither the founders nor the living civic leaders in Washington have been in favor of heavy nuisance-making industries.

"If this abattoir is permitted to be established in the District of Columbia, it will constitute for all time a blot upon the Federal City, a nuisance for all who live or work in or pass through the area."

D. C. Body to Give Report on Crime

The Washington Criminal Justice Association will meet at 4:30 p. m. in the Willard Hotel today to hear the first annual report on crime conditions in Washington.

Result of an extensive inquiry, the report will be presented by James Allen Nolan, managing director of the group, and James H. Hepbron, director of the Baltimore Criminal Justice Association and consultant to the local organization.

New officers and directors of the Washington association also will be announced. The group was organized in May, 1936, with Eugene Meyer, publisher of The Post, as president.

A.F.G.E. Sues Rival N.F.F.E. For $100,000

Charge Critical Editorial Published With Intent to Damage.

The American Federation of Government Employes, having a membership of about 27,000, yesterday filed suit in United States District Court against its rival organization, the National Federation of Federal Employes, on the grounds that it had been damaged in reputation by an N. F. F. E. editorial. Damages in the amount of $100,000 were asked. Two N. F. F. E. officers, Luther Steward, president, and Gertrude McNally, secretary-treasurer, were named.

The editorial the A. F. G. E. complains of appeared in a recent issue of the Federal Employe, official publication of the N. F. F. E.

"The matter contained in this editorial, and the manner in which it was and is being reprinted and distributed, is considered by us to be such an unwarranted and unfair attack upon our organization, and has caused us so much embarrassment, that it can no longer be disregarded," said Col. Charles I. Stengle, president of the A. F. G. E., yesterday. "We will prove that these statements are wholly false, and were published maliciously and with a view toward damaging the reputation and activities of the A. F. G. E. and its officers. We intend to prosecute this case vigorously and to the limit," Stengle said.

Grain Declines 2¼c a Bushel With Rainfall

Drop in Export Demand From Canada Is Another Factor.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 3.—Beneficial moisture in domestic crop territory West, Northwest and Southwest did much to bring about lower wheat prices today, down 2¼ cents a bushel maximum.

The day's bottom quotations for wheat were reached just at the last, influenced by a slump of the Winnipeg market owing more or less to a virtually complete halt of export demand for wheat from Canada. Besides, Liverpool wheat quotations reacted in the late dealings, after temporary advancing.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 1⅜ to 2¼ under Saturday's finish, May $1.30¼@$1.30½, July $1.18⅝@$1.18½, September $1.16¼@$1.16⅜; corn ⅝ off to ¼ up, May $1.30¼@$1.30⅜, July $1.17⅝@$1.17¾, September $1.08¼@$1.08⅜, oats ⅝ to ⅞ down, May 49⅜@49¾, and rye showing 1¼ to 2½ drop, May $1.12½. Provisions closed unchanged to 5 cents lower.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively, A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Hold Firm in Year's Dullest Trading; Bonds Higher; Wheat Lower.

New York, May 3.—Midsummer apparel was worn by the Stock Exchange and in a turnover of about 600,000 shares, the smallest volume since last June, prices moved irregularly higher in the early trading and neld on fairly well. All sections of the bond market were steady to firm, and commodities, with the exception of grains and cocoa, improved. July wheat dropped 1½ cents to 118½ cents a bushel.

Nothing much happened over the week-end to influence markets. The time was spent largely in picking up loose ends from the rapid adjustments that took place last week and in reaching the general conclusion that the immediate prospect is for some slackening of the pace in business, and consequently in speculative markets. Higher reserve requirements, which went into effect on Saturday, found this district with sharply reduced excess reserves, with enough to keep the money market from lifting its rates, and doubtless the passing of the time limit relieved the Government bond market of some of its worries.

There was little suggestion that the withdrawal of funds for European account was continuing in so far as fear of a break here or the need to plug up holes at home were concerned. Strength in the French franc did indicate that, with less menace of a social upheaval, French capital is losing some of its timidity and is more inclined to return to Paris, where its wages will be higher than they are in this and the London markets. However, that is scarcely a matter of immediate concern to our stock market, for we had almost no "hot money" here to begin with. Foreign money here is investment money, which will do the same as domestic funds—namely, follow the course of business earnings.

Summer Recession.

On the trade side some evidence appeared of the beginning of summer quiet. The steel mills, according to the estimate of the American Iron and Steel Institute, will this week recede 1.3 points to an operating rate of 91 per cent of capacity, compared with 70 per cent a year ago. The pace is so fast and orders on the books are so large that, regardless of what may take place later in the year, a good second quarter now is assured for the steel and, in fact, nearly all other industries.

Metal and mining stocks felt much better and they were given a tonic by re-entry into the market of London purchasers. London and Johannesburg apparently have accepted at full value the assurances from this side that the Administration contemplates no change in the gold content of the dollar, and the speculative shake-out has brought prices down to levels which are again attracting investors. Gains in International Nickel, Smelters, Anaconda, Kennecott and other metal stocks reflected the brighter skies abroad and the returning of confidence to the commodity markets.

Hollywood Strike.

Amusement stocks proved to be sensitive to the strike news, possibly because of the novelty of the affair and the peculiar condition in which a movie producer might find himself in the event of serious labor difficulties. Oil shares were firm on the declaration of higher dividends by a number of the group. Advances of a point or more were made by a scattered array of stocks without much regard to the general situation. Among them were Celanese, American Can, International Paper preferred, U. S. Rubber, Industrial Alcohol, Penney, Allied Chemical and Chrysler.

Most stocks had only fractional changes to show in their prices. In the steel group the leader was Bethlehem, and those issues did not seem to be affected much by the lower estimate of operations, the flood in the Pittsburgh area being given the blame for some stoppage. Railroad shares were good for minor gains. New York Central was active. American Telephone rose about 2 points. Coca-Cola climbed on its higher earnings, but Western Union was a shade lower on talk of rate reduction.

The temper of the market was shown by the fact that up to near the close no sales had taken place in Auburn, Case and Owens Glass.

Money Market.

Banks decided to do nothing in the direction of altering money rates immediately, although the excess reserves of $155,000,000 which were available at the close of business Saturday were strikingly smaller than the $500,000,000 plus which were here on Friday before the higher reserve requirements went into effect. Some of the "bankers' banks" here were either deficient in reserves or were right down to bedrock, because of eleventh hour withdrawals for out-of-town account and because of month-end currency demands. Those big banks which still had excess funds Saturday and today continued to ask one-half of 1 per cent. They have asked that rate unsuccessfully for several weeks; on Saturday and today deficient banks had to pay the rate asked. For the first time in years some Boston and Chicago Federal funds were offered here and at one-quarter of 1 per cent. Naturally it was taken rather quickly. Chicago banks have plenty of funds.

Transfers.

It will be difficult to estimate the exact loss of funds by this market today until late this afternoon, but to whatever extent the interior draws there must be added about $30,000,000 which New York also is losing from its slender reserves through a Treasury call which was paid over to the Federal Reserve Bank today. On Wednesday this district will lose more funds through subscription to an issue of Treasury bills for $50,000,000 new money, so, unless there are transfers here or substantial Treasury disbursements, local excess reserves may be under $100,000 by Wednesday. There was about $30,000,000 transferred out of town Saturday.

Gold.

The Treasury can look for a little relief to its checking accounts now that the price of gold has recovered in London to a level which leaves but a narrow profit margin for American shippers. At the time of fixing, the gold price in London was equivalent to about $34.76 an ounce, which is close to the minimum basis at which transfers can be made. Apparently the British authorities are taking more of the metal for their own account now that the supply released from hoarding has dwindled. It will be interesting to observe whether this country will have to continue to take large consignments of Russian metal.

Francs.

Spot francs had one of the most spectacular runups witnessed in several weeks. The sterling rate was little changed, indicating that the franc also was appreciating rapidly against the pound. Probably short covering was a considerable factor, but the Bank of France fixed the price of gold twice in the course of the day, and at lower franc prices. Dispatches from Paris indicated much better progress in financial affairs, together with a considerable shift of money back to Paris, chiefly because of growing evidence that the French government was leaning to the conservative side, as is likely to happen when the financial winds blow too heavily against it.

March Jobs Top 1929 in Four Major Fields

Total in All Industries Remains 4% Under 1929 Monthly Average.

New York, May 3.—Employment in March in manufacturing, agriculture, the service industries, and trade, distribution, and finance combined, was higher than in 1929, the National Industrial Conference Board reported today.

These industries, the conference board points out, normally afford employment to from 80 per cent to 85 per cent of the total number of the country's workers. The number of workers employed in these activities in March totaled 38,984,000, which compared with a 1929 average of 38,116,000. The increase over 1929 was 868,000 workers, or nearly 2.3 per cent.

The greatest gain, as compared with 1929, has taken place in manufacturing. In this field the number of workers increased from 11,073,000 in 1929 to 11,678,000 in March, 1937, an advance of almost 5.5 per cent. In agriculture the number of workers rose from 10,650,000 in 1929 to 10,766,000 in March, or a little over 1 per cent; in the service industries employment advanced from 9,700,000 workers in 1929 to 9,131,000 in March, or 1 per cent; and in trade, distribution, and finance the number of workers increased from 7,323,000 to 7,409,000, or a little over 1 per cent.

Total employment in all industries and occupations in March, 1937, was approximately 4 per cent under the average monthly record of 1929. The number of workers employed in March of this year was 45,311,000, as against a monthly average of 47,276,000 in 1929. Thus, the total number of employed workers today is estimated to be 1,065,000 less than in 1929. In this connection, however, it must be remembered that from 1929 to March, 1937, there was an estimated increase of roundly 4,556,000 persons in the total number in the Nation's labor force.

A lag in employment in construction, transportation, the public utilities and mining was responsible for the fact that employment on the whole in March was less than the 1929 average level, the Conference Board's report states. In these industries the number of workers employed in March was 2,757,000 less than the 1929 average.

Curb Irregular In Narrow Range

New York, May 3 (AP).—A few fairly sizable gains and an occasional loss of good proportions stood out in a generally narrow and quiet curb market today. Group movements were lacking and buying was selective. Creole Petroleum added 1¼ points at 34½, Detroit Steel Products was up the same amount at 52½, as was North American Rayon "B" at 44½. Pan-American Airways advanced 1¾ to 64¾ and United Shoe Machinery was 2⅛ higher at 89⅛.

Some of the losers of a point or more included Great Atlantic & Pacific at 122½, Agfa-Ansco at 35 and Hydro-Electric Securities 1⅝. Most of the usual leaders revealed only small changes.

Commodity Seat $1,300.

New York, May 3 (AP).—A seat on the Commodity Exchange Inc. changed hands today at $1,300, off $100 from the previous sale.

interest in civic development, now serving on several committees of the Washington Board of Trade.

Mr. Stone says that the normal increase in business has necessitated additional office space, which has just been obtained by a long-term lease on the entire second floor of the premises at 1419 H street northwest, on the fourth floor of which the agency has heretofore occupied more restricted quarters.

The agency, established in 1890, is announced as the oldest local-scope credit exchange in the United States. Its other officers are William R. Stone, president and treasurer; Gordon H. Fletcher, vice president and general manager, and M. Inez Stone, secretary.

Trusteed Income Estates.

Mass production methods of making products of industry available over a broad public front have long been known to manufacturers, but it remained for sponsors of living trust plans to apply the idea to the investment field, and the sponsors have made it possible for nearly everyone to obtain services in accumulation of capital similar to those available formerly only to the well-to-do.

Trusteed Income Estates, offered to the public through Income Estates of America, Inc., which has offices in the Woodward Building, affords a typical example of how the mass output idea works. All deposits are made with one of the oldest and largest banks in the country, which acts as trustee for the depositor.

Evidence of the popularity of this plan is shown in the fact that at the end of 1933, investors had contracted to deposit $496,800. A year later the amount agreed to be deposited was $2,504,900. At the close of 1935, it totaled $4,927,235 and one year later had reached $11,035,940. By April 1 this year it was up to $13,553,390. A large percentage of this amount has come from local investors.

Municipal Credit.

Outlook for municipal credit, both as to existing debt and future financing has improved. This is the opinion of J. Hamilton Cheston, chairman of the committee in charge, National Association of Mutual Savings Banks. Mr. Cheston, who is vice president of the Philadelphia Saving Fund Society, surveyed the results of a year's study at the recent annual conference of savings bank executives in New York City.

In spite of the trend toward consolidations into large operating units of all kinds, the small savings bank still occupies a position essentially its own, Fred F. Lawrence, treasurer of the Maine Savings Bank of Portland, reminded the meeting.

Local regulation of utility rates was indorsed by Robert E. Healy, member of the Securities and Exchange Commission, who expressed the belief that the commission is rendering helpful service to industry, investors and the public. Careful scrutiny of underwriting spreads, he explained, has greatly reduced costs of finance. He declared further that the commission sees nothing in the holding company act looking or working toward nationalization of the utility industry.

Bankers attending the recent annual convention of the Association of Reserve City Bankers at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., reported optimistic opinions expressed at the conference. Business, banking and economic outlooks were considered bright by the speakers, although official statements are not made at the sessions, which are always executive.

Among Washington bankers in attendance were Vice President Joshua Evans, jr., and Vice President and Cashier Wilmer J. Waller, of Hamilton National Bank; President Robert V. Fleming and Vice President and Trust Officer Sidney F. Taliaferro, of Riggs National Bank, and Secretary Frederick P. H. Siddons, of American Security & Trust Co.

Foreign Exchange.

By the Associated Press.

French francs advanced strongly in foreign exchange dealings yesterday as the pound sterling sagged a trifle.

The French currency in New York trading added .02 of a cent to 4.49⅝ cents. Sterling was off ⅛ of a cent at 84.93¾. Swiss francs yielded .02 of a cent at 22.89 cents and Netherlands guilders were .01 of a cent higher at 54.87 cents. Canadian dollars were unchanged at 100.17⅛ cents.

In London the dollar was in demand and gained ½ cent to close at 4.93⅜ to the pound. This compares with the New York Saturday closing rate of 84.93⅛. In Paris the American unit finished at the equivalent of 4.448 cents to the franc compared with the New York Saturday rate of 4.476 cents.

Gym Rhythm May Endanger Pupils' Lives

Society Hears Speaker Tell of Danger of Exercising in Unison.

Gymnasium pupils exercising in unison over an auditorium, like soldiers marching in step over a bridge, are apt to endanger their lives and limbs, the Acoustical Society of America, meeting at the Bureau of Standards, were told yesterday by L. H. Young.

"When crossing a bridge, soldiers are instructed to march out of step," he said. "Otherwise the structure is in danger of cracking or collapsing."

At the morning session the Acoustical Society, whose spring meeting closes today, heard Dr. H. G. Dorsey tell of a vast new improvement he made on the old sonic depth-finder. With Dr. Dorsey's instrument, which promises to do away with "dead reckoning" in limited areas, like Chesapeake Boy or the Gulf of Mexico, a Coast and Geodetic Survey ship traveling at 10 knots can now get a recording for every 10 inches of seabottom. Heretofore it was possible to get a record only about every 40 feet when moving at less than half that speed.

Once standard maps are made giving these incredibly accurate pictures of the ocean floor, the mariner may not fear the starless night, Dr. Dorsey said. All he has to do is to consult his ocean floor map to know where he is, for it is impossible for any two localities on the sea floor to have exactly the same pattern of hills and depressions.

Other papers presented before the Acoustical Society dealt with vibration instruments and sound frequencies from an airplane exhaust system.

TRUSTEES' SALE OF TWO-STORY BRICK DWELLING, SIX ROOMS AND BATH, HOT-WATER HEAT, 2752 WOODLEY PLACE N.W., WITH TWO-CAR GARAGE IN REAR.

By virtue of a deed of trust recorded, in liber No. 6794, folio 507, et seq., one of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of party secured thereby, the undersigned trustees will offer for sale by public auction, in front of premises, on TUESDAY, THE ELEVENTH DAY OF MAY, 1937, AT 3:30 O'CLOCK P. M., the following described property in the District of Columbia, to-wit: Lot 134, in square 2617, in Dorie C. Gruver's subdivision of lots in block 4, "Ingleside," as per plat recorded in the Office of the Surveyor for the District of Columbia, in liber 88, at folio 14. Subject to the right of redemption by the makers of the aforesaid deed of trust, their heirs and assigns, within a period of sixty days from date of sale, not excluding Sundays and holidays, as provided in said deed of trust.

TERMS OF SALE: One-third of the purchase-money to be paid in cash, balance in equal installments, represented by promissory notes of purchaser, payable in one and two years, with interest at 5 per cent per annum from day of sale, payable semi-annually, secured by first deed of trust upon property sold, or all cash, at option of purchaser. A deposit of $500 required of purchaser at sale. Examination of title, conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps and notarial fees at cost of purchaser. Terms to be complied with within ten days from expiration of redemption period, otherwise trustees reserve the right to resell property at risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C., or deposit may be forfeited, or without forfeiting deposit trustees may avail themselves of any legal or equitable rights against defaulting purchaser.

By virtue of a decree of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia in Equity Cause No. 43018, the undersigned trustees will sell at public auction, subject to ratification by the court, at the front door of the Court House of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia on MONDAY, MAY 24, 1937,

AT THREE O'CLOCK P. M.

Lot number thirteen (13) in Edson Bradley's Combination of part of Square numbered one hundred and thirty-eight (138) as per plat recorded in the Office of the Surveyor for the District of Columbia in Liber 43 at folio 65, together with any and all buildings thereon and all other property so attached thereto as to constitute part of the realty, all in the District of Columbia, said property is to be sold subject to the following liens and possible inchoate right of dower, namely:

(A) An existing deed of trust dated December 31, 1930, appearing for record in Liber 6520 at folio 487 of the land Records of the District of Columbia in the office of the Recorder of Deeds, securing a certain promissory note of Joseph J. Moebs in the sum of $1,350,000.00 with interest at the rate of 5½% per annum. (The Trustees are advised that maturity of this deed of trust has been extended to December 31, 1938, and is of a present unpaid balance of $1,274,100.00, bearing interest at the rate of 5½% per annum, payable monthly, and that principal payments of $4,200.00 a month, payable monthly, are required.)

(B) An existing deed of trust bearing date of January 7, 1931, appearing for record in Liber 6520 at folio 465 of the Land Records of the District of Columbia in the office of the Recorder of Deeds to secure the payment of certain notes dated April 15, 1926, made by Joseph J. Moebs in the aggregate principal amount of $400,000.00 payable on or before five (5) years after said date, with interest at the rate of 5½% per annum. (Said deed of trust contains a provision that the release thereof may be obtained upon the payment of $50,000.00, with respect to which prospective bidders are referred to the recorded instrument. The Trustees are advised that the deed of trust has matured and interest thereon at 4% per annum is overdue, from October 11, 1936).

(C) Such inchoate right of dower as Bertha J. Moebs, the former wife of Joseph J. Moebs, had and may still retain in said property.

TERMS OF SALE—One-third of the purchase price to be paid in cash and the balance in two equal installments, payable in one and two years from date of sale and to be represented by the promissory notes of the purchaser, bearing interest at the rate of 6% per annum, payable semi-annually, and secured by deed of trust on the property sold, or all cash, at the option of the purchaser. The property is to be sold subject to the above encumbrances, interest thereon, said inchoate right of dower and taxes unpaid or accrued. A $5,000.00 deposit shall be required of the purchaser at the time of said sale.

TERMS APPLICABLE TO BOTH SALES—All conveyancing, notary fees, recording, revenue stamps and examination of title to be at the cost of purchaser. Terms of sale to be complied with within thirty (30) days from the approval and ratification thereof by the Court, otherwise the Trustees reserve the right to resell at the risk and cost of defaulting purchaser after five (5) days' notice by advertisement of the resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C.

Gains in Trade May See Return Of 'Ghost Ships'

Demand for Transportation Expected to Put Many on Sea.

By William V. Nessly.

"Ghost ships," gaunt craft for years laid up in the Government's vast idle fleet, may ride the waves again.

Increasing commerce, water borne, domestic and foreign, has brought the need for more bottoms. Ships have become obsolete, there have been practically no replacements, and the forward surge of trade finds American sea transportation requiring more vessels.

"In view of numerous inquiries," the new Maritime Commission has taken occasion to make known the policy it will follow in disposing of such craft. It dims the hope for operating subsidies, provided under the new merchant marine act, for any ships that may be sold and reconditioned, and throws about their operation restrictions that may prevent many from reliving the glory of their past. Still the demand for ships is growing, however, and commission attaches believe some of the old craft will feel again the rush of salt waves along their keels.

"In the case of vessels which the commission finds to be of no commercial value and not required for national defense," the commission's statement reads, "it will sell upon sealed competitive bids, for scrap or for any other use taking the vessels out of competition. Where, however, vessels possess a value for commercial operation, the commission will sell or charter these unless required for purposes of national defense. These sales will be pursuant to competitive bidding on an 'as is,' 'where is' basis."

There are 188 vessels in the laid-up fleet, valued at millions of dollars. They are located at Fort Eustis, James River, Va.; Staten Island, New Orleans, Mobile and Seattle.

Already, drydocking of the 54 ships tied up in the James River, to determine the conditio nof the hulls, is under way. In February the temporary Maritime Commission awarded to the Newport News Shipbuilding & Drydock Co., the contract for drydocking an dexamining the ships, at a total cost of abouf $105,000.

Unofficial reports on the work show the hulls of those craft already examined to be in "surprisingly good conditions."

Only on Saturday the commission called for bids on 28 obsolete steel cargo ships in the laid-up fleet, for the purpose of scrapping. Bids are to be opened on May 27. Of the 28 vessels 17 are at Norfolk.

The value of all the commission's ships, including 36 operating vessels, is carried on its books as $18,836,338, with no breakdown into operating and laid-up groups.

The laid-up craft are listed in three categories, those suitable for sale or charter or for use as military auxiliaries, those with negligible value for commercial purposes, but available as auxiliaries in case of national emergency, and the 28 craft suitable only for scrapping.

The temporary commission, before it was replaced last month by the permanent five-man body, announced a committee representing the commission, the Navy Department and the American Bureau of Shipping will inspect the ships as they are dry-docked, and a revision of the vessels in the first two classes may result.

Admiral Stocker Dies at Hampton

Hampton, Va., May 3 (AP).—Rear Admiral Robert Stocker, U. S. N., retired, died today in Elizabeth Buxton Hospital after an illness of several weeks.

He was born at New Ulm, Brown County, Minn., January 30, 1866, and attended school in Minnesota. He received an appointment in September, 1883, to the Naval Academy and graduated first in the class in 1887.

He studied naval architecture in France and later became assistant naval constructor in the department at Washington. From 1894 to 1901 he served as naval constructor attached to the Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co.

He was made chief constructor at the Norfolk Navy Yard in 1907 and later was transferred to Washington as a member of the board of inspectors and survey. In 1911 he was appointed chief naval constructor of the New York Navy yard and was highly commended for his work in the construction of the battleship New York.

From 1915 to 1923 he again was in Washington on the Bureau of Construction and Repair. From 1928 to 1935 he was in Newport News as superintendent of naval construction in the shipyard here. He retired March 1, 1935.

Screen Actors' Guild Defers Action on Strike

assembled. The "big names" of the two-billion-dollar industry came in their sports attire and slacks as well as more formal clothing, some of them canceling parties to attend.

Some of the speakers at the closed meeting counseled immediate active support of the F. M. P. C. strike, which is for union recognition and a closed shop.

Montgomery told the meeting senior members of the guild "will stand directly behind" the junior members—those receiving less than $250 a week. There are about 1,200 senior members and 4,400 juniors.

Lionel Stander urged active support of the F. M. P. C.

"With the eyes of the whole world on this meeting, will it not give the guild a black eye if its members continue to cross the picket lines?" he asked from the floor.

Cheers mingled with boos greeted the question.

Today's picketing was heaviest at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Paramount and Warner Brothers studios.

By the Associated Press.

A new eruption of labor disputes prompted hundreds of workers to leave their jobs yesterday.

Bakers, dairy and refinery employes, longshoremen, porcelain and furniture makers and truck drivers walked out, while threats of trouble cropped out in the steel industry.

Fourteen of the largest bakeries in Kansas City, Mo., were closed by a walk-out. It was estimated approximately 1,500 were idle and 90 per cent of the metropolitan bread supply was cut off.

In San Francisco a spokesman for 3,500 employes whose strike virtually paralyzed service in 16 leading hotels predicted an early settlement.

Westinghouse Co-operation.

The Steel Workers' Union in Pittsburgh notified the big Republic Steel Corporation it would "disavow responsibility" for keeping union members at work in the firm's mills unless a conference for negotiating a contract was arranged. Meanwhile, Philip Murray, lieutenant of John L. Lewis in the Committee for Industrial Organization, conferred with Chairman H. E. Lewis, of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation.

Senate Group Urges Federal Utility Inquiry

'Vicious Practices' Charged to Concerns; Roosevelt Message Due.

By Russell Smith

Federal investigation of "activities of a very flagrant and vicious character" by private utilities was recommended by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee yesterday as Capitol Hill learned a power-flood control-conservation message from President Roosevelt is imminent.

The committee report, written by Senator Burton A. Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, in indorsement of a resolution sponsored by Senator George W. Norris (Independent Republican), Nebraska, was brief but sharp.

It proposed appropriation of $150,000 for use by the Federal Trade Commission in the investigation.

Activities attributed to the utilities were those directed principally at "frightening off" farm groups which sought to co-operate with the Rural Electrification Administration, and "interference" with "Government aided, publicly owned electrical projects."

The latter object was linked closely by many observers with the imepnding Roosevelt mesage, for it included among the "delaying tactics" charged to the utilities the obtaining of restraining orders and injunctions.

The President's message, reported nearing completion, was expected to give tacit indorsement to the bill now being drafted by Norris for setting up eight "TVA's" to cover the country. The principal injunction target has been the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Coincident with word the Presidential message is being prepared was revelation by Representative Whittington (Democrat), Mississippi, that the President has requested action be deferred on new flood control legislation pending conclusion of a study of the problem. Whittington is chairman of the House Flood Control Committee.

The President said recently he believed $30,000,000 would be a sufficient appropriation for flood control at this session of Congress.

The President's message is expected to reach the Capitol this week. The general view was that he would propose simply establishment of the eight district authorities contemplated in the Norris bill, not merely as electric power agencies, but to effectuate a broad program covering many years such as has been worked out by the National Resource Board, and would not propose authorization of projects under these agencies.

Some of these speculations included the suggestion that such organizations might be built and set to functioning with part of the $30,000,000 flood-control fund.

The message is also expected to propose a central co-ordinating agency for such giant Federal projects as TVA, Boulder Dam, the Bonneville Dam and any new ones which may be built.

The Senate investigation, if authorized, would be expected to smooth the way for the new legislation. There appeared little doubt last night of its early approval by the Senate. Senator Norris expects to have it called up within a few days and to be adopted with little opposition.

F. S. Parks, Retired Navy Employe, Dies

Frank Silverton Parks, 76, retired employe of the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts of the Navy Department, died yesterday after long illness at his home, 1609 Hobart street. He retired in 1932.

Mr. Parks as a past president of the National Genealogical Society and a past grand regent of the Royal Arcanum. He was a member of the Sons of the American Revolution, the New England Historical and Genealogical Soceity and the Elks. He also belonged to the Society of the Oldest Inhabitants.

Surviving Mr. Parks are his wife, Mrs. Mary Anne Parks, a daughter, Mrs. Herbert P. Leeman and three sons, Frank S., Paul John and Thomas McGuigan Parks. Funeral arrangements had not been completed late yesterday.
